Alexandria has for centuries been known primarily as the hometown of George Washington, attracting history aficionados from across the globe to its cobblestone streets and lively waterfront.

But even as the pandemic has diminished the usual three million yearly visitors, local residents have risen to the challenge in working together to keep neighbors safe and neighborhoods thriving.

"Alexandria is a little big city with a hometown feel," said retired Alexandria police sergeant Stafford Farmer-Lee. "We have an extremely diverse population, diverse businesses and historic landmarks within the city. The people are friendly, city staff are attentive and we are always moving forward in a progressive environment."

In addition to George Washington and Robert E. Lee, the city also claims Jim Morrison, Mama Cass Elliot, Willard Scott, Chip Esten and House of Cards creator Beau Willimon as hometown notables.

Alexandria has some darker history too.

And Earl Lloyd, who grew up in a segregated Alexandria, was the first African American to break the color barrier in the NBA in 1950.

But even sports buffs likely are not aware that it was in Alexandria where NFL Hall of Famer Joe Namath made his pro football debut on Aug. 7, 1965. Namath and the New York Jets took on the Houston Oilers in a preseason game at what was then George Washington High School.

Namath had just signed the richest contract in pro football history and as the Alexandria Gazette reported at the time, "the eyes of the sports world will be focused on Alexandria to see just how he fares against the play-for-pay boys."

At 15.4 square miles and with a population of just over 150,000, pre-pandemic Alexandria hosted nationally recognized events such as the Scottish Walk Weekend and Del Ray's Art on the Avenue. But off the beaten paths of King Street and Mount Vernon Avenue are attractions such as the Tomb

7 Months of Snow Days

COVID-19 outbreak has shined a light on unacceptable disparities in wellness and access to healthcare.

BY JUSTIN M. WILSON

Some of the most challenging times in local government are when it snows. The first day is usually okay. The snow is pretty and most residents enjoy the scenery. The second day is still generally fun. The kids are playing in the snow and a nice cup of hot chocolate hits the spot. On Day 3, things get ugly. Everyone gets stir-crazy and ready for life to go back to normal.

We have been stuck in Day 3 of a snowstorm for nearly 7 months.

The residents of Alexandria have been very patient as the three levels of government who serve them have struggled to coordinate and react to the most significant public health crisis, economic crisis and humanitarian crisis faced in generations. While academics will spend decades unpacking and grading the decisions made by leaders over the past several months, we cannot await the judgment of history before charting a path for our community's recovery.

The COVID-19 outbreak has been revelatory as it has shined a light on unacceptable disparities in wellness and access to healthcare. Alexandria has mirrored national disparities as our residents of color have been harder hit by this pandemic. Yet, we should not be surprised. Last year our Community Health Assessment showed significant racial disparities in diabetes and hypertension. Both are significant comorbidities for patients who struggle with this coronavirus.

This outbreak has taught us that our community's health is inextricably linked to the health of the most ill among us. Rebuilding a healthy community in our future means confronting these disparities head-on.

This crisis has also exposed the financial fragility experienced by many of our neighbors and businesses. We have seen how many of our fellow residents are a missed paycheck away from needing food assistance.

Our small businesses operate painfully close to ruin under the best of circumstances. As we rebuild our community, creating a more financial resiliency among our residents and businesses will be a key component to equipping Alexandria to succeed in the years ahead.

Nearly two decades ago, our region and its residents suffered a horrendous shock due to the terrorist attacks of September 11. Ultimately, as a region we retooled, refocused and ensured that many of the new investments made in response to that tragedy, occurred in this region.

A similar opportunity now exists. With our existing Federal footprint, our renowned institutes of higher education, our research and development entities and a myriad of related corporate presence, our region should be well-equipped to develop and implement the public health investments required. Alexandria has helped lead the region in garnering new economic investments in recent years. Economic success in this environment will require a pivot and unprecedented regional partnership.

While Alexandria can chart a course for public health, financial resiliency and economic success, I hope for another by-product of this era. The common shared experiences of staying at home, avoiding crowds, distance learning for students, missed celebrations, lost income and unemployment has led to an outbreak of understanding and patience.

That patience and understanding could be rather helpful as our community works to tackle the important issues ahead.

We will not always agree as we work to protect Alexandria's future, but the best from this moment can give us something to build on. Let's get to work.

'What Do You Like About Living in Alexandria?'

Stafford Farmer-Lee

"Alexandria is a little big city with a hometown feel. We have an extremely diverse population, diverse businesses and historic landmarks within the city. We are just stone's throw from Washington, D.C. and all that city is able to provide. We are close to the Blue Ridge Mountains to our east and beaches to the south. We are so centrally located on the East coast. The people are friendly, city staff are attentive and we are always moving forward in a progressive environment."

Guenet Gebreselsissie

"For nearly 40 years the Old Town community has been a large part of my greatest life moments. It is where I first set roots as a business owner, where I raised my daughter and where I developed some of the most meaningful friendships. Alexandria is filled with so many stories like my own, filled with people who have woven themselves into the fabric of the rich history of these neighborhoods. I am honored to leave the welcome mat out for the next generation knowing that they, too, will uncover such joy in what the community has to offer."

Erica Karapetyan

"I love how nice the people are here. I love the opportunities that the city brings, the public transportation and how clean the city is. I love the access to all the facilities like the recreation centers, the parks and the Chinguapin pool. That is pretty cool. We go there often."

Monique Miles

"I like Alexandria because it's a quaint community. We have an Old Town, we have great restaurants, we have the GW Parkway, which I like to run on, and we are very dog friendly. We also have great shops that are unique from mainstream brands. I especially like that I have good neighbors and family here."

Quinn Ziemann

"I like the restaurants and the fun neighborhoods. And I like living right at a park."

Chris and Meg Ziemann

Chris: "I like that it has a small-town vibe and everyone is very open-minded, friendly and nice."

Meg: "I like that it is super diverse, dynamic and most importantly for us that it is walkable. Even though you are not in the city you get a lot of the advantages of urban living."

"She was small, but she was fierce, she was mighty, and we all need to remember how much she has put towards our civilization concerning gender equality and civil rights."

Ginsberg was the second woman to serve on the U.S. Supreme Court. She was appointed to the nation's highest court in 1993 following a career in academia and as a prosecutor. She is best known for her opinions in cases focused on women's rights, gender equality and privacy.

Following remarks at Market Square, the crowd made a silent procession down King Street to Waterfront Park, where Corey Tisdale, Mayor Justin Wilson and Colleen Haddow Gehrig spoke honoring Ginsburg's legacy.

In addition to Jackson, other organizers of the event included Kelly Grant, Gina White and Beth Lawton. Virginia Delegate Jennifer Carroll Foy and Commonwealth's Attorney Bryan Porter were in attendance and addressed the crowd.

"I am very humbled to be here this evening to honor someone who as a lawyer made a huge impact on my legal philosophy," Porter said. "I also want to honor her as an American for helping bridge the gap and making sure women are empowered and can live the

One of the region's premier arts festivals is going virtual for 2020, with Del Ray's Art on the Avenue kicking off Oct. 3 and running through Dec. 25 in an effort to provide ongoing support to local artists.

The event will feature over 150 artists, virtual experiences and a wide range of opportunities to support local artists while social distancing.

"Throughout the pandemic, art has brought us together while apart -- providing much peace and enjoyment during uncertain times," said Art on the Avenue founder Pat Miller. "Our primary concern will always be the safety of our artists and our attendees, which makes an in-person event impossible this year. But cancelling Art on the Avenue entirely was never an option for us -- our artists depend on the community's support to keep creating."

Participating artists will offer handmade items in a wide range of mediums, including wheel-thrown

In addition to continuing to connect the public with top regional artists, favorite Art on the Avenue traditions, including music, the Pie Baking Contest, and Kids Art Corner, will be modified to allow for social distancing.

"We're excited about continuing this vibrant, 25-year tradition with a virtual show," said 2020 Art on the Avenue chair Amy Eggers. "Throughout the fall and winter, our constant goal will be to connect our artists with the Alexandria community and beyond with the Del Ray creativity and spirit that has made this a beloved community event."

Traditionally held each fall on Mount Vernon Avenue, Art on the Avenue is a multicultural arts festival that draws an estimated 75,000 visitors each year. Virginia Living readers named Art on the Avenue the top arts event in the Northern Virginia region in 2020. For more information, visit www.artontheavenue.org.

He Believed In the Constitution: Reverend Fields Cook

Reverend Fields Cook engaged in so many areas of endeavor during his lifetime that it would be impossible to write a short article on all of the things he accomplished. His struggles became his strengths.

BY CHAR MCCARGO BAH
GAZETTE PACKET

He was born a slave in King Williams County, Virginia around 1817, and was author of 1847 unpublished memoir, "Fields' Observations." He was emancipated in 1850. Fields worked with the Freedmen's Bureau during the Reconstruction Era as a teacher, and then as a bank cashier for the Freedman's Savings Bank. He was elected as one of the jurors on the Treason Trial of Confederate President Jefferson Davis. He was a student in 1867 at the National Theological Institute and University in Washington, DC. A Republican leader but he ran as an independent candidate for the 1869 seat in Congress. In addition, he was one of the first Colored men who sued and won for being denied his constitutional rights.

Reverend Fields Cook attended many political and religious conventions in his life. One time, he even attended a convention in Philadelphia in 1874 and he made a reservation to stay at the Brigham House at 1026 - 1044 Market Street. When Fields arrived in Philadelphia, he went to the Brigham House to check-in but he was denied a room based on his race. When he asked the clerk why he was denied, the clerk said there were no available rooms. Fields asked the clerk if he could sit in the Clerk's Office, and he was allowed to. Fields sat in a chair and watched all night guests checking in, and there were over 18 of them.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Show Up and Vote Early, No Excuse Required

To the editor:

I was one of the many people who flocked to Alexandria's Election office on Royal Street on Sept. 18, when it kicked off 45 days of no-excuse voting for the first time. The waiting period was a brief 15 minutes, not like the 3 or 4 hours

Reverend Fields Cook's headstone at Bethel Cemetery.

Fields told the clerk the next day what he observed. The clerk then told Fields that they do not rent rooms to Negroes.

Reverend Fields Cook hired a lawyer and filed a suit against the Bingham House and the Clerk. That lawsuit became Case No. 15,868 - United States v. Newcomer in the District Court, E. D. Pennsylvania. Feb. 29, 1876, "Civil Rights - Refusal of Hotel Clerk to Receive Negro." Reverend Fields Cook won the case.

In the courtroom, the District Judge said, "The fourteenth amendment of the constitution of the United States makes all persons born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, citizens ... no state shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States" Reverend Cook's case predated the 1896 Plessy v. Ferguson case that enforced the Jim Crow laws.

Reverend Fields Cook came to in some cities and states. The workers were most efficient as they moved us through the process. There was none of the sense of panic and paranoia that has been trumpeted by the White House to "fear the fraud in this election."

I felt a sense of almost euphoria as I fed my ballot into the electrical voting machine (with a paper back-up!) and knew it would be counted. At that moment, I saw democracy was working for me, for my city and for my country. And I encourage as many of my fellow Alexandrians to "vote early"

Alexandria in 1870 to work for the Freedman's Savings Bank; the bank closed in 1876. After that, Fields became the second pastor of Third Baptist Church from 1876 - 1883. He left Third Baptist Church to start a new Church, Ebenezer Baptist, and he became Ebenezer's pastor from 1883 until he died on Jan. 21, 1897.

Fields Cook married an enslaved woman named Mary. They had several children, including a son named after him. Fields migrated from Richmond to Alexandria with his wife and adopted daughter in 1870. He left his children and siblings in Richmond. He and his wife, Mary are buried at Bethel Cemetery.

Reverend Fields Cook was a man of action. He did not let the years he spent in slavery stop him from achieving an extraordinary life for a man of color. He fought for his constitutional rights as a citizen of the United States of America.

as is possible, just for the peace of mind it gives you. When I hear the President say he wants to "throw out the ballots," it makes me feel more like I am living in Belarus or in Russia, not the USA.

A huge round of applause -- if not a standing ovation -- goes to the Blue Wave that took over Virginia's electoral revisions this year. Instead of making up silly excuses, you can just show up and vote early. The person who helped spearhead this revolution was Del. Eileen Corn-Filler, who in 2020 became the first woman in the over 400 years of Virginia's legislative body to become Speaker of the House of Delegates and the first Jewish person to hold this title. She was joined in this leadership effort by Del. Charniele Herring, House Majority Leader, who had a few "firsts" of her own, including being the first African American person to hold that title. And they also capped off their achievements by helping to make Virginia the 38th state to ratify the Equal Rights Amendment, during the 100th anniversary of the 19th amendment

NEWCOMERS & COMMUNITY GUIDE

About the Alexandria Gazette in 2020

This year, 2020 in the time of the pandemic, has been brutal for so many. As of Friday, Sept. 25, 7,580 Alexandria residents have tested positive for Covid-19 and 138 have died.

More than 21,000 residents of Fairfax County have tested positive for COVID-19, and more than 600 people here have died.

As of Sunday, Sept. 27, the Virginia Department of Health reported that 3,159 people have died in Virginia due to Covid-19 and 146,144 have tested positive for the illness.

Life is vastly different than it was pre-pandemic. Most students have not been face-to-face with their teachers or classmates since March. Lucky families are merely juggling homeschooling and home child care with telecommuting and meetings via Zoom.

Less fortunate parents have jobs that cannot be accomplished remotely, and they must find a way to have their children cared for at home while they go to work, risking infection. Even less fortunate people have lost their jobs.

Families of all stripes are facing food insecurity and demand at food pantries has skyrocketed.

Thousands of families could be facing eviction.

Small businesses and their employees hope that Congress will deliver more help. The Paycheck Protection Program was designed at the beginning of the crisis to pay employees for two months. Employees now face unemployment; businesses face closure and/or bankruptcy. Customers are unlikely to return to retail businesses, restaurants and other public places in sufficient numbers for revenues to rebound until after the pandemic is under control.

Local newspapers, including the Gazette Packet, are facing an existential threat from the combination of nationwide downturn in newspaper advertising that has been worsening over several years, compounded by the economic crisis of coronavirus.

In the midst of this, we at the Gazette Packet hear the call to continue to serve our communities. We still seek to fulfill our mission by continuing to publish, even with reduced resources. It's still our mission to provide information about where to get help and how to help; to disseminate information about the virus and efforts to stem its spread; to tell the stories of those who are helping, of those who are hungry; of those who have gotten sick with the virus, of those who are caring for the sick; and those who are performing essential jobs, from grocery clerk to firefighter to nurses and doctors. It's still our mission to tell the stories of those working for social and racial justice, and battling income inequality in the time of COVID.

Perhaps most of all, it is still our mission to deliver the local news you need, to help make sense of what is happening in your community, to advocate for community good, to provide a forum for dialogue on local concerns, and to record achievements, milestones and events in the community and people's lives. It is still our mission to cover the normal news of the local communities.

Getting Down to Business

Guide to navigating the ABCs of Alexandria, for newcomers and the rest of us.

BY JEANNE THEISMANN
GAZETTE PACKET

With Alexandrians living in the shadow of the nation's capital, acronyms such as DoD, NSA and DHS are a part of the daily vernacular. Alexandria has its own set of acronyms, from AEDP to WEBA, which represents organizations and various business associations that span every corner of the city.

Some, like the Chamber of Commerce, have been around for over a century, while others, like the West End Business Association, represent the needs of the city's shifting economic demographic.

Visit Alexandria

Visit Alexandria is the city's tourism marketing agency and attracts visitors to the city through sales and marketing programs. The Visitor's Center is located at 221 King St. with administrative offices at 625 N. Washington St., Suite 400. VisitAlexandriaVA.com

Alexandria Economic Development Partnership - AEDP

Founded in 1992, the Alexandria Economic Development Partnership actively positions and promotes commercial spaces and economic opportunities in the City of Alexandria as the city's primary engine for economic development.

A city-wide sidewalk sale is one of many events sponsored by local business organizations.

AEDP serves as the leading resource for economic data, customized reports, development maps, real estate insights and information on tax and financial incentives for businesses and commercial real estate professionals. 625 N. Washington St., suite 400. 703-739-3820 or www.AlexEcon.org

Alexandria Chamber of Commerce

Alexandria is home to one of the largest chambers in the Greater Washington region, with 850 professional business members and partners employing more than 49,000 people region-wide.

Founded in 1906, it serves as the voice of the business community in the City of Alexandria through aggressive lobbying efforts at the local, state and federal levels. 333 N. Fairfax St., Suite 302 703-549-1000 or www.alexchamber.com

The Del Ray Business Association - DRBA

The Del Ray Business Association is run by volunteers who are themselves business owners. Started almost 45 years ago, DRBA now has over 200 members and sponsors several events in the Del Ray community each year. www.visitdelray.com.

Old Town Business Association - OTBA

Open to businesses of any type, OTBA is the result of a merger of two organizations – Old Town Business (OTB) and King Street Metro Enterprise Team (KSMET). OTBA sponsors several events to promote local businesses. www.oldtownbusiness.org

Alexandria Small Business Development Center – SBDC

The Alexandria Small Business Development Center is Alexandria's economic development program that focuses on small businesses, which comprise the largest segment of Alexandria's economy. SBDC offers individual and confidential assistance without cost to City of Alexandria businesses and Alexandria residents with businesses elsewhere. 625 N. Washington St., Suite 400. 703-778-1291 or www.alexandriasbdc.org

West End Business Association - WEBA

The West End Business Association is comprised of West End Businesses and those that do business on the West End of Alexandria. WEBA provides members with networking opportunities, education and growth opportunities and representation before the City and economic development officials on matters important to the West End of Alexandria. www.alexandriawe-

Eisenhower Partnership

The Eisenhower Partnership is a group of commercial and residential property owners and occupiers along the Eisenhower Avenue Valley corridor.

The Valley is anchored in the East by the Patent and Trademark Campus and in the West by the Victory Center development/Van Dorn Metro Station. www.eisenhowerpartnership.org

Carlyle Council – CCC

The Carlyle Council oversees the open spaces, parks and community amenities in Carlyle. CCC serves as the business and community development organization for Carlyle and advocates on behalf of Carlyle stakeholders on matters impacting the community. www.thecarlylecommunity.com

Old Town North Community Partnership – OTNCP

The Old Town North Community Partnership seeks to encourage the blend of residential and businesses uses in Old Town North, and make improvements in the area's quality of life through a partnership of residents and businesses working together on common goals.

The community includes North of Oronoco Street to Alexandria's northern boundary. www.oldtown-north.org

Loving Panels Installed

The Office of Historic Alexandria announced the installation of two new panels commemorating the Loving v. Virginia Supreme Court decision legalizing interracial marriage throughout the United States, and the Law Firm of Cohen, Cohen, and Hirschkop, which represented the Lovings. The panels are located at the corner of King and Royal streets; the law firm was located at 110 N. Royal Street at the time of this momentous decision.

Recording Local Response to Pandemic and Quest for Racial Justice

The City of Alexandria continues two initiatives to recognize and record the Alexandria community's response to two ongoing, historic events: the global COVID-19 pandemic, and the aftermath of the killing of George Floyd on May 25. The City's Office of Historic Alexandria will gather oral histories and collect selected memories, objects, photographs and documents that capture these unprecedented moments in history. These initiatives reach out to residents, businesses, schools, healthcare workers, faith communities and civic organizations to tell these national stories at the local level.

For the first initiative, "Chronicling the Pandemic," the community is encouraged to share stories about living or working in Alexandria during the pandemic; describe how they and their families' lives have changed; show how they have been able to help others; narrate how others have helped them; or illustrate what became different in Alexandria because of the pandemic. Participants can also share artwork, homemade items, photographs, journals or other artifacts that can help document the impact of COVID-19 on the community. To share a story, or to provide information about objects to be considered for acquisition into the City's historical collections, simply complete and submit the Chronicling the Pandemic form.

<https://www.alexandriava.gov/historic/info/default.aspx?id=115435>

The second initiative, "The Legacy of George Floyd and Alexandria's Response," invites the community to share signs, t-shirts, flyers, photographs, journals, personal stories, and artifacts that document local vigils and protests. With the murder of George Floyd, the continued push for racial equity in America reached a breaking point. Millions of people in the United States and around the world are demanding that institutions and political leaders address the disparity in treatment of African Americans. Since the dawn of American slavery in 1619, African Americans have fought for freedom, citizenship and equality in daily life.

Items accepted for donation to the City's historical collections will be housed at the Alexandria Black History Museum. To share a story or to provide information about objects that might be considered for the project, complete the Legacy of George Floyd: Documenting Alexandria's Response form.

The mission of history museums is to document and preserve our history accurately, so that all may learn from it. The Office of Historic Alexandria through the Alexandria Black History Museum wants to document your stories from this incredible moment in American history. Please consider donating your protest placards, your buttons, stickers, artwork and t-shirts. We hope you will also work with us to tell your stories through our Oral History Program.

Share your reaction, stories and experiences about living or working in Alexandria during these events. How has the death of George Floyd and the subsequent national

As Alexandrians continue facing challenging times during the pandemic, individuals have rallied in their spirit of giving, whether it be in time, talents or resources with no shortage of opportunities to get involved. For those new to the city, finding the right opportunity can be confusing but a good place to start is Senior Services of Alexandria.

Senior Services of Alexandria uses volunteers for Meals on Wheels deliveries as well as the Friendly Visitor Program, currently being done virtually, and the Groceries to Go service. With many of SSA's usual retiree volunteers scaling back due to COVID-19 concerns, younger volunteers are needed to help fill the gap.

"Right now you cannot be older than 65 to volunteer for our in-person services," said SSA Executive Director Mary Lee Anderson. "We can use older volunteers to help with the Friendly Visitor program, which is virtual, so anyone can help make calls to older seniors to check in and keep them connected to the community."

The in-person SSA services include Meals On Wheels delivery and the Groceries to Go program.

"For Meals On Wheels we need younger, healthy volunteers who are able to volunteer for 2 hours once a week," Anderson said. "The Groceries to Go program matches a volunteer up with a senior to provide grocery shopping once every two weeks. But anybody can be a virtual Friendly Visitor so we welcome anyone who is interested in volunteering with us."

Carpenter's Shelter, the city's homeless shelter, uses volunteers for administrative tasks and meal services. Volunteer Alexandria will help connect individuals with a nonprofit organization or city agency that needs assistance and suits their interests.

The American Legion provides support and services for veterans from World War II through the War on Terror. Members also volunteer in numerous community activities, including Rebuilding Together Alexandria, which works year-round to repair and rehabilitate homes free of cost for those in need, including the elderly, persons with disabilities, military veterans and families with children.

Since 1948, the Alexandria Sportsman's Club has been providing scholarships to high school athletes through fundraising events and monthly meetings that feature speakers such as NFL Hall of Famer Darrell Green.

One of the oldest organizations in the city is the Departmental Progressive Club. Originally founded in 1927 when recreational facilities were segregated, the DPC's mission is "the creation of wholesome recreation, the encouragement of good character and the fostering of fellowship among its members."

9 Spots for Outdoor Dining in Alexandria

BY HOPE NELSON

Over the past six months, restaurants across Alexandria have had to get creative in the face of unprecedented challenges. As the COVID-19 pandemic took hold, outdoor dining options have become more important than ever, while some eateries are old pros on the topic, some have had to switch up their plans – and fast. Here are nine restaurants who are getting it right.

Augie's, 1106 King St.

Mussels a million ways. A hefty menu of beers to choose from. Add in the top sports matchups of the day and what do you have? The side patio at Augie's.

The staff has plenty of practice catering to outdoor diners; the patio opened well before the restaurant inside made its debut. Have a seat, lift a glass and breathe in the fall air.

Caphe Banh Mi, 407 Cameron St.

Situated as it is on Cameron Street, Caphe Banh Mi's outdoor tables are perfectly positioned to watch the world go by. Order up a piping-hot bowl of pho, a noodle or rice dish, or a banh mi sandwich and take in the socially distanced landscape around you.

Chadwicks, 203 Strand St.

The all-American restaurant on The Strand has spread its wings from its normal outdoor table format. As well as keeping several tables close to the front door, Chadwicks has also expanded its reach to the sidewalk across the street, adding several more tables with plenty of distance.

From burgers to weekend brunch, Chadwicks' menu is extensive and caters to nearly every palate.

Front Porch, 2000 Mount Vernon Ave.

The outdoor beer garden that's been a longtime extension of Evening Star Café has now taken center stage in this age of pandemic. Its footprint has extended to the "back yard," as well, and its menu, too, has expanded to accommodate those who are popping in for more than just a quick sip.

The Garden, 1503 Mount Vernon Ave.

On the edge of Del Ray, The Garden is an oasis in the middle of crazy times. Make a reservation for a table and enjoy the wide-open space to sip on a beer or two, have a taco, sausage or salad, and take a deep breath. (And you don't want to miss the beignets that appear like magic on weekend mornings.)

100 block of King Street

Looking for an outdoor spot in the middle of all the action? The city government didn't close the 100 block of King Street off to car traffic for nothing. There's a veritable socially distant party going on in that block, which encapsulates Mia's, the Fish Market, Landini

Brothers, the Wharf, two ice cream shops and more.

Lost Dog Café, 808 N. Henry St.

One of the city's hidden gems, Lost Dog Café's patio is in a tucked-away spot adjacent to the restaurant, off the beaten path and away from most foot and all car traffic. From the patio, order up more than a dozen beers on draft, and pair your brew with a pizza, sandwich, salad or pasta dish. You'll certainly want an order of "dog collars" – onion rings – to share at the table as well, so go ahead and put it on the list.

Taverna Cretekou, 818 King St.

To sit on the back patio of Taverna Cretekou is to transport yourself to a little spot along the Mediterranean. As music plays softly and waitstaff bustles about, take a deep breath in and relax. A glass of Greek wine, a plate of hummus and pita bread to start the proceedings ... the world is your oyster.

Yunnan by Potomac, 814 N. Fairfax St.

Yunnan by Potomac offers a wide array of noodle and mixian dishes from the Yunnan province of China. Pull up a chair in the restaurant's new outdoor dining space in front of the building and let the menu take you to another land.

to allow women to vote. (Unfortunately, the US Senate is still holding this bill hostage and denying the necessary ratification.)

Let us hope this right to "early voting" in Virginia is firmly enshrined in our state's laws, and not subject to any partisan whims in the years to come. The Republicans in the General Assembly should now embrace the goal to improve access to voting for all eligible people, and to make that process as easy as possible.

This is the first time in 25 years that Democrats have held the majority in both houses and that's why reformation of voting rules and regulations became possible. Going forth, let's make this a bipartisan goal.

Alexandria's Failed Experiment with Wards

Del Ray forced a ward system on Old Town. It didn't end well.

By MICHAEL LEE POPE
GAZETTE PACKET

Del Ray was furious. The Alexandria City Council was dominated by members from Old Town, and they took action in the interest of Old Town. People in Del Ray felt neglected and unheard. The elected members of council did not include one single solitary member from their neighborhood, and so people there were demanding the city abandon its at-large system of representation on the City Council and adopt a ward system similar to the one the city had before adopting the city manager form of government.

The year was 1932. Del Ray had only been annexed from Arlington two years earlier, and people who lived in the former town of Potomac were still mad about it. They fought annexation and lost. According to local legend, residents of Potomac were so angry about being annexed into the city of Alexandria they retaliated by throwing all the town records into a giant bonfire instead of heading them over to city officials. The years that followed weren't easy on Del Ray, which struggled to find its place alongside their new neighbors in Old Town.

"Even though officially incorporated into Alexandria by 1930, there was still a strong sense of being something separate," wrote Melissa Butler, a historic researcher who was hired by the Del Ray Citizens Association to examine the history of the town after its annexation into Alexandria.

As the crow flies, the two neighborhoods were only a few blocks away. Culturally, though, they were on the other side of the planet. Old Town was metropolitan and racially diverse, a place with 57 bars and comparatively loose morals. The culture in Del Ray, on the other hand, was heavily influenced by the crusade led by Commonwealth's Attorney Crandal Mackey to shut down a corrupt race track that was once located there. It was a neighborhood that prided itself on a strict code, with slaughterhouses and drinking saloons expressly forbidden. It was a racist brand of progressivism, excluding anyone who wasn't white from living in the newly created town.

"They apparently saw no irony in being progressive and racist," explained Del Ray historian Leland Ness during the 100 year anniversary of the town's creation.

The conflict between Old Town and Del Ray was intractable. One was racially diverse and libertine. The other was austere and racist. Fortunately for Del Ray, leaders there were able to persuade Del. Fred Birrell (D-Alexandria), a former City Council member, to introduce legislation in Richmond allowing wards in Alexandria. The charter change expanded the City Council from five members to nine members, one from six wards and three at-large members. The bill had support from Del Ray and Rosemont. It also had lots of opposition, including the Chamber of Commerce, the Alexandria City Council and Mayor Edmund Ticer.

The election took place on March 29,

Albert Smoot

1932, and the vote was overwhelmingly in favor of council by wards. The vote was almost two to one: 1,819 votes for the ward plan, and 927 votes to retain the at-large plan. Unsurprisingly, the most decisive victory was in Del Ray, where the margin of victory was five to one.

THE HISTORY OF WARDS in Alexandria dates back to the creation of the District of Columbia, when the city was incorporated into the new federal city. With the exception of the Civil War and its aftermath, the city had wards for all of the 19th century and the first two decades of the 20th century. Then Alexandria ditched its outdated system in favor of a more modern city manager form of government in 1921. That seemed to work pretty well until 1930, when the city annexed a hostile part of Arlington that was deeply skeptical of City Hall.

Alexandria's second experience with wards did not go well. The city's new council members believed they had power to administer the city along with the city manager. This led to city officials receiving conflicting orders, one set of demands from the appointed city manager and another set of demands from the ward heelers. Not only did they disagree on which candidates should be appointed to key jobs at City Hall, they also had their hands in the treasury.

It wasn't long before half a million dollars was misappropriated to unauthorized projects. The chairman of the City Council's finance committee spent it on building and maintaining streets when the city manager already had those funds earmarked for other things. Inevitably the jumbled finances led to higher taxes, which created a movement to get rid of the ward system once and for all.

The movement to return Alexandria to a City Council of at-large members was a slow burn. They were able to get a referendum on the ballot in 1944, but voters rejected it. Then conflicts at City Hall erupted in a series of high profile resignations. That led to a petition with 1,000 signatures asking the Circuit Court to order a referendum.

The court didn't even have a chance to consider the petition because Del. Armistead Boothe (D-Alexandria) beat the judges to the punch, introduced legislation in the General Assembly calling for a referendum on ditching the ward system. The bill apparently came as a surprise to city officials, who had no knowledge he intended to introduce it. Gov. Bill Tuck signed the bill, and an election was scheduled for March 2, 1948.

"The at-large plan is the only means of realizing the citywide planning so vitally needed," said Albert Smoot, a businessman who would later be elected to the City Council.

Voters had two options. One was to retain the existing City Council system, which had nine members — six elected from wards and three chosen at large. The other option was seven members, all of whom would be elected at-large. Supporters of the at-large system argued removing sectional interests would attract better candidates to lead the city. Advocates for the existing ward system warned the City Council would have the ability to overlook the interests of part of the city without facing consequences.

"The ward plan gives the most direct representation," said Vice Mayor George Bender.

Voters went with the at-large choice, putting in place a system the city still has to this day. The vote was clear repudiation of the ward system, although the results were not as decisive as the 1932 election: 2,757 votes in favor of returning to an at-large City Council and 1,710 votes for keeping the ward system.

Alexandria/Mount Vernon Nonprofits

Many nonprofits in the city and nearby need your help to continue to rise to the need during the dual health and economic crisis of the pandemic.

There are literally hundreds, probably thousands, of ways to give locally, financially, food and other goods, volunteer time. Here are a few ideas. Please let us know what we have missed.

Where to Give Locally

❖ ALIVE! Alexandria; 2723 King St, Alexandria, VA 22302; 703-837-9300; ALIVE! serves thousands Alexandrians annually with shelter; low-cost early childhood education and childcare; financial help for rent, utilities, medical care and other critical needs; emergency food; and deliveries of donated furniture and houseware. www.alive-inc.org

❖ Alice's Kids (@alicewillhelp) aliceskids.org P.O. Box 60, Mount Vernon, VA 22121 When a child is raised in poverty they suffer both publicly and privately. When there is no food in the refrigerator, no electricity or heat, these are hardships that they can keep hidden from their peers. But, when that same child can't afford to pay for the band field trip, a pair of glasses, a chorus outfit or a new pair of shoes, these are indignities that are evident to their classmates. Alice's Kids pays for these relatively inexpensive items in the hopes of preserving the dignity of the child. It helps children from all over the Mount Vernon area through small acts of kindness. ❖ At Home in Alexandria (AHA) is a nonprofit village that builds and sustains a 55+ community to successfully navigate aging. Together, we share activities, programs and services, including access to needed assistance. Our vision is for AHA to be an advocate for older Alexandrians to live safe, active and connected lives. AHA is a membership organization, which means you pay an annual membership fee that, in turn, entitles you to request services from AHA for an entire year.

These services include transportation, errands, technical support, light maintenance, organizing and decluttering, short-term pet or lawn care, and much more. 3139 Mt. Vernon Ave. Alexandria, VA 22305-2669 (703) 231-0824 Email: aha@athomeinalexandria.org Website: www.athomeinalexandria.org ❖ Animal Welfare League of Alexandria, 703-746-4774, www.alexandrianimals.org, Pet adoptions, spay and neuter assistance, education and community service and outreach.

❖ ACT for Alexandria, 703-739-7778, www.actforalexandria.org, Nonprofit and donor services.

❖ Alexandria Tutoring Consortium, 703-549-6670 ext. 119

<https://alexandriatutors.org/>, Tutoring for Alexandria City Public Schools kindergarten and first grade students who are struggling to read. Mission: To help Alexandria City Public School students read on or above grade level by the end of kindergarten and first grade. Donate now to fund its mission of making sure that every child in Alexandria can read and succeed.

❖ Carpenter's Shelter, 703 548-7500, www.carpentersshelter.org, Homeless services and programs including education and case management.

Obituary

Dr. Edward McCafferty, of Alexandria, VA, passed away on September 21, 2020. He was born on November 28, 1937 to Sylvester and Kathryn McCafferty and was raised in Wilkes, PA. He attended Wilkes College and earned his Bachelors of Science degree in Chemistry. He then attended Lehigh University in Bethlehem, PA to earn his masters and eventually his Ph.D in chemistry. He also received a master's degree from John Hopkin's University in applied mathematics.

Dr. McCafferty worked for the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, gaining industrial experience from 1955-1959 as a Research Engineer. He then worked at the Naval Research Laboratory as the lead scientist in corrosion metals for 32 and a half years. He had published extensively in the fields of corrosion science and surface chemistry. He wrote the textbook "Introduction to Corrosion Science."

In his years of being a successful scientist, Dr. McCafferty received the Jerome Kruger Award in Corrosion Science, Baltimore-Washington chapter of NACE in 2003 and the Victor K. LaMer Award of the American Chemical Society in 1971. He was a Fellow of the Electrochemical Society and was the 2007 recipient of the H.H. Uhlig Award of the Electrochemical Society for excellence in corrosion research. He was the past Chairman of the Corrosion Division of the Washington Chapter of the Electrochemical Society. He also was a Robert A. Welch Postdoctoral Fellow at the University of Texas with Prof. Norman Hackerman (1968-1970). He served 60 years as a member of the American Chemical Society. He had been a visiting scientist in the Department of Chemistry and the Center for Adhesive and Sealant Science at Virginia Tech University from 1996-1997.

Edward lived and raised his family in Alexandria, VA before residing in Maryland for a short time. He taught at the George Washington University and worked as a consultant while living in Alexandria. Aside from his many interests in science, he enjoyed listening to baseball games on the radio or watching the games in person. He also enjoyed writing poetry.

He is survived by his wife, Mary McCafferty; his children, Chris and Colleen, and his grandchildren, Liam and Rees; and his sister Dolores McCafferty. A memorial celebration will be held at a later date. In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions may be made to Parkinson's Foundation, Wilkes University or Lehigh University.

Online condolences may be made on www. barrancofuneralhome.com

And So It Continues

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

Two-plus weeks into my thyroid cancer treatment, all is as I anticipated. I'm still not in a comfort zone, routine wise, nor side-effect wise, I am feeling some predicted discomfort. I won't self-indulge and list the difficulties that I'm having. I will say that even though I'm extremely thankful not to have experienced any of the more severe side effects (blood clots, arrhythmia), I have felt something. The 'something' I've felt has been made more complicated due to the synthroid pill I take daily, since I had my thyroid surgically removed in late January, 2020. The proper dosage, prescribed to replace the function of the thyroid is not easy to determine. As such, I'm not exactly feeling myself. I'm not sure who it is I'm feeling (as Groucho said because he could never get that close), but it's not who I've come to feel.

The complication I refer to is the effect on my thyroid replacement medication (synthroid) by my thyroid cancer pills. What happens, I'm told, is that the synthroid's effectiveness is partially mitigated by the cancer medication and as a result, I need regular lab work to monitor the situation and maintain proper thyroid replacement. If my thyroid hormone is too low, I'll feel tired and unmotivated. And since a side effect of the thyroid cancer medication is among others, fatigue, I am tired for two reasons: the cancer drug itself and the effect the same cancer drug has on the synthroid pill, which has everything to do with my energy level.

Now, not only am I a two-for-the-price-of-one cancer patient (non small cell lung cancer and thyroid cancer), I am also a thyroid cancer patient being treated for cancer and for the replacement of the thyroid. As a result, in addition to juggling two cancers, I am also juggling one cancer with two semi competing side effects: feeling tired due to low thyroid hormone and feeling tired as a side effect of the thyroid cancer treatment. I imagine one or the other would be manageable but simultaneously, not so much. (I guess it's another BOGO-type situation).

Granted, it's a living and it sure beats the alternative. Still, I was hoping one set of side effects would be enough rather than having to consider a second set (side effects of the side effects, if you will). My concern is compounded by something my oncologist was wary of doing years ago: Treating the side effects, in addition to treating the cancer. Moreover, he said that often it's the side effects that become so debilitating and harmful that the actual cancer treatment itself has to be stopped. And though your quality of life might improve - with the reduction/elimination of the side effects, the cancer is now left untreated and cancer left untreated generally speaking, doesn't usually mind it's own business, if you know what I mean? In either scenario, you're unlikely to be smelling any roses.

And not 'smelling any roses' is what I'm most worried about. Stopping treatment for the thyroid cancer would be bad enough, but what about my previous pre-existing stage IV, non small cell lung cancer diagnosed Feb. 2009? I'm currently not receiving any treatment for that as we defer to the thyroid cancer. If I have to stop the thyroid cancer treatment because of the side effects, will I then re-start the lung cancer treatment for which I had very minor side effects. Is treating the back-up (so to speak) cancer better than not treating the new primary: thyroid cancer? As you can possibly tell, I am potentially between a rock and a very hard place.

Nevertheless, as my oncologist emailed me a month or so ago when we received the results of my third tumor biopsy (which was taken from a tumor inside my lung rather than outside from a lymph node), "Thyroid cancer is better than lung cancer." And though I certainly liked the sound of that when I first read it, the present complications were not yet a part of the discussion. But that's what being a cancer patient is all about: an evolving existence of good, bad and indifferent information with nary a guarantee in sight.

Alexandria celebrated essential workers in May as the pandemic continued to affect the community.

There's No Place Like Home of the Unknown Revolutionary War Soldier and the National Inventors Hall of Fame.

Another Alexandria landmark is the Captain Rocky Versace Plaza and Vietnam Veterans Memorial. Located in front of the Mount Vernon Recreation Center, the plaza honors the 68 Alexandrians who lost their lives in the Vietnam War.

In the West End are the Fort Ward Museum and Historic Site and the Winkler Botanic Reserve, a tranquil nature sanctuary tucked in the shadows of the BRAC center and Interstate 395.

One of the city's most obvious landmarks is also one of its best kept secrets. Located on 36 acres overlooking Old Town, the George Washington National Masonic Memorial was built in the 1920s as a memorial and museum highlighting the contributions of Freemasons to the United States. The structure also serves as a research center, library, community center and performing arts center and offers one of the best panoramic views of the city.

Tucked away on a side street in Old Town is the less obvious "Spite House." At just 7-feet wide, it is one of the tiniest historic homes in the nation. Built in 1830, the private residence was constructed by John Hollensbury using the existing brick walls of the adjacent homes to prevent horse-drawn wagon traffic from using the alleyway.

King Street in Old Town and Mount Vernon Avenue in Del Ray serve as the shopping and dining hubs of the city. Both are lined with locally owned boutiques and restaurants that are open and adapting to COVID-19 guidelines.

The Birchmere in Arlandria has reopened for live performances while a wide variety of virtual classes are available for children and adults at The Little Theatre of Alexandria on Wolfe Street, where Dermot Mulroney and Academy Award winner Marcia Gay Harden honed their craft.

Even as the pandemic has changed the landscape of the city, there really is no place like Alexandria to call home.
