Matrix, Sunlight Discussed at Public Safety Committee

Community, advocacy groups and police give more than 2,500 suggestions on police reform; Governor signs reform bills from special session.

BY KEN MOORE
THE CONNECTION

Police reform includes improving morale for police officers. “I’ve met with hundreds of Fairfax County police officers in recent months, in group settings and individually,” said Public Safety Chairman Rodney Lusk (Lee), “and to a person they have told me morale within the police department is the lowest that it has ever been.”

“This is a public safety issue that must be addressed in order to ensure that our officers are performing at the highest level possible, and that we are retaining the highly skilled law enforcement professionals that we have invested so much time and resources in training,” said Lusk.

“I’m glad to see that here, formally, as you know,” said Supervisor Pat Herrity (Springfield). “We’re already a little late.”

On Tuesday, Oct. 27, Lusk announced a Community Input Matrix, a database of 32-pages of policy suggestions from residents, advocacy groups and law enforcement on the topic of police reform. These are suggestions from the community and groups, not official positions of the Board of Supervisors.

Lusk received and sorted more than 2,500 submissions over the last three months.

At the Board’s Public Safety Committee meeting he shared the suggestions he has received with the greatest frequency and items the Board of Supervisors could address in the near term.

ACCURACY AND ACCESS to public safety data was highlighted, including the need for FCPD to ensure its technology vendor has the capability to meet current needs, including gathering ethnic and demographic data.

James Walkinshaw (Braddock) said immediate release of data is critical. “Sunlight is the best disinfectant,” he said. “My view on data is to put the data out there and let people discuss it.”

Some advocates suggested the quarterly release of arrest and use of force data rather than waiting for annual reports issued by police.

“It’s important for all of us to know that both sets [total arrests and arrests of Fairfax residents] show disproportionate numbers,” with Black and Latino people overrepresented, said Walkinshaw. “That doesn’t mean that all of our police officers are racists; the world isn’t quite that simple. But it does mean that there are structures in our society, including here in Fairfax County, that push us towards a justice system that is disproportionate and unequal.”

SOME SUGGESTIONS came from the Fairfax County Police Civilian Review Panel.

Newly passed legislation at the state level could allow the Board of Supervisors to give new authority to the Civilian Review Panel, including investigative power. Lusk said the Board could also authorize hiring of an Executive Director for the review panel.

“We have a pretty big grouping and a serious number of requests and recommendations that have come in, so the idea here is to figure out how do we start to disaggregate them and take steps to act on them,” said Lusk. “We’re going to have to make a decision pretty much on each of them and will have some sort of response.”

Some matrix items will be referred to existing working groups to report back to the Public Safety Committee, for example the Body Camera Working Group and the Chief’s Data Working Group.

Included are some of the other near term possibilities:

- ❖ Consider and discuss implementation of state legislation related to the decertification of law enforcement officers who have been terminated or resigned for misconduct.

- ❖ Review training, recruitment and retention standards

- ❖ Accelerate the expansion of crisis intervention training for first responders.

- ❖ Build upon existing department efforts to expand cultural sensitivity and implicit bias training.

- ❖ Review entry level pay and benefits standards that may be affecting recruitment.

- ❖ Conduct a joint review with the School Board of student diversion programs to address inequities.

- ❖ Direct staff to undertake a review and update of the Ad-Hoc Committee recommendations.

BOARD OF SUPERVISORS Chairman Jeff McKay called the Matrix “a parking lot of ideas” that, in the future, “must be adjudicated by this Board based on data, input, conversation, and each of these would have to be acted on in some form.”

“Some of these will go off to other committees, some will go through this committee, but none of them will go anywhere before they come to the full Board for adoption,” said McKay.

AT THE STATE LEVEL, Gov. Ralph Northam signed new laws on Sunday, Nov. 1, 2020, including House Bill 5055 and Senate Bill 5035, which empower localities to create civilian law enforcement review boards. These new laws also permit civilian review boards the authority to issue subpoenas and make binding disciplinary decisions. Northam signed Senate Bill 5014, which mandates the creation of minimum crisis intervention training standards and requires law enforcement officers complete crisis intervention training.

Senate Bill 5030, omnibus police reform legislation, incorporates a number of critical reform measures passed by the House of Delegates including:

House Bill 5099 prohibits law enforcement officers from seeking or executing no-knock search warrants, making Virginia the third state to do so.

House Bill 5069 limits the circumstances in which law enforcement officers can use neck restraints.

House Bill 5029 requires law enforcement officers to intervene when they witness another officer engaging or attempting to engage in the use of excessive force.

House Bill 5049 reduces the militarization of police by prohibiting law enforcement from obtaining or using specified equipment, including grenades, weaponized aircraft, and high caliber firearms.

House Bill 5109 creates statewide minimum training standards for law enforcement officers, including training on awareness of racism, the potential for biased profiling, and de-escalation techniques.

House Bill 5104 mandates law enforcement agencies and jails request the prior employment and disciplinary history of new hires.

House Bill 5108 expands and diversifies the Criminal Justice Services Board, ensuring that the perspectives of social justice leaders, people of color, and mental health providers are represented in the state’s criminal justice policymaking.

House Bill 5051 strengthens the process by which law enforcement officers can be decertified and allows the Criminal Justice Services Board to initiate decertification proceedings.

House Bill 5045 makes it a Class 6 felony for law enforcement officers to “carnally know” an arrestee or detainee.

Governor Northam also signed Senate Bill 5018 which allows individuals serving a sentence for certain felony offenses who are terminally ill to petition the Parole Board for conditional release; and amended House Bill 5148 and Senate Bill 5034 which allow for increased earned sentencing credits. The Governor proposed a six-month delay to give the Department of Corrections sufficient time to implement this program.

Time for Being Thankful

BY KENNETH R. "KEN" PLUM
STATE DELEGATE (D-36)

COMMENTARY

Next week is the formal day set aside for thanksgiving. For many that means food, and I love the foods associated with the holiday of Thanksgiving. It is a time of generosity as many people and groups make sure that everyone has something to eat at least on that day. For others the meaning of Thanksgiving may be the sales that come with unique bargains that are offered on "Black Friday" although I do not know how those sales will be accommodated during a pandemic. Certainly the crowds pressed against the front doors of stores about to open would not be safe nor would the rush to the best bargains be a good idea.

Some believe that the first Thanksgiving occurred on December 4, 1619, when Captain John Woodlief and 35 Englishmen landed at what is now known as Berkeley Plantation. They immediately fell to their knees as the charter under which they were sailing required giving thanks to the good Lord for their safe passage from what had been a rough voyage and for the thousands of acres of pristine lands on which they were going to settle. There was no mention of the indigenous people who had occupied the land for as many as 15,000 years before their arrival. More than a year later at Plymouth Settlement a festival occurred that included settlers and indigenous people in what is more often referred to as the first Thanksgiving.

Thanksgiving as a holiday on the fourth Thursday of November dates to a proclamation issued by President Abraham Lincoln on October 3, 1863. Even in the midst of a civil war, Lincoln reminded the Nation of "the blessings of fruitful fields and healthful skies" under the "providence of Almighty God." Lincoln found that "a civil war of unequalled magnitude and severity" had not "arrested the plough, the shuttle or the ship" and "the country, rejoicing in the consciousness of augmented strength and vigor, is permitted to expect continuance of years with large increase in freedom...the gracious gifts of the Most High God."

The spirit of Lincoln should be with us as we celebrate Thanksgiving this year. Our institutions of government have been tested over the last nearly four years as seldom before. The voters have largely dispersed those who showed little respect for our values and traditions. It will soon be less painful to read the morning newspaper or to listen to the evening news. There will be fewer times of looking at social media with disbelief at the actions of our national leaders. We will have lively debates as we always do in our democratic republic, but those debates can lead to greater freedoms from inequalities, hunger and health threats.

The pandemic is testing our patience as few other events in our lives have, but we can remind ourselves and others that face masks, social distancing, and no crowds will help to preserve our health as well as that of others. And we can remind ourselves and others that the blessings we ultimately enjoy are not simply of our own making but are as Lincoln reminded us "the gracious gifts of the Most High God"—by whatever name we may call that spirit!

Enjoy your Thanksgiving next week!

School Building Closed? Try a Park

NOVA PARKS EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

Families across Northern Virginia are challenged with online education. This is the most challenging for elementary school children with shorter attention spans.

For those parents looking for additional resources to help their young learners, your regional park may have some of the answers. Even during a pandemic, in-person learning can happen, particularly when that learning is taking place outside, with masks and socially distanced. That is exactly the formula that is being used at Potomac Overlook Regional Park in Arlington with their Schoolyard Explorers Series.

Schoolyard Explorers is a program of in-person classes taught by a naturalist that ties in with the Virginia Standards of Learning (SOLs). There are two one-hour sessions on each subject and appropriate for each grade:

- Weather – designed for 1st graders
- Forces and Motion – designed for 2nd graders
- Ecosystems – designed for 3rd graders
- Water – designed for 4th and 5th graders

This is a great way to supplement online learning with some in-person instruction in a fun park setting that reinforces the materials covered in the state curriculum for science.

"I have participated in several of the Schoolyard Explorers classes at Potomac Overlook with my 1st grader," remarked Arlington mother, Mary Sanders. "The topics and content of the programs are a great supplement to his distance learning, and the classes offer a fantastic opportunity to get outside and away from screens," she continued.

The Carlyle House in Alexandria recently had a program for 3rd – 6th graders called "Discoveries through Trash," which introduced children to archeology.

For those wanting a fully online or hybrid experience, the NOVAparks.com web site has a new interactive virtual tour of Aldie Mill. This innovative and interactive tool uses the 200-year-old mill to teach both history and science. There are three educational experiences available: Simple Machines, History of Aldie Mill, and Eyewitness to the Civil War. After exploring this information-rich site, you can tour the mill in person on the weekends and see where it all happened.

The remarkable historic resources of our region provide many opportunities to learn for people of all ages. Carlyle House in Alexandria, Balls Bluff Battlefield in Leesburg, or Mt. Defiance Battlefield in Middleburg all offer a variety of tours on the weekends. Bring your face mask and hand sanitizer and explore a part of our areas that is new to you. You can find information on the schedule and registration information on the NOVAparks.com web site.

While fun and recreation is the first thing most people think about parks, they are also places of learning. With schools online and children struggling to learn, getting outdoor and learning is a win-win for everyone.

A small group from McLean and Great Falls comes together informally at the Great Falls Freedom Memorial for Veterans Day 2020.

A dozen or so hardy souls quietly gathered in the drenching rain at the Great Falls Freedom Memorial at the 11th hour of the 11th day of the 11th month to pay tribute to America's veterans in an unofficial ceremony. Even though the Great Falls Freedom Memorial website announced, "Due to the Covid-19 pandemic, the 2020 Veterans Day Ceremony will not be held," the printed words did not stop them. According to Andy Wilson, president of the Friends of the Great Falls Freedom Memorial and a retired Army Ranger officer, he and his wife Nancy told a few friends they would meet informally regardless of the rain. "From there, it was word of mouth," he said.

So, it happened that one hundred and two years after hostilities on the Western Front of World War I ceased on Nov. 11, 1918, a small group, mostly adults from Great Falls and McLean, according to Wilson, returned to the memorial plaza despite the pandemic. The memorial's monument of local glacial rock and its granite curb, inscribed with words such as courage, patience and love, principles held by those who give of themselves for liberty and freedom, had been installed three years after 9-11.

It was a place of comfort and pride even though the citizens stood alone under umbrellas for a home-spun ceremony to commemorate Veterans Day 2020 and teach the young. There was no crowd of a hundred; no Langley High School Madrigals singing patriotic songs; no U.S. Marine Corps Color Guard Detachment presenting the color.

and present for their service," said vice president of the Friends of the Great Falls Freedom Memorial, retired Lt. Commander Dr. John "Sandy" Pidgeon, who served as a Navy SEAL. "If everybody pushes their umbrellas together, we can have a canopy," he suggested.

ANDY WILSON, president of the Friends of the Great Falls Freedom Memorial and retired Army Ranger, delivered the invocation. Wilson said he found it on the internet and thought it very interesting. "On the heels of a heated Presidential race, this is a day to unite, to remember and pray, to show our gratitude for so many who have fought for our country...Thank you for reminding us that there's incredible love and sacrifice displayed, when one is willing to stand strong, and fight for freedom."

Pidgeon asked if anyone had family members who served, in what branches, and when. Wilson added, "That's why this Memorial is here. To keep that memory alive... for this community." Corps," said Bill Denk of Great Falls.

With no invited key-note speaker, Wilson took on the role. He shared the story of an American hero of World War I, Sgt. Alvin York, who almost single-handedly captured 132 German troops. He returned home a hero, and when World War II broke out, he helped convince America it must fight again. Quoting York, Wilson said, "Liberty and freedom and democracy are so very precious that you do not fight to win them once and then stop. Liberty and freedom and democracy are prizes awarded only to those people who fight to win them and then keep fighting eternally to hold them."

ENDING THE CEREMONY, Pidgeon prayed, "(God) you know every veteran by name, you know their deeds, you know their hard work, you know their privations in the field, and you know their perseverance in the face of fear...Please draw each one closer to you today as we listen and rejoice in their lives." # McLean Filmmaker Presents 'The Other Side'

A short film inspired by a true story, raising awareness for the Ethiopian orphan crisis.

In 2018, 20-year old filmmaker Josh Leong of McLean traveled to Ethiopia on a mission trip with McLean Bible Church. During his time in the country, he created a documentary series on Ethiopia's abandoned children crisis with Olivia Fournier, another DMV peer. Due to poverty, HIV, chronic illness, and lack of female empowerment programs, there are 5 million vulnerable children in Ethiopia ranging from infancy to 18 years of age. Hundreds of private orphanages have closed due to lack of funding, resulting in millions of vulnerable children often living their entire lives on the streets.

DURING HIS STAY in a boys orphanage, Leong befriended a 17-year old orphan boy named Abel. He learned that Abel would have to leave the orphanage when he turned 18, leaving his younger brother behind. Deeply touched by Abel's story, Leong returned to the US and began his freshman year at the NYU Tisch School of the Arts. In February 2019, he decided to write a film about Abel's life. Alongside first-year classmates including Sofia Bara (producer) and Tom Ingwersen (cinematographer), Leong and team spent the next six months in pre-production for "The Other Side, a narrative short inspired by Abel's true story - all while 7000 miles away.

In early May, Ethan Herisse officially signed onto the project. Herisse was starring in "When They See Us," an Emmy-winning Netflix series directed by Ava DuVernay, set to release on May 31. Herisse was also nominated for Best Supporting Actor at the NAACP Image Awards, alongside Mahershala Ali and Idris Elba. His involvement ultimately paved the way for casting Wayna, a Grammy-nominated Ethiopian recording artist - also based in the DMV.

In July 2019, a small student crew from the US travelled to Addis Ababa, Ethiopia to film for 14 days. Collaborating with local Ethiopian cast and crew, including Ethiopian producer Bemnet Yemesgen, the team filmed in the same orphanages Leong visited in 2018 and even reunited with Abel again. The crew also worked alongside NGOs including DC-based Orphan Care Ethiopia and Great Commission Ministries, who work to support orphanages in the country. Returning from Ethiopia, the crew collaborated with Oscar-winning post production studio, The Mill, and Upper West Sound. The film was also co-scored by Sam Gryzwa and Gavin Brivik, composer of the Netflix series, "Living Undocumented," from producer Selena Gomez.

Addressing the Demands of Virtual University Classrooms

Marymount psychology professor offers solution to distance learning obstacles.

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL
THE CONNECTION

For some students and professors, the loss of in-person contact has disrupted higher education and the experiences that often accompany it.

"I have found that distance learning is riddled with challenges," said senior Sophia Jaimes, a psychology major at Marymount University. "Personally, I am very much a student who learns best when I am in a learning environment with a teacher who I can ask immediate questions to. When I have to use Zoom I find myself often being distracted or, at times, feeling awkward to talk on Zoom since I may not know my peers."

As Marymount and other universities and colleges prepare for all-remote learning after Thanksgiving, students and professors are pondering the ways in which academics will be affected. Linda McKenna Gulyn, Ph.D., a professor of psychology at Marymount, has written a paper that addresses some of the problems that her colleagues and students might be experiencing in the uncharted territory of virtual campuses.

"Colleges and universities are faced with the need to adapt and evolve without a script," said Linda Gulyn, Ph.D., professor of psychology at Marymount University in Arlington. "Hundreds of experienced and highly regarded professors feel like clunky beginners as they redesign and deliver their courses online."

Some professors put undue expectations on students, says Jaimes. "An issue that I have seen recently is where professors and teachers voiced their demands that students have their cameras on during class," she said. "However many students have voiced that they may be uncomfortable doing so and that having cameras on during class is violating their privacy. Professors have said that if students don't respond to their questions, in addition to not having their cameras on, they will kick the student out of the Zoom call."

Dealing with such an obstacle requires mutual trust and awareness, suggests Gulyn. "It's easy to feel suspicious of our students, and I'm pretty sure they can feel the same way," she said. "Pay attention to such messages, because we want our students to feel welcome, accepted and appreciated."

The sudden expectation that one be technologically savvy can cause instructional challenges, particularly in classes where visuals are essential, says Alice E. Petillo,

Marymount University will suspend all in-person classes after the Thanksgiving break, says University spokesman Nick Munson.

Ph.D., professor of mathematics and Marymount University. "For one session my students could hear me but not see the visuals," she said. "I was not able to hear them as they tried to let me know. Once I realized there was an issue, I apologized and let them know I would post a video recap after class."

Accepting that the current level of distance learning requires an unprecedented set of skills can help quell angst around new expectations, Gulyn advises. "Model poise, problem-solving and self-regulation skills for students to succeed in the workplace," she said. "When I goofed-up my class technology for the 20th time, I gratefully received a solution from one of my freshmen."

While college students might not need parental supervision in the way that an elementary or middle school student does, they can face challenges that are equally as daunting. "I think our students are finding it difficult because they are often juggling a lot of other concerns and commitments at the same time as our classes," said Brian P. Flanagan, Ph.D., professor of theology and religious study at Marymount. "Many of my students are watching other siblings or helping them learn while they themselves are in class."

As a result of distance learning, some students are facing new concerns about a lack of necessary resources. "[They] are struggling with access to technology and the internet," said Michael Mills, Ph.D., Vice President, E-Learning, Innovation and Teaching Excellence at Montgomery College. "While the college has done an exceptional job meeting these needs in terms of financial and technological support, the issues are real for our students."

A Education Learning Fun

The quality of instruction delivered by video conferencing platforms is not always equal to that of in-person classes. "I, along with many other friends, have discussed this and feel as though the education we are receiving is below what we could be getting," said Jaimes. "I do want to emphasize, however, that this feeling isn't due to the professors ability to teach, but the stress from having to learn online only without any real connection to your professors or peers."

Such challenges can be addressed through collaboration, says Gulyn. "Pull groups of students together to brainstorm about staying satisfied at our colleges [and] listen to them," she said. "Along the way, they can initiate critical friendships and loving relationships all while taking care to stay healthy."

Instruction by video conference has had some unexpected advantages, notes Flanagan. "I've been really impressed by how committed many of my students have been this semester to their own learning in the face of so many challenges," he said. "Another silver lining is that we've been able to invite colleagues and experts from around the country and world to join us in our [virtual] classroom in a way that was harder to imagine before the pandemic."

Distance learning offers the flexibility of location from which classes can be attended. "Some of my students are able to be more engaged because they don't have to spend time commuting, said Petillo. "My virtual attendance this semester appears to be higher than my typical face-to-face attendance in previous semesters."

Instructors have been forced to gain new skills as a result of distance learning, says Petillo. "I have had to learn new presentation and teaching skills in a compressed time frame," she said. "I am growing in confidence and ability with teaching online. There is more of a personal connection with the class than I had expected."

"I think when we return to our in-person classrooms, we'll both appreciate how much we were able to do online, but also some of the advantages and joys of learning together in person," added Flanagan.

I'm Here to Report

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

As my brother, Richard, has often said: “If the oncologist is happy then I’m happy.” Let me update that sentiment slightly: If the endocrinologist is happy then I’m happy.” And so we should all be happy. Yesterday, I had my post CT scan telephone appointment with my endocrinologist to discuss the previous day’s lab work and the two days previous scan. She was “very encouraged.” “News,” as I told her, “with which I can live.” And more than just the words she spoke, it’s the manner in which she spoke them. Her tone was positive, uplifting; she was very pleased. I could almost see her smiling. After hearing it all, she didn’t need to tell me to have a nice weekend. I was well on my way. Oddly enough, I have learned to take good news in stride. It’s the bad news that has a tendency to knock me off my gait.

Prior to this Friday morning call, I had received, electronically, as I usually do, the automated releases of both my lab work and the radiologist’s report. Having been down this road for nearly 12 years now, I am not unaware of discouraging results. The words I read and the numbers I see always tell a story. And even though I’m somewhat experienced, the interpretation and meaning of it all doesn’t automatically jump out at me. Oh sure, I’m familiar enough and certainly know what lab results (levels) generally speaking are problematic (creatinine and bilirubin particularly). But there’s so much more that I don’t know. Moreover, there is no real breakdown-type summary to clarify beyond all my reasonable doubts as to what is happening in/to my body. I’m sort of left to my own devices. Devices which have proven to be unreliable - and certainly ones not very educated on the matter at hand. If this were about baseball, I wouldn’t be clueless at all. But it’s cancer and science and medicine; all the subjects I know very little about.

Released automatically, I receive the same document that the doctors do. That means what I’m reading is the actual report, written by a doctor for a doctor. The report is full of medical jargon. And though there are “impressions,” provided as well as an organ-by-organ characterization, until I speak with one of my doctors and have them review the report with me, I’m never quite sure if what I think I understand is wishful thinking or whether my worst nightmare is happening during the day.

As a result, there are lots of words and medical assessments that are lost on me. It’s not like reading a baseball box score when I know what everything means and its significance. Sure, there are many familiar words, but there are more that are not. Obviously “no new sites of metastatic disease I can understand and appreciate, literally. But “aortic atherosclerotic calcification” and intrathoracic and axillary lymphadenopathy” I don’t. Understand them? I can barely pronounce them, let alone spell them. And as much information is provided in these reports, I feel as if I need a scorecard to identify all the players and determine what it all means.

Now when I have that follow-up phone call with the endocrinologist/oncologist, the report is explained. However, the explanations are not chapter and verse, they are more like sentence and paragraph. They’re short and hopefully, as it was time, sweet. Of course, I could ask more questions but as the comedian Dennis Miller once joked on the radio: “I don’t care how the popcorn is popped, I just want it to pop.” So too am I less concerned with the popping (details). I want to know if I’m going to live or die. Unfortunately, the reports - and the conversations don’t really offer a glimpse into the future as much as they attempt to clarify the present - which apparently is as good as it is likely to get. If 11 years - and nine months as a cancer patient has taught me anything, it has taught me to be grateful for any good news, however indeterminate.
