Fairfax County School Board Votes for In-Person Learning

Students who opt-in would be due back by March 16.

BY MERCIA HOBSON
THE CONNECTION

Fairfax County Public School students, whose parents or guardians opt for in-person learning for their children, are headed back to the classroom at least two days a week by March 16.

On Feb. 2, the School Board unanimously consented during its work session to support Superintendent Scott Brabrand to proceed with his proposed timeline presented that day in the Return to School Update. According to Megan McLaughlin, Braddock District School Board member, the School Board has the ultimate authority to open and close schools.

During the final minutes of the work session and before the consensus vote, given the Board's apparent agreement on the proposed timeline, Laura Jane Cohen, Springfield District School Board member, said, "I can only vote to support this plan, Dr. Brabrand, if you are going to keep your foot on the pedal of making sure that our teachers are getting the support that they need ... Mr. Smith [Marty Smith, chief operating officer] has done incredible work of trying to get with Inova and figuring out what teachers haven't gotten [the vaccine] and prioritize. But we have to keep going in both directions, full tilt, of continuing to put pressure on to get those vaccines in people's arms and also to make sure folks have what they need in the buildings to be successful," said Cohen.

Cohen added that data must be released in real-time. "Our staff and families deserve to know what they are walking into."

Brabrand said, "We've come this far. I'm not about to quit on the Board, the community, or FCPS. We will see this through."

Brabrand acknowledged the vaccines and the plan for getting children back into schools was only "step one" of getting out of the pandemic. There would be challenges, and they needed to turn their time and attention to doing this well. "I will honor that commitment to you and your colleagues," said Brabrand.

The Board first supported, in a vote of 8-to-2, a procedural action to move forward with a pending consensus vote on the timeline, rather than wait and formally take action during the upcoming Feb. 4 regular meeting. School Board members Karen Keys-Gamarra (At-large) and Tamara Derenak Kaufax (Lee) opposed the consideration to vote on the matter on Feb. 2. "I don't believe that's how we inform the community," said Keys-Gamarra.

ra. Given the eight votes of support to move forward with the consensus vote, the Board went ahead. Reading out the votes by name, McLaughlin announced the superintendent's proposed timeline's unanimous support as presented.

"I hope you can see this is a more positive overall outcome," said McLaughlin. "We support this school division moving forward with its best efforts to educate our children. ... This next step to returning to in-person learning for those who have elected it is critical."

Since the start of 2021, when all FCPS students returned to virtual learning after coronavirus infection rates surged regionally and nationally, the school division worked on a plan to get all students back in the classroom.

The current downward trend in Covid cases and percent positivity in the County led Brabrand and his leadership team to present their Return to School Update on Feb. 2.

According to Brabrand, those recent COVID trends, along with the Jan. 14 issue of "Interim Guidance for Reopening PreK-12" by the Virginia Department of Education and Virginia Department of Health, the partnership with Inova to vaccinate all staff and educators who wanted it, and finally staffing and operational changes gave him and his leadership team confidence to move forward.

Brabrand had said, "It is our desire to return all our students to in-person learning by March 16, for at least two days a week of in-person instruction."

Brabrand acknowledged the challenges, variants of COVID-19 emerging, recommendations for masking, the vaccine process and supply. "However, our return to in-person plan that we are presenting today is not impacted by these issues at this time."

2021 Virtual Fairfax County Teen Job and Opportunity Fairs in March

For the past few years Supervisor Pat Herrity's office, Fairfax County Public Schools and Connection Newspapers, along with Supervisors' offices, businesses, and community organizations including our local chambers, have hosted very successful teen job fairs and career-building workshops. These events focused on students and young job seekers looking for a variety of employment opportunities; full time, after-school, seasonal positions, internship opportunities, and volunteer positions. The fairs have provided thousands of teenagers the opportunity to get in front of employers and for our employers to find talented Fairfax County students to fill their positions.

This year Herrity is once again teaming up with Connection Newspapers, Fairfax County Public Schools, community chambers and organizations and fellow Board members to bring our community two Fairfax County Teen Job Fairs and Career-Building Workshops. Normally, there are 5-6 fairs at local high schools. With the limitations of the ongoing pandemic, this year's fairs will be hosted virtually through Brazen, a professional virtual job fair platform. The virtual fairs are scheduled for Saturday, March 13, 2-5 p.m. and Saturday, March 20, 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The fairs will be open to all teens in Fairfax County looking for employment, volunteer opportunities, or tips on building their resume. Free online booth space will be provided to businesses and organizations to advertise their available positions. We will also host resume and career building sessions with our Chamber of Commerce partners.

Beginning Feb. 1, students as well as employers can register to attend at this link, www.fairfaxcounty.gov/springfield/teenjobfairs.

First jobs are important, and these events help connect teens with employers and prepare our youth for the workforce. This year especially, students and employers are desperate for opportunities provided by the fair with the hope that some normalcy will begin this summer.

Black History and Regional Parks

In many ways, the history of Northern Virginia is the history of America. It is complicated and has many facets. February is Black History Month and a good time to consider the many stories that our historic places have to share. Here are a few of the Black history stories told through your regional parks.

In 1751, John Carlyle, a wealthy merchant from Scotland, and his wife Sarah Fairfax Carlyle started construction on the largest house in Alexandria. The big house and lavish lifestyle they had was made possible by enslaved people. Many people have called the slave economy "America's original sin."

Twenty years ago, NOVA Parks developed an interpretive video to help tell the slave story that underpins the Carlyle House. And in the last few years, the Carlyle House has hosted genealogy programs that help people discover if their ancestors were enslaved people at this colonial site. Lt. Governor Justin Fairfax discovered his ancestry to the Fairfax family slaves from Maddy McCoy, who leads the 'Breaking Down the Walls of Slavery at the Carlyle House' programs.

In 1854, a young man named Daniel Dangerfield, who had worked at Aldie Mill in Loudoun County, escaped to freedom in Philadelphia. Someone from Virginia spotted him on the streets of Philadelphia, and there was a trial to see if he should be returned to slavery. He won that case, but it was close. He later moved to Canada to be free from the Fugitive Slave Act. The Civil War's primary reason was increasingly northern states were not enforcing the Fugitive Slave Act, as can be seen in the Dangerfield trial. A new interpretive sign telling this story has been installed at Aldie Mill.

In 1889, a fourteen-year-old named Orion Anderson was jailed in Leesburg for chasing a neighbor girl. The Ku Klux Klan took him from the jail and lynched him a few blocks away at a railroad station on land that is today on the W&OD Trail. In the summer of 2019, a moving dedication of the sign that tells this tragic story took place.

In 1915, a group of civic leaders gathered at a house in Falls Church to organize in opposition to a proposed law that would have required Black residents to sell their property and move. The proposed law was what they called a "sunset law" where no one of color could legally be in the town after sunset. The house where they organized was in a Black community called Tinner Hill. Those brave individuals were successful in opposing the proposed sunset law, and that group became the first chapter of the NAACP outside of a major city. In 2015 NOVA Parks partnered with the City of Falls Church, Fairfax County, and the Tinner Hill Heritage Foundation and opened a small park on that site. On Martin Luther King Day this year, NOVA Parks hosted an event at Tinner Hill to unveil new interpretive signs that tell this story.

In 1959, the Northern Virginia Regional Park Authority (NOVA Parks) was established. One of the reasons the local governments in our area chose to create the first regional park authority in Virginia was the State Park System at the time was segregated. Essentially, NOVA Parks was an integrated state park system for the region.

In 1969, NOVA Parks opened the largest pool in Virginia to all people, at Bull Run Regional Park. The same year the public pool in Leesburg was being closed instead of integrating. None of the facilities built by NOVA Parks in the often segregated decades of the 1950s and 1960s were ever segregated.

In 2020, after the killing of George Floyd and Breonna Taylor, Black Lives Matter marches sprung up all over the country. At Algonkian Regional Park, over 2,000 people organized by high school student Ocean Akinotcho came to express their frustration and lack of justice in a peaceful and somber march.

America has a troubled history with justice and racism. The regional parks of Northern Virginia help to tell these stories, from Colonial time to the modern-day. Part of growing as a society is acknowledging our past and learning from it. Black History Month is a time to focus on these important stories.

Electrification of Virginia Transportation

BY KENNETH R. "KEN" PLUM
STATE DELEGATE (D-36)

COMMENTARY

In 1998 I chaired a task force of business and community leaders to collectively document what Northern Virginia needed to do to be an "EV Ready Community." Our work was part of a national effort involving ten communities under the sponsorship of the U.S. Department of Energy and the Electric Vehicle Association of the Americas to prepare for the introduction of electric vehicles. Our inch-thick report was very comprehensive in detailing the infrastructure needed in charging stations, building and roadways, and other changes that electric vehicles would require.

We were ahead of our time. Within about a year of our report the first commercial electric car, EV1, was no longer available and other manufacturers were not offering electric vehicles. Move ahead less than two decades and electric vehicles are becoming commonplace in many areas. I even own one, and on trips in my community I always see more than one.

What happened in the meantime is a greater awareness of our transportation system's contribution to greenhouse gases and pollution. In the United States alone in 2017, the transportation sector accounted for 29 percent of the nation's total emissions of 6.4 billion metric tons of carbon dioxide equivalent, or CO₂e (the CO₂ equivalent of an individual greenhouse gas). Driven largely by the transportation sector's emissions of fossil fuels, concentrations of CO₂ in the atmosphere have risen steadily since the early 1980s, according to the U.S. Energy Information Administration. Interestingly, when there is a recession there is a corresponding dip in emissions.

In addition to the increased awareness of the adverse effects of our conventional transportation on the environment, there has been an increase in the number of entrepreneurs who are willing to make major investments in developing electric cars and other vehicles and increased competition from abroad. A Super Bowl commercial sponsored by General Motors lamented the fact that in Norway 54 percent of the new cars sold are EVs. The president of General Motors announced recently that the company would phase out gasoline vehicles and sell only electric passenger cars and trucks by 2035. Press accounts are that Ford Motor Company is making major investments in electric vehicles and VW that is about to move its US headquarters to Reston will be investing $37 billion in electric vehicles.

In the General Assembly I am a co-patron along with the patron Delegate Lamont Bagby of HB1965 that directs the State Air Pollution Control Board to implement a low-emissions and zero-emissions vehicle program for motor vehicles with a model year of 2025 and later. The legislation will help resolve the problem of consumers in Virginia who want to buy an electric vehicle but must go out of the state to do so. Along with a rebate program the vehicles will become more affordable for persons of limited income. There have been major investments in charging stations throughout the state enabling travel without the fear of running out of juice. You may have noticed the Wawa in Vienna that sells electric charging only but no gas.

I need to review more carefully that report of two decades ago to make sure we are ready for EVs. Ready or not, here they come!

School Board Approves McLean High Boundary Adjustment

Monitoring continues as population explodes in Tysons.

By Mercia Hobson
The Connection

The Fairfax County School Board heard the final words on the McLean/Langley High School Boundary Study during a hybrid regular meeting of the Board held on Feb. 4, 2021. Dr. Ricardy Anderson, Chair (Mason District Representative), called on Dr. Scott S. Brabrand, Division Superintendent, to introduce the topic and make a recommendation. "After extensive community feedback, including feedback from the Jan. 28, 2021, public hearing...staff is recommending Option B as it was presented at the community meeting on Dec. 7, 2020...It will better balance capacity between schools and it will allow staff and FCPS to do continued monitoring of population growth and plan development in Tysons," said Brabrand.

The adjustment, which identified an estimated 190 students at the high school level and 78 students at the middle school level, realigns the boundaries of McLean High School, Langley High School, Longfellow Middle School, and Cooper Middle School. The change adjusts the Colvin Run Elementary School split feeder area, a portion of the Spring Hill Elementary split feeder area, and a portion of Westbriar Elementary from Longfellow Middle-McLean High to Cooper Middle-Langley High.

THE APPROVED PLAN goes into effect at the start of the 2021-22 school year with phasing and grandfathering adopted. The high school option that parents/guardians choose for the 2021-22 school year will determine the students' school through the 2024-25 school year and cannot be changed. Fairfax County Public Schools announced detailed information and what to expect in a Feb. 5 News Release, available on its website.

Option B was not the one that Jeffrey K. Platenberg, assistant superintendent, Facilities and Transportation Services, and member of Superintendent Brabrand's leadership team, presented as staff recommendation at the Board's Jan. 21 regular meeting.

School Board Representative Elaine Tholen (Dranesville District) introduced the motion to adopt Option B of the McLean High School Boundary Study. Karl V. Frisch (Providence District) seconded the motion. Following a Board-approved appeal by Tamara D. Kafufax (Lee District), whose audio was not operational during the vote, the final recorded vote stands at 11-1.

Abrar Omeish, an At-Large member of the School Board, presented the sole dissenting opinion during the discussion before the vote. She said that staff had recommended different things and "the previous time recommended C." According to Omeish, her thought process and decision not to support the motion had nothing to do with the diversity piece but everything to do with thinking long term.

"None of these are good options. We're kind of stuck choosing amongst difficult ones that have pros and cons in every direction...It pains me to be saying any of this and not to feel in good conscious to vote in support...I can't reconcile not finding ourselves here five years later, in the same place, because we didn't make the best adjustment we could have with what we are faced with. We know that the Tysons area is one of the fastest-growing development area(s). We know Marshall High School is so overcrowded that they can't even accommodate kids for IB anymore, transfers for any reason. That whole region is exploding in population."

Following her first approved motion, Tholen introduced a second motion, "a nod to the hardships our Longfellow eighth-graders are undergoing." She mentioned the students' combined stresses of COVID, mid-year admission's policy change for Thomas Jefferson High School for Science and Technology, and boundary change all at the same time. Tholen presented a motion that rising ninth graders residing in the area changed would have the option to attend Langley HS in SY 2021-22 or be grandfathered at McLean HS with transportation provided through 12th grade in the 2024-25 school year.

THE BOUNDARY ADJUSTMENT is another step to alleviate capacity pressures at McLean HS. Modularity will be open later this month and ready to accept high schoolers as they return to school in March.

Fadi Shadid, Co-Chair of the Special Committee on Schools at the Great Falls Citizens Association, wrote in an email, "Of the three options considered, I think Ms. Tholen's and the Board's decision on option B is

Meet Langley High's Teacher of the Year

By Mercia Hobson
The Connection

Langley High School announced its Teacher of the Year 20-21 during a virtual staff meeting. This year's awardee is Tricia M. Poythress, Career and Technical Education (CET) Department Chair. She brings real-world learning and skills to her Marketing students and builds supportive relationships with them.

According to Poythress, she was at home and attending a virtual staff meeting when she learned the recognition. "My doorbell rang. It was Mr. Robertson, assistant principal, with two dozen roses and green and gold Congratulations, Star balloons —Publishers Clearing House style. It was a shock," said Poythress. "Mr. Robertson had his phone, and he was videoing, so he was live during the faculty meeting," she said.

Poythress has been teaching for 35 years and said she believes what makes her a good teacher is the connections she can make with her students. Unlike required graduation coursework, career and technical education courses are electives. Poythress said that the ability to teach students for extended years, many all four years, allows her to watch them develop and to build relationships that, for some, last even beyond their senior year.

"I work very hard to create a place where my students feel comfortable sharing their opinions with me and with each other. We build mutual respect for each other and our differing viewpoints," Poythress said.

According to Robertson, teachers are nominated by fellow teachers, students, and parents. The final nominations are submitted to the school administration, and the teacher is selected. Robertson said that Poythress was chosen because of the number and the narratives submitted, and the information in those narratives. "Many different characteristics make a great teacher of the year. The list is long but includes caring, sense of humor, creativity, engaging lessons, a good listener, etc. Ms. Poythress has all of these and more," he said.

Robertson provided a selection of comments which validated why administrators awarded Poythress Teacher of the Year.

"Mrs. Poythress has been my rock and my inspiration for working so hard during virtual learning." "Mrs. Poythresswould wake up every morning and play music to wake us all up, have a smile on and a happy attitude." "I know I can always go to her if I need help with anything, even if it's not school-related."

While Poythress could retire anytime, she loves teaching too much to do so. "Even if I won the lottery, I'd still go to work. I might have somebody drive me, but I'd still go to work because I genuinely love my job...I love my students, I love Langley and the community."

McLean Scouts Make Blankets for Children in Need

For an Eagle Scout project in December, Eli Witkiewicz enlisted Troop 1130 of McLean and their family members to make fleece blankets for Project Linus, a non-profit organization that provides hand made blankets to children in need [https://www.projectlinus.org]. Materials for blankets were distributed to Troop participants' houses with contactless delivery; Eli held a Zoom meeting where he taught how blankets will be made. In the end, 88 blankets were made by Troop members and their households. In addition, Eli's extended family came through with 105 quilts, including one cousin and aunt who made 50.

This was a perfect project for people spending much of their time at home. "It may seem like a small thing, but we do make positive impacts on people's lives," said Eli.

The Project Linus coordinator from South Lakes High School sent the following message to Eli: "I am a co-founder of the South Lakes High School Parent Teacher Student Association Food pantry. I was leading pantry distribution at SLHS on 12/28 when we distributed blankets from Project Linus . . . and I was the lucky one who handed the unicorn blanket to the little girl whose birthday it was that day. It was such a wonderful moment. We could tell the mom was in a bit of a bad mood that day, and through conversation we found out it was the little girl's birthday, and we showed her the unicorn blanket. She squealed with joy and her eyes beamed. All of us, including her mom, were swept up in her joy. It was so cool. Thanks for making that moment possible."

New Community with Park-Like Environment

McLean's Park Grove neighborhood inspired by former National Parks Director George Hartzog.

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL
THE CONNECTION

A former public servant's creative vision and dedication to preserving parklands was the inspiration behind a new residential area in Northern Virginia. Park Grove, an eight-home community in McLean, Virginia is built on land that was once owned by former National Parks Director George Hartzog.

"His considerable contributions to our national parks formed the seed of the idea for the theme of Park Grove," said Jamie Gulick, Vice President, Gulick Group, the company that developed the neighborhood. "We've designed a warm, park-like environment in the community by using materials that evoke nature, invite sunlight into the homes with high ceilings and abundant windows, and create a clean-lined, peaceful, spa-like feel inside."

"We incorporated his work in a very literal sense with a small sculpture honoring his work in the community park area," added Gulick.

To bring the vision of living as if in nature into (or to) reality, Gulick engaged architect Bill Sutton, President, Sutton Yantis Associates Architects "They gave me a clean canvas to create, and I began my design process with layers and layers of hand sketches," he said. "... A consistent theme in my sketches was using low pitched hipped roof lines and wide eaves echoing the prairie style of Frank Lloyd Wright.

That design aesthetic is consistent throughout each home. "For the interiors, we wanted to complement the linearity of the exteriors inside with clean-lined simplicity," said Gulick. "The black exterior windows are white on the inside to promote an airy feel, and they have only horizontal mullions, so we selected an interior door style that reiterated that shape."

The modern and minimalist design allows the natural surroundings to be integrated into the décor. "The main level ceiling is more than 10 feet tall, and the windows have transoms above to flood the homes with light," said Gulick. "We kept the decor understated, to accentuate the subtlety of the architecture."

A major architectural feature, says Sutton is the stairway leading to the second level. "The upper floor is likewise spacious, with an open loft area at the top of the stairs...and a large open owner's suite," he said. "The dominant feature is the openness of the floor plan."

Plans for the subdivision include expansive bedrooms, each with a walk-in closet and private bathrooms, features that Park Grove's current homeowners enjoy. "They appreciate the loft space upstairs off of the secondary bedrooms, as well as the size and functional design of [those bedrooms], which gives everyone their own private place to unwind," said Julie Zelaska, Principal, Executive Vice President, Smith | Schnider, LLC, who is the sales rep for the community.

Four of the eight homes remain. For more information on Park Grove, visit www.parkgroveinmclean.com.

Vienna Church Presents Drive-in Service

Holy Comforter Episcopal Church in Vienna continues to find innovative and safe ways to stay connected with the community during COVID. Their latest burst of creativity is drive-up church in the parking lot. The priests stand in the back of a pick up truck and attendees line up in the parking lot and listen to the service on the radio. Holy Comforter purchased an FM transmitter for this purpose.

It's great for people who truly miss being on the church property, and who want to see the priests and their friends from the safety of their vehicle. The church also offers a recorded service on its YouTube channel each week and a live Zoom service on some Sundays with a virtual coffee hour.

The next drive-in church is at 3 p.m. on Feb. 13, 2021. Area residents are invited to see the Reverends Jon Strand and Ann Gillespie bundled up in their parkas and conducting a worship service.

More details and photos are on the church website at <http://www.holycomforter.com/Events/EventView.asp?EventID=86418>

Attendees line up in the parking lot and listen to the service on the radio.

Board Approves Boundary Adjustment

the better compromise for Great Falls. It satisfies the various goals well while not excessive on Cooper and Langley's capacities. It is a significant number of students but comes from neighborhoods with little to no future development as compared to other options considered."

Shadid said that an expansion of McLean High School in place of a boundary adjustment would have been the best solution. "It would offer long-term relief for MHS while leaving more room for growth at Langley. We believe that more capacity at MHS is still urgent because of the rapid growth in the two pyramids."

Shadid recommended that the upcoming school bond in the November elections would be a good opportunity to allocate capital to McLean High School. "The McLean and Langley communities should get more involved with county representatives to expand MHS, so we are not in another school overcrowding situation in a few years," he said.

"Clinical Correlation Suggested"

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

Means what exactly? That was the suggestion written by the pathologist after "non small cell lung cancer" was written in the "diagnosis" section of the pathology report completed after my original surgical biopsy was performed at Holy Cross Hospital in early 2009. I had never seen this document until this past week, finally retrieving it after nearly 12 years, represents a kind of symmetry. Though 2009 is when my life as an officially-diagnosed-lung-cancer patient began, I am not at all prepared to say that my current life as a lung cancer patient is over. It's just called something else.

Nor am I prepared to say this document gives me much clarity or satisfaction for that matter. Unfortunately, getting re-diagnosed with papillary thyroid cancer recently doesn't change the past or guarantee the future. It does however, reshape it, potentially - for the better. When it comes to cancers you'd prefer to have and the ones you wouldn't, thyroid cancer, generally speaking is way more preferable than lung cancer. The survivability gap is all you need to know. The side effects and sacrifices required to live with thyroid cancer pale in comparison to those required of lung cancer patients. In fact, if you don't already know it, lung cancer is the leading cause of death among all cancers, by far. Moreover, more people die from lung cancer as do from the next four cancers combined. Lung cancer is a killer. So being reclassified from lung cancer to thyroid cancer is huge. The fact that I've survived so long already, 12 years post diagnosis, means I may have used up some of my unexpected life expectancy however. Still, it beats the alternative.

Originally, I was told my lung cancer was incurable and given a "13 month to two year" prognosis. Presently, as it relates to my current prognosis, it's sort of indefinite. The drug I'm taking is effective for three years. After which, I'm sort of on my own as there are no new drugs in the offing to manage my cancer. In effect, I am once again incurable, as the years of treatment for lung cancer had no effect on the underlying thyroid cancer and did a kind of damage that now means I can be treated but not cured. Quite different than had I been treated for thyroid cancer all along.

Yet, seeing this paperwork from 12 years ago which clearly lists "non small cell lung cancer, primary to the lung" has sort of stopped me in my tracks. So far as I understand/recall, there was no "clinical correlation." I started chemotherapy the following week. Was something neglected? Certainly, I didn't ask for a second opinion, which is on me, but was the oncologist supposed to research further? Was the pathology report sort of damning - me, with a kind of faint praise -- uncertainty, if you can extrapolate?

Otherwise, how does the profession account for my still being alive. When we got a second opinion a few months back from a head and neck (to include thyroid) cancer specialist at The Lombardi Cancer Center at Georgetown, she said, if I had lung cancer, I wouldn't still be alive so it's logical to presume the recent surgical biopsies that indicated thyroid cancer were likely confirming a long-standing cancer, and that quite probably I never had lung cancer but rather thyroid cancer that had metastasized to the lung.. But there was no further investigation in 2009. The diagnosis - without a "clinical correlation" was non small cell lung cancer/carcinoma.

At the initial meeting with my oncologist, it all sounded so serious and the doctor was so clear in his assessment of my situation, that it seemed irresponsible, foolish even, to wait. We scheduled my first chemotherapy infusion for the following week and the rest is history. Now I'm wondering if it was history that need not have been made.
