

They're Back ...For Now Fractured Council votes 4-3 to temporarily restore SROs.

BY JEANNE THEISMANN
GAZETTE PACKET

A confrontational three-hour debate regarding School Resource Officers during the Oct. 12 legislative meeting of the Alexandria City Council resulted in a 4-3 vote to temporarily return the SROs to the city's high school and middle school campuses.

The nearly seven-hour meeting stretched into the early morning hours of Wednesday before a vote was taken to reinstate the SROs through the end of this year as other transitional safety measures are explored. Vice mayor Elizabeth Bennett-Parker and council members Canek Aguirre and Mo Seifeldein voted against the motion.

Council voted earlier this year to suspend the SRO program and divert funding from the Alexandria Police Department to hire additional school counselors and mental health professionals. While those positions have yet to be filled by the city, Aguirre put the blame for the continuing debate on school safety squarely on the shoulders of the school board.

"The school board should have been doing something about this months ago," Aguirre said. "Dang near a year ago they chose to do nothing so now we are sitting here having this ridiculous conversation. Contingencies should have been put in place. We could have gotten some extra social workers to contract out but nothing from this school board. Nothing."

Acting Chief of Police Don Hayes, Alexandria City Public Schools Superintendent Dr. Gregory Hutchings, School Board Chair Meagan Alderton, Alexandria City High School Executive Principal Peter Balas and ACPS Security Chief John Contreras had been invited to speak at the meeting with Balas, Hutchings, Alderton and Contreras specifically requesting that Council restore the SROs to the schools.

As details of the motion were hammered out, Bennet-Parker requested that should SROs be reinstated, they should not be armed.

Members of Alexandria City Council discuss the issue of School Resource Officers at the Oct. 12 legislative meeting at City Hall.

"It can't be done," Hayes replied. "These are police officers that need to be able to protect themselves at all times with the weapon that they have been trained with."

Prior to the motion and subsequent vote regarding SROs, a frustrated Mayor Justin Wilson voiced his displeasure for the tone of the discussion.

"I can't think of a bigger waste of time than what just happened for the last three hours," Wilson said. "I thought we were going to have a productive conversation about how we move forward in our community about a problem we are hearing from far too many from both sides of the SRO decision. We did not have that. We had a discussion where we were all trying to score points on an issue that was decided back in the spring."

Wilson continued, "I was hopeful we would have dialogue about how the two bodies could work together and that didn't happen. This is not the way we collaborate with another elected body, not the way we work with our police department. This sucks. This is disastrous."

The first few weeks of the school year has seen an escalation of violence at or near ACHS, including two recent shootings nearby the school that involved juveniles. In response, the four council members who voted earlier this year to end the SRO program - Bennett-Parker, Aguirre, Seifeldein and John Chapman -- released a joint statement just minutes prior to the start of the meeting with alternative proposals to SROs.

In part, the statement read: "We will not be reimplementing the SRO program, but we offer instead a new path forward. We propose to add additional resources ... for ACPS to implement a holistic student health and safety solution, which includes a transitional period, immediate and ongoing support, and a long-term solution to begin in the 2022-2023 school year."

However, not everyone, including Balas, received the statement prior to the council meeting, causing confusion and frustration and the statement was not mentioned during the marathon SRO debate.

Contreras noted that ACHS, along with George Washington and Hammond middle schools, has school security officers on campus. But Hutchings was quick to point out that SSOs, along with counselors, teachers, administrators and mental health professionals are not trained to handle guns, gang initiations, sexual assault and other more serious violations.

A regional and national debate about police in schools cites data that shows disproportionate effects of police on minority students and students with disabilities, and lack of data that SROs have resulted in safer schools.

At the end of the night, the motion carried to temporarily restore the SROs under the previous memorandum of understanding with the city but also instructed city staff to determine the cost of the alternative measures in the proposal by Aguirre, Bennett-Parker, Chapman and Seifeldein.

In noting the ongoing search for a new city manager, Wilson expressed his disillusionment in the impression left on anyone who observed the contentious tone of the evening.

"What person would watch this meeting tonight and say this is where I want to send my kids -- a school system that is governed by this relationship?" Wilson asked in frustration. "What city manager would say this is an environment I want to step into? This is horrible."

Female Stranger Remains a Mystery

Cryptic crypt continues to confound city.

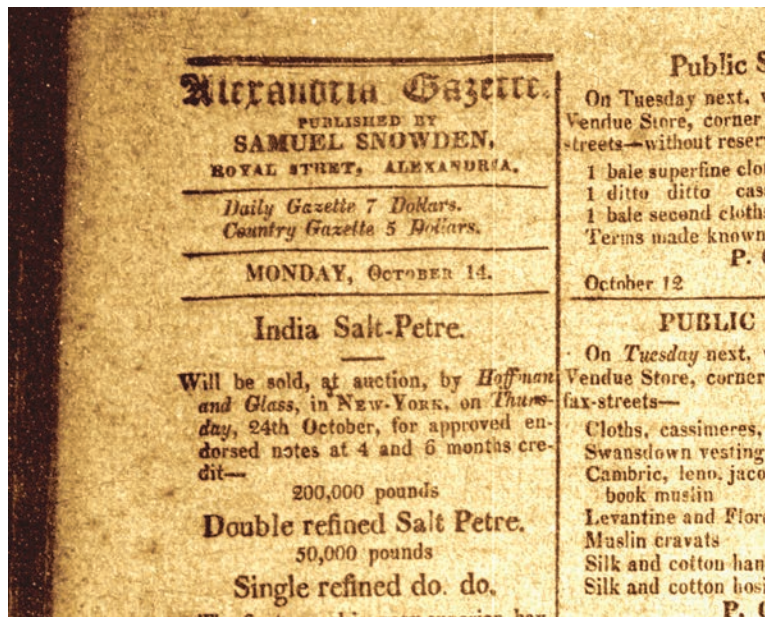

BY MICHAEL LEE POPE
GAZETTE PACKET

Readers of the Alexandria Gazette learned about an auction of salt and a house for rent at the corner of Washington Street and King Street. They even read about a 50-pound bar of iron that was discovered on King Street and the horse races that were scheduled to happen at the Port Tobacco Jockey Club. But unfortunately, the issue released on Monday Oct. 14, 1816 gave no indication at all about events that ended up being perhaps one of the most important things that ever happened in Alexandria: the death of the Female Stranger.

Visitors to the St. Paul Cemetery in Old Town are greeted with one of the most bizarre headstones in the history of funerary. No name appears on the tabletop tombstone. Instead, there in large capital letters, it says "FEMALE STRANGER."

"Of all the legends and tales of old Alexandria, the most poignant is the mysterious story of the Female Stranger," wrote the late Alexandria historian Ruth Lincoln Kaye. "It's the greatest mystery of them all."

Every Oct. 14, the mystery is renewed, and every year the list of possible explanations becomes more elaborate. The recent success of the musical "Hamilton" of disgraced former Vice President Aaron Burr, who was cancelled after he tried to start an insurrection against the United States government. Another popular theory is that she was Blanche Fordan, the center of an international love triangle between two brothers from England.

"I suppose it's sort of like a crossword puzzle," the late city historian Michael Miller once quipped. "You don't want to leave it until you've solved the puzzle."

It's not just the Female Stranger whose identity remains shrouded in mystery. There's also the Male Stranger, the guy who accompanied her to town and arranged to have this amazingly peculiar headstone erected in St. Paul's Cemetery. According to legend, he skipped out on paying the bill for the headstone and his stay in town. Searching through the archives of the Alexandria Gazette, Miller found an 1861 article that seems to indicate he was a roguish neerdowell named Clermont who was later imprisoned at Sing Sing.

"Maybe someday, we'll find a new piece of evidence and solve the mystery," Miller said in a 2010 interview. "Until then, we can only speculate."

Selling Like Hot Cakes At the Native Plant Sale

By Shirley Ruhe
The Gazette

Jane Hull, plant volunteer and Tree Steward, stands on the sidewalk outside The Church of St. Clements on Saturday answering questions from newcomers looking for a Lobelia siphilitica to fill that blank space in the backyard garden or a Spotted beebalm to attract butterflies and birds. The annual Northern Alexandria Native Plant Sale is in full swing on Oct. 2. Enthusiasm has built up since the cancellation of the spring sale which had been scheduled for April 24.

But it's only 9:30 a.m. "Better get in there now; things are going fast," she says. Paul Cusumano, owner of Meadowsweet native plant farm in Pennsylvania says he has been coming for 12 years and he always orders twice as many plants as he brought the year before. He says the best sellers so far have been the native shade perennials.

Eight-year-old Elaine Wirtz stands patiently in line at Cusumano's stand with her elderberry tree waiting to pay and take it home for the backyard. Her mother says in their house it's impossible not to garden. A customer asks for a Rudbeckia hart. "Don't have any black-eyed Susan but do have a tribola, a brown-eyed Susan."

Linda Hayes Bennett is standing by the curb, her bag loaded with a profusion of plants including chelone or pink turtlehead (rhymes with baloney) and an overloaded cardboard box nearby. She has bought them for her best friend Priscilla who went to Tennessee to help her parents. They are a showy plant with tubular two-lipped shaped flowers.

"You can get them over there," Hull says, "but better hurry, they are popular and will be gone soon."

Bennett explains, "These colors look like an aria. It's the power of music and art to embrace us." Bennett says while her friend was gone she redid her friend's place with a feel good kitchen in these colors. So she bought the plants to match, "to make a fairy, mystical place."

Parking is tight so a few people are walking blocks back to their car down Crestwood next to the church while balancing small trees and cardboard boxes of phlox. Others wait by the curb with their red wagon "plant taxi" loaded with their native plants for a pick up.

Over a dozen vendors from Virginia, Maryland and Pennsylvania fill the space next to the church with vines, shrubs, perennials. Got shade or an arid corner of the yard? Want a splash of color or a flower garden that rotates colors as a succession of plants blossom all spring and summer?

The native plant movement has exploded in recent years as gardeners and landscapers have realized the value of thinking beyond the color and shape of plants to promoting diverse habitats and food sources for pollinators and birds. Swamp Milkweed attracts butterflies and hummingbirds and is an important food source for the monarch caterpillar while the Heuchera americana attracts small bees which in turn work as pollinators.

Planting a variety of native plants can attract a diversity of insects that serve as a food source for birds as well as pollinators that promote the growth of plants. It makes the garden function like a system.

Listen to Black Voices and Research on SROs and Beyond

Nowhere is this lack of respect for experts and Black voices more obvious than the current effort to put SROs back in school.

To the editor:

Racial Justice Alexandria (RJA) is a multi-racial, multi-generational abolitionist collective of individuals and groups working to implement the Movement for Black Lives policy platform. We call upon our legislators to develop proactive and preventive measures to uplift the rights, dignity, and well-being of Black people. Racial injustice is violence and must be aggressively treated as such.

Thus far, however, the City has only offered platitudes, such as the ALL Alexandria resolution that acknowledges the necessity of acting “deliberately, thoughtfully and thoroughly to end racial inequities by frank examination,” but fails to propose any action to resolve systemic inequities.

Initially, having taken them at their word, RJA met with each member to discuss the policy proposals developed by the Movement for Black Lives. It would be an understatement to say that we’ve been disappointed. Council members are unprepared and unfamiliar with the policy platform and we’ve repeatedly been told that there must be more learning and discussion. We’re pointing you towards policies that have been developed by experts in the field of racial justice. Does the council require more learning or discussion when considering flood mitigation proposals? Or do they, as we suspect, listen to the experts?

Nowhere is this lack of respect for experts and Black voices more obvious than the current effort to put SROs back in school after ending the program earlier this year. Over and over, researchers have found that SROs do not make schools safer or reduce school violence, gun violence, or mass shootings. Repeatedly, researchers find that the presence of SROs results in greater numbers of suspensions and expulsions and criminalizes school discipline matters. Additionally, students of color and students with disabilities are disproportionately referred to and arrested by police in schools. SROs do not make schools safer for anyone but they do make schools measurably less safe for Black and Brown students and students with disabilities.

Our current reliance on the police does little to reduce violence and harm, and actually perpetuates systemic racial inequities. An adult with a gun and a badge cannot fix these issues any more than a carpet vac can prevent a basement from flooding. Their function is purely reactionary.

We hope you will show the same determination and patience to develop real solutions as you are with the flooding issues. Instead of more police, we ask that the council and citizens of Alexandria deconstruct harmful ideas of power, punishment, and justice, and take tangible action, including keeping police out of schools.

Bring Back the SROs

Alexandria schools are now back in session, but without our School Resource Officers (SRO), which are members of the Alexandria Police Department (APD) on special assignment. This summer, our duly elected school board and school administrators negotiated with the APD how they wanted the SROs to operate in their schools. However, our Alexandria City Council decided they have more knowledge than our school board and in a 4-3 vote decided to dismiss the SROs from our schools starting with this new school year.

I would like to remind everyone that our school board members are elected volunteers who deal exclusively with school issues jointly with our school administrators on a daily basis. Yet, their opinions were dismissed and overruled by our city council.

Let’s unpack this issue. If you study all the recent school shootings around the US, they have lasted 10-20 minutes. The APD couldn’t even respond from their current locations during that time. The incident would be over. Once the APD arrives on site, they would have to rely on school personnel to find the correct location. The on-site SRO would already be familiar with the school and could respond almost instantly to the incident and thus save someone’s life. Finally, SROs are there to develop a relationship with the students so they feel comfortable confiding in them about being harassed, bullied and abused. They are NOT there to make any immigration arrests or harass the students in any way.

Don’t fool yourself, there are crimes going on in our schools. Haven’t you heard about all the recent incidents in the high school since they opened? How about all the recent uptick in crime and shootings in our city in general? There is gang, drug and crime activity in our community and schools. Why then does our city have a “Gang Prevention Community Task Force” staffed with community volunteers and law enforcement to study and deal with this issue?

Ever since the horrific George Floyd incident most police around the country have been vilified and communities are exploring defunding their police departments. This is just plain wrong on so many fronts. Our police officers are not the enemy or the criminals. Yes, every profession does have some bad apples, but in law enforcement there are few. Our students need to learn at an early age that police officers can be their friends and are there to protect and serve the community — the community which they also live in and have children in schools.

Many schools unfortunately have many bad things going on — bullying, harassing behavior, sexual assaults, drug and gang activity. Yet, a student may not even know where to turn. They may not feel comfortable talking with school personnel or even to their own parents. So, they turn to an SRO who they have known and developed a strong professional relationship with.

Currently, our school administrators have hired some private security personnel for our high school. These security officers go through a 40–80-hour security officer class to become certified. They don’t have any of the experience, training and professional experiences to handle this job like our well trained APD officers. Also, this is very costly and these funds could be better spent on our students.

It’s time to bring back our APD school resource officers. Please tell your city council members to reverse their decision. But, if not, there is always our November elections to send a strong message. Our city, schools and most importantly our children deserve a safe environment to attend school.

SROs and Gun Violence

A student with a gun at the school today. Bring back the SROs before there is more harm done to our children. Stop playing politics with our kids Health, Safety and Welfare. As I ran previously on “you don’t have expertise nor the humility to listen,” proven by this massive failure related to removing the SROs as part of a “Defund the Police” politic. Those who were involved in removing the SROs — who don’t have students/children in ACPS — are not fit for public office, recklessly endangering OTHER people’s children. Bring back the SROs before you cause more harm to our children. Your job is to protect the health, safety and welfare of the community. Do your job.

J. Chris Hubbard

Former candidate for City Council
Alexandria

Why I Am Supporting PreeAnn Johnson for School Board

I am writing to urge voters in District B to vote for PreeAnn Johnson, an outstanding candidate for the school board who has served as an elementary school principal and assistant principal in Alexandria City Public Schools for the past 20 years.

When I joined the staff at ACPS in 2006 as the bilingual parent liaison for the ESL Office, PreeAnn was the assistant principal at Cora Kelly elementary school. Of all the school administrators throughout ACPS at that time (2006), PreeAnn was my most enthusiastic collaborator. Communication with non-English speaking families necessitated new technology and new practices that required school leaders to be open-minded and innovative. PreeAnn was ready to support and take advantage of every innovation. Her top priority has always been communication with all families so that they can support their children's success in school.

During my 9 years with ACPS our student enrollment increased from 10,000 to 15,000 students. During that period PreeAnn left Cora Kelly to become the principal at Polk Elementary. Schools were being overwhelmed with the influx of new students. PreeAnn did an impressive job of handling the swelling enrollment. She supported her teachers and staff and took advantage of community resources.

Polk was one of the first schools to participate in swimming and bike riding programs offered by community non-profits. That was a product of PreeAnn's focus on the whole child, valuing physical and emotional development along with academics.

Under PreeAnn's leadership, Polk has also been one of our highest performing elementary schools academically.

During my first term on the school board I was the liaison to Polk Elementary and once again had the opportunity to observe PreeAnn in action. Polk is an ethnically, culturally and socioeconomically diverse school and PreeAnn made all students and their families feel welcome. School-wide events were always well attended by a diverse group of families.

The school board has much to gain if PreeAnn wins in November. If you live in District B, I urge you to vote for her.

Darryl Nirenberg for City Council

To the Editor:

In this political era of intense factionalism and heated partisan rhetoric, it is refreshing to find a candidate on any level who displays a calm, common sense approach to problem solving. Fortunately, Alexandria has such a candidate in Darryl Nirenberg, who is running for City Council this November.

Nirenberg brings a longtime resident's knowledge and understanding of the challenges faced by Alexandrians, and a lawyer's logic to their resolution. In his campaign he has emphasized not only the need to reach across the aisle to build consensus in problem solving, but also the need to have diversity of political thought in the Council's deliberations. For too long our City has been governed by not just one party, but one narrow faction of that party. It is certainly time for Alexandria to re-adopt the system that has served the rest of America so well for the last two centuries: a genuine two-party system.

Challenges are facing us every day: flooding, pandemic, increased crime, faltering schools. These challenges are color blind and affect all of us, irrespective of race or ethnic background. To solve them, the widest diversity of views needs to be brought to bear in any deliberations or debate by city government, so that the best solutions are achieved.

Americans learned very early in our national experience that the surest way to reach an optimum decision was to have wide ranging and free discussion. Only by such methods can we be assured that all reasonable alternatives are thoroughly debated and fairly analyzed, and that the final decision is the best for the citizens. This is a lesson that Alexandria needs to re-learn.

That is why I support Darryl Nirenberg as the Republican candidate for City Council this Nov. 2, and I urge all Alexandrians to do the same.

Ahhhh shucks: It's Oyster Week again

BY SHIRLEY RUHE
 THE GAZETTE

An oyster isn't just an oyster. It is a James River (the largest), an Otter Cove from Damariscotta, Maine (the smallest, more salty), a Blue Point from Connecticut (creamy, on the sweet side) or a Salt Pond from Maine (salty and briny).

The favorite of Chef Javier Rodriguez at Vola's Dockside Grill is the Green Torpedo, a local oyster with a nice balance of sweetness and salinity.

"No one else has the Green Torpedo from Occohanock Creek, Virginia. They grow it especially for us."

Rodriguez says he gets a list every week and tries to choose different shapes to see which are the most popular with customers. "The local ones mostly. Same as last year."

Rodriguez says the average customer orders a platter of 18 oysters. "Normally they mix it up. "The platter is served with lemon, fresh horseradish and mignonette sauce on a bed of crushed ice. He says the favorites seem to be the local oysters including Chincoteague, James River and Green Torpedo. Although oysters often cost $3 each (more or less), during happy hour you can get oysters for half price or the James River, as many as you can slurp, for $1.00 each.

The oyster kitchen has been moved into the main dining room to keep the oysters separate to avoid allergies. Patricia Casteneda is a blur behind the bar, shucking oysters, at an average of 7.35 or so seconds per oyster. Rodriguez says last Friday they sold about 3,500 oysters.

Vola's and nineteen other Alexandria restaurants are gearing up for the 2nd Annual Old Town Oyster Week Oct. 16-Oct. 24. It is sponsored by Old Town Business Association in partnership with the Oyster Recovery foundation and sponsored by Guinness. Participating restaurants will serve pairings of oysters and Guinness.

The week will kick off with an oyster shucking

Patricia Casteneda is a blur as she shucks oysters at 7.35 seconds each and arranges a variety of different oyster selections on a bed of crushed ice.

Vola's Oyster Fest menu features fried oysters with panko herb and garlic crumbs as well as broiled oysters with Cajun seasoning and grated Romano.

competition set to take place on Vola's Airstream Patio at 10 a.m. on Oct. 16. Rodriguez says the week concludes with the Oysterfest on Oct. 24 at Vola's for "whoever can suck the most oysters in the least time." He says you can also sign up for all the oysters you can eat plus, beer, cocktails and wine for $95.

Freddy Lopez, manager at Vola's, says they are featuring an oyster martini for the week with Haku vodka, Trinchieri dry vermouth and a spray of oyster brine.

"The lip of the glass is horseradish infused salt with a pickled oyster balanced on the rim. Better sign up for Oysterfest early before we sell out."

ALIVE! Walkathon

This year's StepALIVE! fundraising goal of $65,000 will benefit all ALIVE! programs which have responded to increased demand during the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic. The funds raised by StepALIVE! will allow ALIVE! to continue providing food, shelter, emergency financial assistance, and eviction prevention to thousands of Alexandrians struggling with poverty and hunger.

As an interfaith nonprofit founded in 1969, the walking route through Old Town will pass by eight of the 48 ALIVE! member congregations: First Christian Church, Ebenezer Baptist Church, Christ Church, the Basilica of Saint Mary Catholic Church, Old Presbyterian Meeting House, Saint Paul's Episcopal Church, Washington Street United Methodist Church, and Alfred Street Baptist Church.

Watering stations will be setup at Christ Church and Alfred Street Baptist Church. Christ Church is also the turnaround point for walkers wishing to walk 5K instead of 5 miles.

Live music will be provided by the Alexandria Citizen Band for the pre-registration and kick off. The post-walk celebration will feature the StepALIVE! Bluegrass Band. Banjoman Frank Cassel will team up with Fred Nelson and Roger Williams (Three Boys Night Out band) and Ginger

Beecher (Taste of Bluegrass band) to sing and pick traditional bluegrass music using banjo, guitar, mandolin, and acoustic bass fiddle.

Sponsors this year include Alfred Street Baptist Church, Blaszkow Legal PLLC, Ruth L. Chamowitz & Michael J. Chamowitz, Fairlington United Methodist Men, and Oliff PLC.

'The Madness of Poe'

Synetic makes spellbinding return.

BY JEANNE THEISMANN
THE CONNECTION

Synetic Theater makes a triumphant return to live performances with a spellbinding execution of "The Madness of Poe," a masterful adaptation of the works of Edgar Allan Poe.

Synetic Theater founder Paata Tsikurishvili was greeted with enthusiastic applause as he welcomed the audience on opening night.

"The last year and a half has been a very dark time for so many of us," said Tsikurishvili, before adding wryly, "so we thought we would return with something light."

Directed by Tsikurishvili and choreographed by Irina Tsikurishvili, "The Madness of Poe" will play a limited engagement through Oct. 31.

"Like Shakespeare, Poe has become more than a writer," Tsikurishvili said. "He has become an institution and genre unto himself and tonight we witness the moments before the pen touches the page. We watch how Poe, the inventor of American horror, created some of the most frightening and disturbing stories the world has ever known."

"The Madness of Poe" fuses two of Poe's most famous works -- "The Fall of the House of Usher" and "The Raven" -- creating a bridge between his poetry and prose.

Anchored by a reimagining of Synetic's 2007 hit adaptation of "The Fall of the House of Usher," "The Madness of Poe" hauntingly blends the writer's unhinged reality with the intoxicating imaginings of his stories, including "The Raven." A talented cast brings the sinister tales to life in an evening of macabre suspense.

Ryan Sellers gives a riveting performance as Edgar, capturing Poe's descent into madness over the course of the 90-minute performance. Fellow Synetic company members Alex Mills and Nutsa Tediashvili join Sellers as Roderick and Madeline respectively, with each taking command of the stage with spellbinding performances.

Rounding out the cast are Philip Fletcher as Servant, Maryam Najafzada as The Raven, Megan Khaziran as Lenore, and Chris Galindo, Sean Flowers and Ariel Kraje in the ensemble.

The choreography by Irina Tsikurishvili is powerful and precise, perfectly executed to an appropriately haunting score. The production features scenic and props design by Phil Charlwood, costume design by Alexa Duimstra, sound design by Justin Schmitz and lighting design by Doug Del Pizzo.

For "The Raven" Scott Brown serves as creative associate, director, Najafzada as creative associate, choreographer, and Katherine DuBois as adaptor. Nathan Weinberger created the original adaption of "The Fall of the House of Usher."

"The Madness of Poe" features mature themes including scenes of intimacy and drug use. If this were a movie, it would be rated PG-13. Proof of COVID vaccine is required, along with photo ID. The process is smooth and goes quickly, adding only a few brief moments to the check-in process. Audience members must wear masks, which can be removed when enjoying refreshments both in the lobby and the theater. Running time is 90 minutes with no intermission.

"The Madness of Poe" will play a four-week limited engagement through Oct. 31 at Synetic Theater, 1800 South Bell Street in Arlington. Performances are Thursdays, Fridays and Saturday at 8 p.m. and Sundays at 2 p.m. Industry Night is Monday, Oct. 25, at 8 p.m. Tickets are $10-$60 and are available at www.synetictheater.org, in-person at the box office located in the underground Crystal City Shops, or via phone at 703-824-8060 x117.

"The tragedies of Poe's life took the light from Edgar Allan Poe," said Tsikurishvili of the author who died at the age of 40 under mysterious circumstances. "The result was a creative mind charged with terror, steeped in longing and filled with some of the bleakest humor ever written."

Life I'm Trying to Live

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

Continuing last week's justifiable rant about my less-than-ideal cancer-driven circumstances, I have to look ahead somehow, not behind. I can't change the past and focusing on what happened that possibly didn't need to happen would make yours truly more of a dull boy than I already am. Besides, living my life with constant anger and disappointment concerning how I was potentially harmed serves no real purpose. It can't change the facts. It seems logical to me therefore that what damage I can't change and/or control, and that which medically has harmed me in the past, I must find a way to embrace it somehow so that I can live my present and future life - what there is of it, with some dignity and joy. Easier said than done, I assure you, especially for my wife. Though it's not exactly in the vault for me, it is nonetheless compartmentalized.

Oddly enough, it's this ability to compartmentalize which has likely carried me this long: nearly 13 years from my Feb., 2009 "terminal" diagnosis of stage IV non small cell lung cancer, a killer cancer if there ever was one, and of course, there are many. In fact, annually, more people die from lung cancer than the next four cancers combined. No wonder I was worried when I recall the "13 month to two year" prognosis I was given. Hearing those "you have cancer" words are life changing and in many cases, life ending. Fortunately for me, I was misdiagnosed and only thought I had a few years left to live.

Nevertheless, receiving this kind of life-threatening blast of reality at age 54 and a half is overwhelming. The treatment (heavy-duty chemotherapy) that followed was challenging. The life the patient is forced to live as a result becomes cancer centric. Very little time passes when you are not keenly aware of your circumstances or preoccupied with them or planning/coordinating your life/schedule around something cancer related. All the while knowing/having been told that your chances of surviving beyond two years is in the low single digits. And for many lung cancer patients, particularly stage IV patients, there's very little the doctors can do about it. There is no cure. As my oncologist told me: "I can treat you, but I can't cure you." It was extremely hard to process that statement. I mean, really process it to understand that you are going to die because of this diagnosis. It reminds me of an episode from the M*A*S*H, the television series. It was a long day/night in the operating room and "Hawkeye" Pierce, one of the trauma surgeons, was questioning his ability to save wounded soldier's lives. Lt. Col. Henry Blake and "Hawkeye" are standing outside the surgery taking a break. And Henry, hearing his fellow surgeon's frustration, says to "Hawkeye": "There are two rules in war. Rule number 1, young men die. Rule number 2, doctors can't change rule number 1." The warning/advisory one hears after getting a non small cell lung cancer stage IV diagnosis is very similar. It's not exactly a rule, but it is a startling reality nonetheless. That reality? Most stage IV lung cancer patients die much sooner than later.

This is the kind of news that you don't want to take to your grave. This is the news however that you must incorporate/assimilate into your life somehow so you can try to go on living a rewarding and productive life. Ignoring your diagnosis seems stupid and irresponsible. And pretending that your future actions will not have consequences for your health seems incredibly naive. The only real choice as I saw it, was integrating these horrible circumstances into my life, somehow. And the only way I could see doing this was to compartmentalize them. Try to control/file them away so everyday is not dreary and depressing. Life can go on by living it, not dying because of it. I made a conscious choice to not give in, and in a way, I've been rewarded for it. I've lived 10 years-plus beyond my original prognosis. Granted, mistakes were made, apparently. But for the 10 years or so until I learned my true diagnosis, I believed as Carly Howard believed in an unrelated Three Stooges two-reeler: "I'm too young to die. Too handsome. Well, too young, anyway."
