Share of McLean is asking for help from the community because the needs and numbers of the economically disadvantaged and those facing crises have recently been unprecedented. Share serves people in need in zip codes 22101, 22102, 22066, and the Pimmit Hills region of 22043.

Share is in the midst of its second COVID-19 pandemic holiday season and is feeling the crunch. The strain on the organization's supplies became evident when it recently experienced not one but two of its busiest days ever at its Food and Clothing Room located at McLean Baptist Church, 1367 Chain Bridge Road, McLean.

"We've definitely grown since the pandemic in the number of people that come in," said Nicki Watts, office manager and co-chair of the program. "I've been here for about three years. We had 76 families one day, and the day before that, 74 families, so it was crazy," she said.

Share administers its Food and Clothing Program for approximately 1,500 families, totaling 4,000 household clients, in a space donated by the McLean Baptist Church. Share takes donations on-site at a donation shed and a satellite facility, The Redeemer Lutheran Church, located at 1545 Chain Bridge Dr., McLean, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Share receives clients referred from partner faith communities, county social services, and various nonprofit organizations that serve special-needs populations, such as victims of domestic abuse or people who formerly were experiencing homelessness.

Elder Woodward (left) and Elder Sherwood of the Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter-day Saints volunteer as Spanish translators at Share.

According to Watts, once a client is approved, they can visit the Food and Clothing Program twice a month. The Food and Clothing Pantry is typically open on Wednesday and Saturday mornings for shopping and is entirely operated by volunteers and supported by the community.

However, the space is not conducive to large numbers of people being inside at one time, given its narrow hallway leading to shopping rooms. But the nonprofit is thankful for the use, said Watts, and makes it work. Clients enter, qualify through registration, and receive a colored card designating the number of family members. They return outside to queue and enter in as capacity limits allow.

On Wednesday, Dec. 1, volunteers from the Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter-day Saints, Elder Woodward and Elder Sherwood, wore their red Share aprons and assisted the organization by interpreting for Spanish clients. "I love being here and serving the community," said Elder Woodward.

Ron Kelley, another volunteer, assisted in the warehouse area by storing donated canned and boxed items after they were inspected for expiration dates.

An industrial freezer in the retail hallway had fish and meat supplied by a local Walmart. Other rooms offered bread, fruit, and miscellaneous supplies such as cooking oil, diapers, hygiene products, coats, and

Remembering Vic Kimm

Randy Glantz spoke about Vic Kimm and their shared time with SHARE at Kimm's Mass of Christian Burial, held Friday, Dec. 3, at Saint Luke Catholic Church in McLean. Here are some excerpts, edited for length:

I was a volunteer with Vic for Share and had the privilege of his friendship for more than 20 years. I can say with a mixture of profound respect, joy, and now tears that he was my best friend. That we were both from Brooklyn helped strengthen our bond. It is my honor to help give voice to so many of Vic's friends and the many others who he influenced during his nearly 30 years volunteering with Share.

I first met Vic during one of our million-dollar rides with Share's furniture program. For those who are unfamiliar, a million-dollar ride is an opportunity for prospective volunteers to see for themselves the million-dollar homes of furniture donors, then to deliver those furniture donations that same day to the less fortunate among our clients — who generally live in apartments you would not accept a million dollars to live in yourselves. I remember very clearly my first million-dollar ride. It was a particularly hot, miserable August day that I rode along with Vic and Stew Lingley in one of Share's old, ramshackle trucks. For those of you who remember it fondly, it was the old yellow truck. No air conditioning, of course. There I was huffing, puffing and sweating, struggling to push and pull sofas and dining room tables up three flights of stairs while navigating narrow hallways and even narrower doorways. And I could not have been happier. The three of us stopped for lunch and as I sat with Vic and Stew in that diner's booth, I realized I had found my happy place. To this day, my Saturday mornings are meant to be out in a truck with my Share buddies, moving furniture and bringing a little bit of caring and happiness to our clients' lives.

Vic has been an active volunteer with Share for nearly 30 years. He was initially recruited to the furniture program and continued moving sofas and tables and chairs well beyond the time when Pat [Kimm, his wife], if she knew about it, would have condoned it. Well, knowing Pat, she knew about it, but she tolerated Vic's continuing to think he was a much younger man well past the time it made sense. He served two multi-year terms as president of Share. And I know Vic was the face of Share here at St. Luke and in the wider McLean community. He was a tireless champion of our core principle of treating our clients — the working poor and the less fortunate among us — with respect and dignity. At every board meeting (even over Zoom during the past 18 months), Vic would affirm to us all his firm belief in focusing on meeting the needs of our neighbors. He also made sure we focused on maintaining trust and giving hope. The Share board is inclined to be conservative with our spending, wanting to be responsible stewards of our donors' money. But Vic's attitude was to spend the money we have to help those who don't have. He was impatient with that instinct to preserve our funds, and he believed God would provide. And he was never wrong. He brought his faith to the table, demonstrating through his deeds how deeply he cared about every single person we served.

In preparing for today's remarks, I spoke with a half dozen of my fellow SHARE volunteers. What struck me was that without fail, every person told me how much Vic cared about working with our clients and how much he cared about bringing out the best in all of us. The best example of this is also one of the most poignant observations I heard. A volunteer told me that Vic had helped to reshape the way he sees the world around him and how he relates to other people.

Vic was truly a champion of those in need. This is a precept that particularly resonates with my Jewish faith, a core principle of which is "tikkun olam" (tee-KOON oh-LUHM) — the notion of social action and the pursuit of social justice. Vic truly upheld this tenet in his life. Time and again since his death I have heard how blessed we all were to be witness to, and to learn from, his tireless dedication to the good of others. And how blessed everyone felt to have his staunch friendship.

On the morning of the very last day of his life, Vic called me from the hospital to find out how the previous evening's board meeting had gone. He particularly want-

Victor Kimm, 87 of McLean

Victor J. Kimm died peacefully surrounded by family on Friday, Nov. 19, 2021, at Virginia Hospital Center in Arlington, Va. He was 87.

Victor was born and raised in Brooklyn, New York, the son of Harry and Mary Kimm. He graduated from Brooklyn Technical High School, Brooklyn, New York. Victor was an engineer by training, having received bachelor's and master's degrees in Civil Engineering from Manhattan College and New York University. He also studied economics and public administration at Princeton University as a recipient of a National of Public Affairs Fellowship.

In 1958, he married Patricia Ratz, of Valley Stream, New York, and together they raised five children in McLean, Va.

After graduating from college, when President John F. Kennedy asked what Americans could do for their country, Victor and his wife, Pat (including their two young sons) decided to volunteer in rural Mexico doing community development work. After three years there, he spent two years in Washington, DC working as an engineering consultant in Latin America. He went on to work at the Economic Development Administration where he was active in a federal poverty program promoting civil rights and public accommodations. There he received a one-year fellowship to Princeton University. After completing his Princeton fellowship, Victor obtained a senior position with the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) where he spent more than 30 years, as a leader protecting the nation's environment.

Victor held several senior management positions within EPA which he joined in 1971 shortly after its inception. As the Director of the Office of Drinking Water, Victor managed and led efforts to help implement the Safe Drinking Water Act of 1974, the first generation of mandatory standards for drinking water quality. The Act achieved significant goals which included increasing public awareness of the need to protect drinking water supplies, stimulating scientific advances to protect water, improving state supervision of drinking water, and increasing the monitoring of drinking water systems.

In his role as the Deputy Assistant Administrator for the Office of Pesticides and Toxic Substances, Victor oversaw the agency's budget resources for licensing new pesticides and industrial chemicals and controlling hazardous substances. He also promoted innovative applications of pollution prevention to reduce or eliminate toxic wastes. In 1989, Victor was the recipient of the Presidential Award — Meritorious Senior Executive.

He also provided expertise on environmental management issues to the World Health Organization and the United Nations as well as regional development institutions in Latin America, Asia, and the Middle East.

After EPA, Victor taught environmental management and public policy at the University of Southern California's Graduate School of Public Administration.

For 29 years, he was an active volunteer including President and various board positions with Share of McLean, an all-volunteer, non-profit organization providing emergency assistance to people in northern Virginia. One of his favorite projects was organizing Share's furniture delivery program. In 2010, Victor was named Outstanding Community Citizen by the Greater McLean Chamber of Commerce for his work with Share of McLean.

In addition to his successful career, Victor was an extraordinary man in many ways. He was a person of strong faith, a voracious reader, and an avid world traveler. He played bridge and loved puzzles. He loved playing cards and chess with his children and grandchildren especially during the family's yearly beach weeks in the Outer Banks, NC. He loved meeting people and learning about them. He was devoted to his family and friends and cared about each one of them.

Volunteering, serving society, and helping the poor and less privileged were his true passions. He worked tirelessly to improve the lives of others through many acts of kindness. He always made everyone feel welcome and tried to bring out the best in others. For his family, his most important achievement was the love, affection, and encouragement he provided and the values he instilled.

Surviving is his devoted and loving wife of 63 years, Patricia Kimm; his children Kevin Kimm and his wife Joy of Mt. Airy, Md.; Terence Kimm and his wife Christine of Vienna, Va.; Victoria Bak and her husband William of Falls Church, Va.; Stephen Kimm of McLean, Va.; and Kathleen Windish and her husband John of Portland, Oregon; and eight grandchildren and their families; and dear friends throughout the world.

In lieu of flowers, the family requests that donations be made in Victor's memory to Share of McLean.

ed to make sure we were being generous with the funds we had available through the kindness and generosity of everyone in this community.

From Vic I learned early to treasure the experience of being part of Share. Starting on that sweltering summer day 20 years ago, Vic and I have shared the very profound sense that our closeness to God comes from doing for others. Through the years, my own two kids and my two nephews benefited from Vic's influence on me. They have helped deliver furniture and sort food donations. Thanks to this experience, they will always value volunteering as a regular part of their lives.

Share's Christmas Holiday Celebration, a party event with light refreshments, decorations, a visit from Santa, and wrapped gifts fulfilling "wishes" for the children, is halted in 2021 owing to the pandemic. Instead, a Christmas tree at the Giant Grocery Store on Chainbridge Road will serve to fill wishes this year. Donors can help their community with Share by buying Giant, Target, and Walmart gift cards and turning them in at Giant customer service.

Each family or individual who registered on time receives gift cards that can be used to purchase items that the family most needs. Many parents used the cards to buy gifts for their children from Santa in the past. The amount of money delivered to each client is contingent upon donations received.

Challenged Books, Ballooning Waitlists for Mental Health, ADA Playgrounds

What you might have missed at the Dec. 2 School Board meeting.

BY MERCIA HOBSON
THE CONNECTION

School Board Member Tamara Derenak Kaufax (Lee) thanked the members of the Challenged Book Committee at the Fairfax County School Board regular meeting held on Thursday, Dec. 2, for their recent review and decision to reinstate the books in question, “Gender Queer: A Memoir” by Maia Kobabe and “Lawn Boy” by Johnathan Evison. The books were temporarily removed from FCPS high school libraries following a challenge in September.

Kaufax said teachers, parents, administrators and students comprised the committee, and she, too, read both books in question.

“These books were not obscene, and there is absolutely no pedophilia in either of these books. As an educational system, it is our duty to provide materials for children to better understand their identities, as well as those of their classmates,” Kaufax said. She added that having access to books reflective of their own lives helps mitigate the real risks of bullying, social isolation, and suicide that LGBTQIA+ students are known to face.

Laura Jane Cohen (Springfield District) said if someone believed that certain books were not appropriate for their child, that was probably a conversation for the person to have with their child. Cohen said she would not dream of parenting someone else’s child and could only share how she parents her own children. According to Cohen, in her home, they believe that our schools are responsible for making sure all children know they are okay. “That they are normal. That they are, as Psalm 139 says, “wonderfully made.”

Then Cohen read a passage by journalist and LGBTQIA+ activist George M. Johnson from his 2020 book, “All Boys Aren’t Blue: A Memoir-Manifesto.”

“So as heavy as these subjects may be, it is necessary that not only are they told, but also read by teens who have to navigate many of these same experiences in their own lives. ... I released the deepest and darkest things about my past in the hopes that someone might see a reflection of themselves in the words and know that they are not alone. And that they, too, can grow and thrive.”

Cohen said she was glad for all children to get an opportunity to see themselves in the work that the Fairfax County librarians do and in the over 3 million books the county has in its libraries.

Karl Frisch (Providence) said he was grateful to the students who came to the school board meetings hoping that adults would hear them and that their courage was inspiring. Frisch said that he never dreamed of speaking up for LGBTQ inclusion at school as a teenager. “I couldn’t even tell my friends I was gay,” Frisch said. “I was worried, if I acknowledged my truth, I would lose the love of my friends and my family.” He told how when the conversation about LGBTQIA+ first started, he told the board he would never back down.

Fritsch said he got over 1,000 emails, voicemails, letters, and social media comments in the days after, labeling him a pervert and worse. He told of threats of violence against him and his partner and how there were days he didn’t want to touch his phone or look at his inbox.

When non-LGBTQ young people become aware of the diverse and complicated lives of LGBTQ people as a result of the history they study or the novels they read, they do not become LGBTQ. “LGBTQ is not contagious, but being more acceptable to different people certainly can be,” said Fritsch. “That scares some people, which is precisely why this work must continue. It is for everyone.”

More Resources for Mental Health

Megan O. McLaughlin (Braddock) provided an update as the board representative to the Fairfax County Successful Children and Youth Policy Team (SCYPT) during School Board member committee reports. SCYPT serves as the policy team for a broader, community-wide approach to ensure the success and well-being of children and youth in Fairfax County.

According to McLaughlin, one of the topics covered was a request for financial assistance for mental health upgrades and training additional therapists in Fairfax County to shorten the waitlist for families needing help. McLaughlin said that the committee recommended acceptance, but the Board of Supervisors must eventually approve it.

The second section of the mental health discussion dealt with hospitalizations. “We’ve got some really heartbreaking data about it even here in Fairfax County, the number of students who are requiring hospitalization for mental health needs,” McLaughlin said.

Explaining because there were not enough beds at any given time, McLaughlin said, “We had 17 students and their families waiting with an average of seven days in order to get a bed.”

She added that SCYPT was trying to get additional funding for multidisciplinary services. That would be an alternative to having students in the hospital emergency rooms.

15 Contracts

At the Fairfax County School Board regular meeting held on Thursday, Dec. 2, the board awarded 15 contracts. Four contracts will provide hands-on installations every student at four elementary schools will enjoy for years to come. The Major Maintenance Fund will provide ADA-compliant playground installations at four elementary schools: Fairfax Villa-$339,396; Floris-$365,370; Oak Hill-$362,105; and Vienna-$314,897. While not as much fun but surely appreciated, major maintenance will also fund a chiller repair at Centre Ridge Elementary School for $577,954.

The Elementary and Secondary School Emergency Relief (ESSER) II Fund under the Coronavirus Response and Relief Supplemental Appropriations Act, 2021 provides funding for automated temperature controls at two elementary schools, Bush-$587,600 and Spring Hill-$821,530; and for a rooftop unit replacement at Forte Support Center in Springfield-$791,000.

Two elementary schools received roof replacement projects, Westbriar-$159,324 and Fairfax Villa-$304,972 through the Infrastructure Replacement Fund.

The board approved synthetic turf field replacement projects at two high schools. One is at Langley for $871,055, funded by Fairfax County Public Schools, and the other is at South Lakes for $960,000 funded by Fairfax County Public Schools and Fairfax County Park Authority.

Finally, the board awarded the contract for Kahua Software and professional services with a projected initial software cost of $165,000 annually for a three-year term and a $40,000 approximate startup cost for professional consulting services to implement the software and train staff on Kahua Software License and Professional Services. Kahua will assist the Office of Design and Construction to govern and streamline document management.

Local tastemakers offer a glimpse of their personal style.

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL

Interior designers spend their days helping clients create beautiful aesthetics without compromising functionality. Whether deciding to paint a living room azure or cerulean or top a counter with Soapstone or quartzite, the job of a tastemaker requires creativity and ingenuity. Now, a few local designers allow cameras into their own home for a glimpse of their personal style.

Those who enter the Bethesda home of designer John Wagner of Designs by Wagner, learn quickly that nothing about it will be subtle. An oversized pink ottoman sits in the center of the room. A plush sofa in a soft beige is positioned in front of a wall that is dotted with more than a dozen family photos, each hung with soft-pink velvet ribbons.

"I'm a maximalist through and through," Wagner said. "I help my clients create spaces that reflect their taste. You should feel comfortable in your home. It should be a haven from the outside and it should make you proud. For me that means vibrant colors and plush fabrics."

A variety of colors, textures and patterns can be found throughout the home of designer Annie Elliott of Annie Elliott Design. "A house filled with shades of gray just doesn't make me happy," she said. "I also like mixing antiques with modern pieces. In my dining room, for example, we have a 19th-century English sideboard and Oriental rug paired with leather chairs...and a glass chandelier from the '80s. The mix takes the edge off of whatever formality people might associate with classic pieces."

A powder room is a space where Elliott suggests that one might experiment. "I believe that every powder room should be wallpapered," she said. "I have Cole & Son's Cabaret in mine, and I encourage my clients to be as daring as possible in their own powder rooms."

An Oriental rug aficionado, Elliott often recommends this accessory to her clients. "They can be Kids like Lauren are few and far between. Her gentle, ambitious, and welcoming spirit are always an added value. She is extraordinarily kind. She has natural intellectual ability and constantly seeks to learn beyond the classroom. Lauren has made a significant contribution to her local library over the past four years, dedicating over 450 hours of service. As one of the very few teens that volunteer at the library, she has co-lead book sales, raised funds for the summer, served as cashier, helped patrons select books, and assisted in other library programming. Lauren has a passion for early literacy and runs programs that allow low-income children access to low-cost reading materials.

She also created a project in 2020 where she has committed over 100 service hours to cleaning up a park in conjunction with county officials. Lauren is an accomplished fencer and the recipient of the Congressional Award Gold Medal, an award for youth in voluntary public service. It has truly been a pleasure.

Peyton Van Stone of Vienna, James Madison HS

Peyton is an overall wonderful young man. He's caring, kind, and always has a positive attitude and smile on his face. A great example of Peyton's character is when he helped a neighbor while walking his own dog last year. He saw that her house had started to catch fire and was worried that she was inside. Without hesitation, he immediately ran around the house and was able to get in. While he confirmed with another neighbor that she was not home, he saw the family dog in a crate, unable to escape. He was able to retrieve the dog and call 911. This is a true testament to Peyton's character. He's always thinking of others and goes above and beyond to help those in need.

He also self-studied for multiple AP exams and took college classes at Rice and Harvard University. Not to mention, he traveled all over the world as a member of the National Team for Speed Skating. His travels as an Olympic hopeful mean that this year will be his first year fully attending school in-person since the second grade. Through all this travel and change, Immanuel has managed to maintain a perfect academic record, including those college classes.

In his free time, Immanuel began to research turtles. He began to research the Hawksbill Research Institute, an organization focused on the conservation of critically endangered Hawksbill sea turtles. He participated in every program the institute offered. In conjunction with the institute and Dr. Todd Rimkus of Marymount University, he managed to gain firsthand field experience in tagging gravid female turtles, as well as present their findings to a larger scientific community. In the short time I have known Immanuel, I can tell that he is a well-rounded young man. He is a master of time management and discipline. I know the unmeasurable amount of hard work and sleepless nights that Immanuel experienced to achieve success in his life.

2021 Carol Waite Brennan Youth Award

Six remarkable, local high school seniors recognized as role models in school and the community.

BY MERCIA HOBSON
THE CONNECTION

The Optimist Club of Greater Vienna awarded six high school seniors the $2,500 2021 Carol Waite Brennan Youth Appreciation Award. They are Lauren Richardson and Peyton Van Stone from James Madison

High School; Grace Chamberlain and Gabriel Espinola from George C. Marshall High School; and Sharmila Adapa and Immanuel Anaborne from Oakton High School.

"I am constantly amazed by these students' dedication and commitment to excellence. Hearing their stories makes you optimistic about our country's future," said Tom Bauer, president of the Optimist Club of Greater Vienna.

For the past 22 years, the Club has given the scholarship awards to high school seniors who, nominated by their school counselors, excel in academics, arts, athletics and community service while demonstrating ongoing kindness, good citizenship, optimism and character.

The Club formally renamed this award in 2002 to the Carol Waite Brennan Youth Appreciation Award in honor of the late Optimist Carol Waite Brennan [1961-2001], an Oakton attorney who served as president of the Vienna Optimist Club 2000-2001 and with her husband, Matt started Ethics Day at George C. Marshall High School.

To help fund the Optimists' programs, the Club holds several fundraisers throughout the year, such as their annual Christmas tree and holiday decoration sale at Vienna Giant at 359 Maple Avenue East and the recently concluded Vienna Farmers Market.
