American Spirituals at McLean Community Center

Community Center

This event is at the McLean Community
Center, Friday, July 29, at 1234 Ingleside Ave, McLean, VA 22101. Calvin Earl, the US Spokesman for the African American Spirituals as a National Treasure, will share stories and songs of how slave ancestors embedded their oral history into spirituals for safekeeping. Discover their secret coding hidden within songs to help runaway slaves find safe routes on the Underground Railroad and explore how these humble songs were transformed into freedom songs during the Civil Rights Movement of the 1950s and 1960s. Cosponsored by The Alden. Friday, July 29, 2022, 7pm - 8:30pm. McLean Community Center/The Alden. Registration required. https://librarycalendar.fairfaxcounty.gov/event/8949990

Man Arrested in Widespread Theft from Churches

A 61-year-old man has been arrested for stealing from churches throughout the region. On June 28, Fairfax County police officers responded to the Saint Mary's of Sorrows Catholic Church in Fairfax for a man who stole a purse from a car in the parking lot. The man used stolen credit cards from the purse at several stores nearby. On July 4, the same suspect returned to the church and stole from two donation boxes. At least one stolen check was cashed from the donation box

Detectives reviewed surveillance footage and distributed flyers of the suspect throughout the region to other law enforcement agencies. Detectives from Montgomery County Police Department (MCPD) identified the suspect as a Maryland resident. MCPD was investigating Phelan for similar crimes.

At 10:50 p.m. on July 14, officers responded to the 5700 block of Columbia Pike for an unresponsive man in a white truck. Officers found the suspect in the same vehicle used during the larcenies. Officers determined the truck was stolen from Montgomery County. The suspect was treated by medics then taken into custody. He was charged with unauthorized use of a vehicle and possession of burglarious tools. Four days later, detectives obtained and served warrants for three counts of credit card fraud, three counts of identity theft, theft of a credit card and petit larceny. He was held without bond.

Detectives view him as a suspect in several other larcenies at churches and businesses throughout Fairfax County. Detectives continue to review surveillance footage and anticipate additional charges are forthcoming.

Detectives believe there may be additional victims. Anyone with information about this is asked to call detectives at 703-277-2361. Tips can also be submitted anonymously through Crime Solvers by phone – 1-866-411-TIPS (866-411-8477).

Housing discrimination found in Fairfax County.

By Mercia Hobson The Connection

ecently released findings by the Equal Rights Center, contracted by Fairfax County, observed discernable differences between housing providers' treatment of White and Black testers in eight of 25 rental tests. The Equal Rights Center observed discernable differences between housing providers' treatment of White and Black testers in eight of 15 Mortgage Lending tests. And ERC observed discernable differences between real estate agents' treatment of White and Black testers in six of 14 sales tests.

The testing showed housing providers were more likely to give white testers more detailed information, respond more frequently to their messages, and offer more favorable terms than their matched-pair counterparts, said Supervisor Walter Alcorn (D-Hunter Mill) on June 7, at a regular meeting of the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors.

Testers reported certain housing providers lacked the training to provide the same level of treatment to deaf individuals as they do to hearing individuals.

"The numbers reported for the lending and sales markets were more troubling," Alcorn said. "They clearly show that historical practices of segregating neighborhoods through steering or offering no or worse loans to Black individuals are still very much an issue today."

At the June 7 meeting, the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors approved the Joint Board Matter, Review of Enforcement Program for Fair Housing, which was proposed by Alcorn and Rodney Lusk (D-Franconia). The vote was unanimous.

"This should not be happening. This is horrible," said Lusk during the discussion at the board meeting. "It's making my stomach www.ConnectionNewspapers.com turn to even talk about it."

Lusk said the Board must educate the community, adding he never thought he would be treated differently when going through the housing process. "It is unfortunate this sort of activity is still occurring," he said.

Lusk said they needed to identify what they were doing and how to partner with others. "There might be a role that Fairfax County takes, even separately, to make sure we are protecting our residents," Lusk said. email, phone, and in-person testing services in the rental, lending, and sales housing markets.

During the contract term, June 2019 to March 2021, the Equal Rights Center conducted and analyzed 122 tests in the county based on race, national origin, and disability. The Fairfax County Human Rights Commission recently provided a summary of the results of these tests in the Fair Housing Rental, Sales, Lending Testing Report (https://www.fairfaxcounty.gov/humanrights/sites/humanrights/files/assets/documents/pdf/fair%20housing%20 testing%20report.pdf).

The board directed the Fairfax Office of Human Rights and Equity Programs to review its enforcement program for fair housing and provide the Board with a plan to enhance its education and training activities that includes an ongoing review of the effectiveness of these activities.

Fairfax County's policy is to provide housing throughout the County without regard to race, color, sex, religion, national origin; marital or familial status; disability; sexual orientation and gender identity; elderliness; military status; or source of funds, said Alcorn.

In 2019, Fairfax County contracted with the Equal Rights Center (ERC) to provide According to the report, the Equal Rights Center's core strategy for identifying unlawful and unfair discrimination is through civil rights testing, an investigative tool used to gather evidence, usually to compare conduct to legal requirements or a policy. In the fair housing testing, individuals posed as home-seekers and inquired about housing units. The information provided to the tester was recorded on a report form.

HIGHLIGHTS OF SAMPLE DIFFERENCES

RENTAL TESTS

Equal Rights Center analyzed 25 rental tests based on race, which compared treatment between a Black tester and a White tester. The ERC observed discernable differences between housing providers' treatment of White and Black testers in eight tests. The Leasing Agent:

- Quoted the Black tester a higher rent amount than the White tester
- ❖ Told the White tester the apartment they were viewing was available now, but told the Black tester it was not available until later
- ❖ Told the Black tester about more fees

LENDING TESTS

Equal Rights Center analyzed 15 lending tests based on race, which compared treatment between a Black tester and a White tester. The ERC observed discernable differences between housing providers' treatment of White and Black testers in eight tests. The Loan Officer:

- ❖ Only offered the Black tester first-time homebuyer loan products
- ❖ Gave the White tester a loan quote without asking their income
- $\ \ \, \ \ \, \ \ \, \ \ \,$  Only generated a quote for the White tester

RENTAL TESTS

Equal Rights Center analyzed 13 rentals based on disability, all of which compared treatment between a Deaf tester using either an IP relay service or a video relay service and a hearing tester using a traditional phone service. The ERC observed discernable differences between housing providers' treatment of Deaf and hearing testers in six tests. The Leasing Agent only:

- ❖ Questioned the Deaf tester on how they found out about the complex
- ❖ Asked the hearing tester for their contact information
- ❖ Offered the hearing tester a live tour
- ❖ Told the Deaf tester about more stringent application requirements than the hearing tester

The river's water quality grade rose from a D in 2010 to a B- in 2020, reported Hedrick Belin, President of the Potomac Conservancy, adding, "There is still work to do."

Nancy Stoner, President of the Potomac Riverkeeper Network (PRK) credited the 1972 federal Clean Water Act for much of the river's improving health and commended Alexandria for being on schedule to meet the 2025 deadline for the $454.4 million River Renew project, an initiative designed to keep 140 million gallons of untreated sewage out of waterways each year.

Challenges Loom

Despite some advances, "There is one glaring red mark," Belin warned, streamside trees. "In fact, forested buffers, as we call them, received a flat-out F in our report card," he cautioned

Trees, shrubs and other plants near waterways help filter out pollution, stabilize stream banks and keep streams and rivers cool in hot weather. Without riverside vegetation, silt, sediment, trash and other pollutants flow into rivers during rain storms.

"Currently there is a real supply chain issue around having enough trees to plant," Belin said, offering two solutions. The Conservancy helped persuade the Maryland General Assembly to finance the planting of five million trees over the next 10 years and to require that at least 10 percent or half a million trees be planted in underserved communities

This fall, the Conservancy will launch "Tomorrow's Trees," a program that will organize acorn and other hardwood seed collection that will then go to tree nurseries, providing what Belin called, "much needed stock. Today's seeds will become tomorrow's

No Guessing

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

I'm having a difficult time this week finding a topic to write about. I don't think it's writer's block, although after nearly 25 years a of publishing columns, I imagine it's possible. No, the problem is that the topic I want to write about weekly, whether it's cancer related or not, is what I feel. And this week, what I feel, I can't write about out of respect for the subject. I just can't discuss it publicly. I can only deal with it privately. If it were about me/my health, I'd feel free to elaborate. But it's not. And so, writing about what I couldn't write about seemed like a compromise of sorts. Given the intensity of my feelings right now, it would be impossible for me to write about anything else other than what I'm not writing about. I hope you all understand. If not, see this space in the future for an update. I'll try to be more clear next

Not that you all read my column for breaking news or Jack Anderson-type muckraking, but I know you expect honesty. And in this column, I am being honest. I just can't talk about what I'm not being honest about. I can only admit to remaining silent, on the advice of counsel you might say, and try to write between the lines in a way that communicates to you regular readers the weight I'm carrying. Though I am not alone is this burden, I can only mention, indirectly, how it's affecting me.

My late father used to say about me that I have broad shoulders, that I can take it. Well, the subject that I'm not talking about this week will definitely test my father's very reassuring assertion about his baby son. And in an odd way, though his statement goes back more than 20 years (he's been deceased since Dec. '06 and suffered his first stroke approximately 18 months prior), it's helpful to repeat it to myself and to write about it as well. Because what it is I'm not writing about is the fear of the unknown.

The unknown to which I vaguely refer is future feelings. I'm not exactly worried per se, as I've held up pretty well over these last 13 and a half years of being a cancer patient, and one who might have been misdiagnosed at that; and previous to my diagnosis, having both my parents die within two years of one another. Still, life goes on and it has gone on so I'd like to believe it will continue to go on even if this worst-case scenario plays out and reaches its ultimate end.

I remember when my father, the first of my parents to die, finally succumbed to his illness/age (he was 87). I was nervous and afraid how I'd respond, how I'd live my life without one of the most important influences in it. I survived it. But I think I survived it because my mother (another major influence in my life) was still alive, as she was for another two years until she succumbed to her illness/age (she was 86). However, when she died, my brother Richard I became orphans, as it were. That feeling of finality, the end of an era, both parents being deceased, never quite leaves you. There's always a missing piece, but it is sort of the natural progression of things, so over time, at least for my brother and I, you find a place for your grief and eventually wonderful memories come flooding back and you smile when you think

Well, I'm trying to smile now. That's all I'm not going to say.
