Local Conductor Prepares Singers for a Festive Performance

Encore Creativity's Northern Virginia holiday concerts coming up.

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL
THE CONNECTION

"Row, Row Row Your Boat" was one of the first songs that Ingrid Lestrud learned as a child. The familiar nursery rhyme is among those credited with developing language skills in many a toddler. For Lestrud, an Arlington based conductor, it launched her career.

"I've always loved to sing and started getting solo parts in my church choir when I was very young," she said. "It was something that I felt I was good at. My parents were supportive and I started taking piano lessons when I was seven and voice lessons when I was eleven."

Her parents first recognized her predilection for music when she was an infant. "She would wake up crying in her crib during the night, and the only remedy was to put a record on the stereo on repeat," said her mother Mary Lestrud. "She started singing in tune when she was a year old, and, by the age of three, her babysitter complained that she sang all the time."

Lestrud entered college with a plan to study vocal performance, but it was a class that she took to fulfill a degree requirement that altered her career trajectory.

"I had to take a conducting class to finish my degree and I was dreading it," said Lestrud. "I ended up loving it even more than singing and it became my career."

She went on to study conducting at the graduate level, eventually completing her Doctor of Music degree at Northwestern University. A married mother of two, Lestrud is now a conductor with the Arlington Chorale and the Encore Creativity, a choral organization for older adults.

She has spent the last 15 weeks preparing her Encore singers for the organization's holiday concerts in December, including one on Dec. 15 at 7 p.m. It will be per-

"My role as a conductor is to interpret a composer's music," she said. "I'm collaborating with the singers. I have to train them to follow my lead. Otherwise, I'm just up there waving my arms in the air." Singers who have performed under her baton concur. "She has a special gift for demonstrating how each composer intends for his or her composition to be performed," said Encore singer Joe Luquire. "As a result every piece performed under her direction comes alive."

Lestrud says that each of her chorales is like a tight knit community. That connection is a necessary element of a harmonious group of singers.

"In order to wrangle all of those voices, Ingrid has taught us how to sound cohesive by focusing on how to sing on the vowels, focusing on consonants and diction, along with accurate entrances and cut offs," said Encore singer Ann Johnson. "Then come the dynamics and interpretation of the piece. It's very freeing to sing once you've worked out all of the technical stuff and can just make music together."

CLICK IT OR TICKET CAMPAIGN BEGINNING NOVEMBER 16

This Thanksgiving holiday, travelers across the nation will hit the roads, eager to spend time with family and friends. To help keep travelers safe, the Arlington County Police Department (ACPD) is teaming up with the U.S. Department of Transportation's National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) on the national Click It or Ticket campaign. Law enforcement agencies across the country will increase enforcement efforts from November 16 – 30, 2022, to work towards reducing the number of fatalities that occur when motorists fail to buckle up. Everyone wants you to reach your destination safely, so it is critical to practice safe driving habits, like buckling your seat belt, on each and every ride.

Evie races across the floor and jumps onto the couch. Eggsy, flicking her tail, chases close behind. Thirteen-year-old Laura and eleven-year-old Nati Gradzka are the foster parents for these four-to-five week old kittens.

Every few weeks they get a new set of kittens that they foster until the kittens can be adopted. They have kittens there most of the time. The girls say in the beginning it was not easy to let go. The girls' mother Ewa says, "There were some tears. We hope the kittens find good families."

Ewa says it is a fantastic way to teach kids to be responsible. "Laura and Nati feed them, clean the litter box, sleep with the kittens and play with them and vacuum up after them. I don't do anything, I'm just the driver." As if to make the point Eggsy jumps up on the couch and promptly falls asleep on Nati's chest.

The kittens all have different personalities. "Evie likes taco shells," Nati explains. Ewa says, "We have a hard time keeping the kittens off the table. You have to be prepared for it. We have a little sprayer with water. I don't know what else to do. And Eggsy didn't like one cat food. I'm not sure what they fed her in the shelter."

Laura finds when she is practicing table tennis that if she drops a ball, the kittens chase it. "Everything is a toy for them," Ewa says. And when Laura is doing her homework on the computer for the International School, which she attends with her sister, the kitten tries to walk across the keys.

Ewa explains these kittens come through Lucky Dog Animal Rescue. "We get a call when the kittens have arrived. I think these came from North Carolina. We foster them for a week or two or sometimes up to four weeks until they are adopted at a local event."

She remembers one call when they had signed up for two kittens and Lucky Do brought four "and they were only 5 weeks old." Laura remembers one of her favorites "really cuddly, the smallest one who would fit in the palm of your hand."

They started off five years ago with a dog but Laura says, "I really badly wanted a cat, adorable and fluffy." It's been kittens since then.

These kittens have a good life with their own space where they can roam freely in a sunny basement where they have a couch, toys to chase and their food and litter. Ewa explains, "It is so much better than sitting in a cage, cold with dogs barking all around. Here they get relaxed with an increased chance of getting adopted. It's nice to see how quickly they warm up, even in a week."

Besides the girls, the kittens have lots of additional company. Laura just bought herself a new little fish—a beta, blue. Their first pet was a hedgehog. "Such a cool pet." But so noisy with the spinning wheel Nati remembers.

They have a guinea pig who is losing its sight but is a good buddy with the dog. Most kittens stay downstairs and don't socialize with the large noisy dog with the big bark upstairs. And in the corner a hermit crab named Hermie and a bearded dragon named Freya. "I told them not more than five pets at a time," Ewa explained.

"We took the kittens last week to an adoption event but they didn't get adopted. There is an adoption event in Falls Church this weekend; maybe they will get lucky this time. We hope they will get good homes."

The ‘One Man Morale Machine’

THE CONNECTION

The holidays can be lonely, nostalgic and stressful for military people deployed far away from home, especially overseas.

An exhibit at Lorton’s National Museum of the United States Army until Feb. 1 recounts how legendary comedian and jokester extraordinaire buoyed U.S. troops around the globe for 50 years. Titled “So Ready for Laughter,” through videos, artifacts and displays, the museum embeds visitors in the audience with cheering troops and Hope on stage.

From 1941 to 1991, during World Wars I and II, the Korean and Vietnam Wars and Operation Desert Shield, Bob Hope performed in 133 live United Service Organizations (USO) shows for 11 million service members all over the world. An original, 11-minute documentary produced by John Scheinfeld captures the comedian’s unique talent and the troops’ euphoric responses in many venues, including Hope’s 1942 tour called the “Hollywood Victory Caravan,” when two dozen stars raised funds across the country for the Army and Navy Relief Society.

Hope’s mission was to connect directly, boost spirits and provide relief through laughter. Visitors see nearly 50 artifacts, including Hope’s worn suitcase, rare and previously unpublished photographs, wartime correspondence between Hope and service members, videos of his traveling wartime troupe, programs, scrapbooks, maps of his travels and his diary from his 1944 tours. His scribbly notes reveal the origins of some jokes as they popped into his head and record some meals and hotels.

A Gifted Performer

Hope’s shows comforted the lonely and homesick, especially during the uncertainties of World War II. Because he was a human sparkplug at lifting the spirits, some called him the “one-man-morale machine” and he earned the moniker, “G. I. Bob.”

In rapid-fire succession, he told joke after joke and created American stand-up comedy, say some experts. The exhibits contend that Hope changed the rules of comedy because before Hope, comedians did the same routine over and over. Hope varied his and built his monologue around contemporary events. His quick, to-the-point delivery earned him the nickname, “Rapid Robert.” He “invented all the rules for entertaining the troops,” says Conan O’Brien in a video.

Hope could tailor his routine to his audience and instantly establish rapport with his audience. He liked to take on the role of the average soldier and relate to their fears, privation and at times, boredom. In one video, Hope is nestled side-by-side with a shapely Frances Langford who is wearing a bathing suit. Hope says, “I want you boys to see what you are fighting for.” A cheering roar erupts. Langford was a singer and actress known as the “GI Nightingale” who often paired with Hope on stage.

Hope’s heart was clearly in it. He used his talents to empathize with the troops in camps, hospital wards, barracks, and even foxholes. In an exhibit film, his daughter, Linda, explains, “He had to deal with life and death situations.”

From Leslie Townes to Bob Hope

Bob Hope was born in England in 1903 as Leslie Townes, the fifth son of seven boys. His working-class family immigrated to the United States when Hope was four and settled in Cleveland, Ohio.

Growing up, he danced for pennies and had jobs as a newsboy, shoe salesman and amateur boxer. He had no high school diploma and no military experience. In 1923, he danced in a vaudeville revue, then went to

Broadway and in 1937, to Hollywood where he acted in his first film, “The Big Broadcast of 1938.”

In 1938, he starred on NBC radio’s Pepsodent Show, which became a successful ten-year stint during the “Golden Age of Radio.” Pepsodent is a toothpaste brand and sponsored the show. Hope did monologues and skits and hosted guest performers. Throughout his career, he closed with the sentimental song, “Thanks for the Memory.” From 1942 to 1945, Hope had a vaudeville troupe called “Hope’s Gypsies” that did overseas tours.

In 1934, Hope married Dolores Reade, a singer, and the couple adopted four children. His work frequently took him away from home. On finally getting home, he once quipped, “... my kids think I’ve been booked there on a personal appearance tour.”

In 1963, President John F. Kennedy awarded Hope the Congressional Medal of Honor. In 1997, Congress passed and President Bill Clinton signed a bill naming Bob Hope an honorary veteran.

Hope’s last tour for the troops was in 1990 when he went to Bahrain and Saudi Arabia during Operation Desert Shield at age 87. He died at his home in Toluca Lake, California on July 27, 2003, at age 100.

Bob Hope donated half a million jokes to the Library of Congress, the largest library in the world. No joke.

Tax Code Thunderstruck

Lawmakers consider easing bracket creep by making tax code more progressive.

BY MICHAEL LEE POPE
THE CONNECTION

Virginia's antiquated tax brackets have not been updated since "Thunderstruck" by AC/DC was topping the charts in the early 1990s. Now a new set of recommendations from the Joint Legislative Audit and Review Commission is rocking Virginia's budget talks, outlining a plan to reduce the tax burden on low-income people who are left holding a rising share of the bill as inflation shrinks the buying power of the dollar.

"Experts call this bracket creep," said Justin Brown, senior associate director of the Joint Legislative Audit and Review Commission. "The income brackets in Virginia have been the same in dollar terms since 1990. And for a year or two that's not a big issue. But over the long term it has a pretty big impact. Income goes up over time but the brackets haven't."

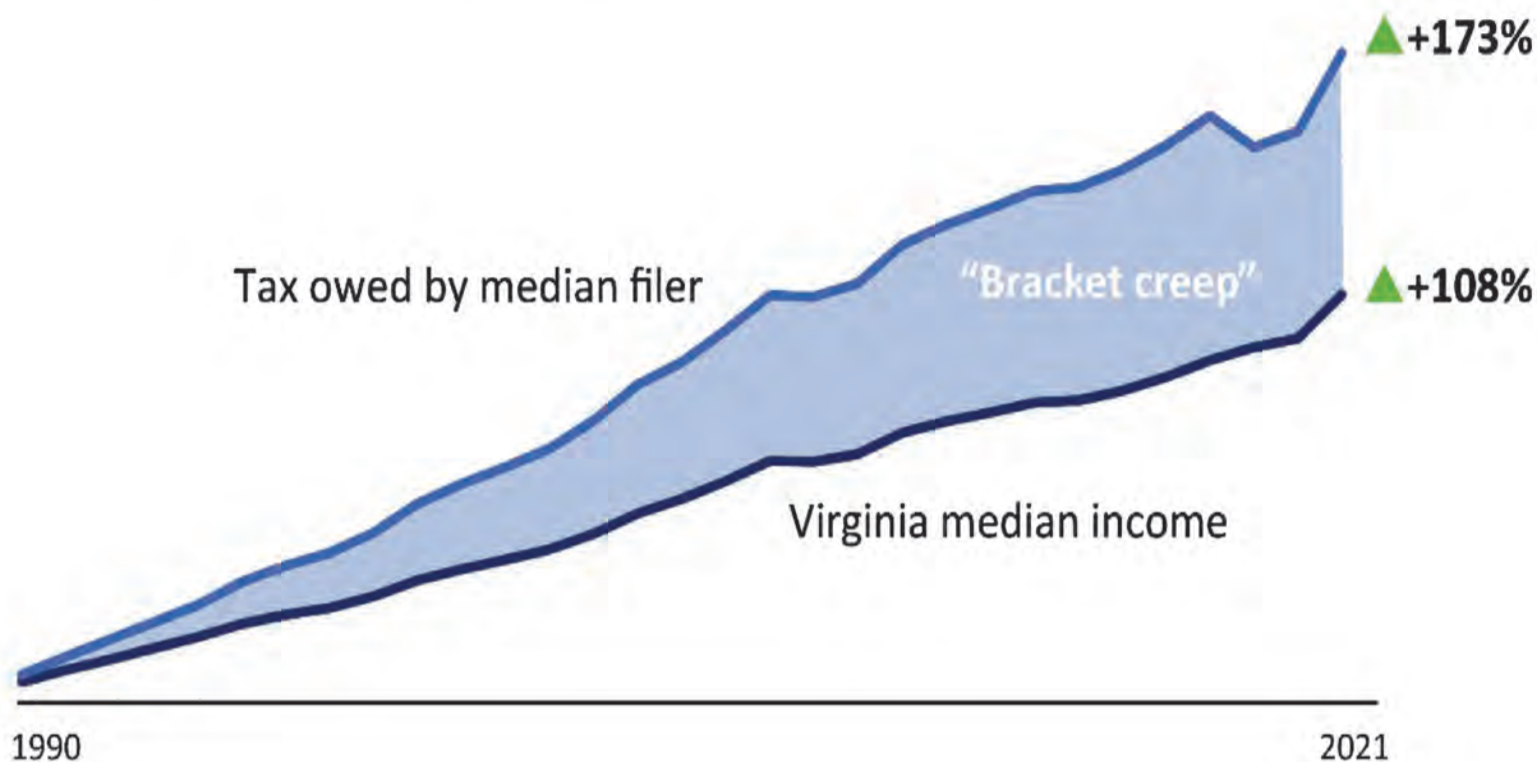

One of the recommendations to make Virginia's tax code more progressive is reducing taxes on people who earn between $36,000 and $68,000 a year by indexing the tax brackets to account for inflation. Virginia is one of 13 states that does not have some form of indexing their income tax brackets for inflation, and groups like the Thomas Jefferson Institute have been pushing this idea unsuccessfully for years.

"They don't want to give up the money," said Stephen Haner, senior fellow at the Thomas Jefferson Institute for Public Policy. "Inflation is a wonderful thing if you're the government because your revenue continues to grow."

The Thomas Jefferson Institute for Public Policy mission is to advance alternative policy ideas based on the Institute's belief in free markets, limited government and individual responsibility.

SINCE THE LAST TIME Virginia's income-tax brackets were updated, median income has increased 108 percent. But income taxes owed by a single filer with median income increased 173 percent. As a result, a much higher percentage of each filer's income is taxed at the highest rate of 5.75 percent on income of more than $17,000.

Taxes owed have far outpaced median income, because income brackets have not been changed since 1990

SOURCE: JLARC analysis of Virginia tax brackets and data on Virginia income, U.S. Census, 1990–2021.

"Incomes rise over time," the JLARC report explains, "but income tax brackets do not."

Virginia first adopted a levy on income in 1843, more than a dozen years before the Civil War. Since that time, it's been updated many times although not lately. The delay in updating the antiquated tax brackets has created an increasing burden on the poor while offering relief to the rich. Now the governor and members of the money committees will be facing an operational challenge of how to take a state as diverse as Virginia and make it work.

"You then get into the complexity of which inflation measure is the right one to use," said

Terry Clower, professor of public policy at George Mason University's Schar School of Policy and Government. "Not only that, how do you make a single statewide number that really applies fairly across all jurisdictions?"

GOVERNOR GLENN YOUNGKIN

"They don't want to give up the money. Inflation is a wonderful thing if you're the government because your revenue continues to grow."

— Stephen Haner,
senior fellow at the Thomas Jefferson
Institute for Public Policy

GKIN will present his budget in mid-December, and he's hearing from advocates on all sides of the debate over tax reform. Earlier this year, he signed a budget that nearly doubled the standard income-tax deduction from $4,500 to $8,000 for single filers and from $9,000 to $16,000 for married couples filing jointly.

The budget Youngkin signed last summer also made the state earned income tax credit partially refundable, allowing low-income filers to get a refund even if they have little or no tax liability.

"We've taken the important steps to eliminate the state's portion of the grocery tax, increase the standard deduction by 80 percent and declare the largest tax rebate in the history of Virginia," Youngkin declared at a Richmond grocery store that served as the backdrop to a ceremonial signing last summer. "Look, this will not overcome everything, and oh, by the way, it's not everything I wanted. So we're going to go back in January and get the rest."

The JLARC recommendations for making the tax code more progressive offer a challenge and an opportunity for the governor. The challenge is giving up the easy money that comes with inaction, which is why generations of lawmakers in Richmond have decided to kick the can down the road rather than taking action. The opportunity is striking a balance among the many interest groups demanding money.

For example, advocates for affordable housing are still waiting for lawmakers to take action on last year's JLARC recommendation on affordable housing, which included creating incentives for local governments to change zoning ordinances to encourage affordable housing.

"The General Assembly is likely to talk about increasing tax relief, but more important and more key to people on the ground is housing relief," said Sheila Herlihy, an organizer with the Virginia Interfaith Center for Public Policy. "We don't need another study to tell us that one in three Virginia families are struggling to pay for housing, and we need to allocate resources to support them."

HOLIDAY FUN CALENDAR

FRIDAY/NOV. 25

Reston Holiday Parade. 11 a.m. At Reston Town Center, Reston. Reston Town Center launches the season with the annual Reston Holiday Parade. The one-of-a-kind, one-hour, half-mile parade along Market Street also welcomes the arrival of Santa and Mrs. Claus in a horse-drawn carriage. Since 1992, rain or shine, the parade has been an annual tradition on the day after Thanksgiving. The Clauses will return for the annual Tree Lighting at 6 p.m.

DEC 1-23

"Snow Maiden." At Syntetic Theater, 1800 S. Bell St, Arlington. In a frozen forest, a lonely boy builds a girl from snow. When she mysteriously comes to life, mischief, laughter, and enchantment abound. But what will happen when the ice begins to melt? Told through dazzling movement, dance, and acrobatics, Snow Maiden is a magical tale of hope, friendship and the transformative power of dreams. Based on the beloved folktale Snegurochka, Snow Maiden is a holiday treat for friends and fans of all ages.

DEC. 1-31

Home for the Holidays Art Show. At Arts Herndon, 750 Center Street, Herndon. Works by local artists on display the entire month of December. Visit www.artsherndon.org. Call 703-956-6590.

DEC. 2-17

The PARC at Tysons Holiday Market. Fridays and Saturdays. Celebrate the holiday season with local makers, crafters, and artisans from the Fairfax County area! Visit the holiday market at The PARC at Tysons on the first three Fridays and Saturdays of December for a pop-up shop of local artisans and small businesses offering holiday-inspired goods. The PARC will be transformed into a festive indoors and outdoors winter village, featuring a local holiday market and (free!) snowtastic activities for the whole family to enjoy! Food and beverages can be purchased onsite from local businesses as well.

DEC. 2-18

Holiday Market. At 2704 Mount Vernon Ave., Alexandria. Del Ray Artisans 27th Annual Holiday Market offers unique handmade fine arts and crafts from local artists. Choose from wall art, pottery, photography, jewelry, glass, and much more! Plus 2023 wall calendars to support Del Ray Artisans nonprofit. Free admission. Market is the first three weekends in December (Dec 2-4, Dec 9-11, Dec 16-18). Different artists each weekend! Open Fridays 6-9 p.m., Saturdays & Sundays 11 a.m.-6 p.m. Details: delrayartisans.org/holiday-market

DEC. 2-11

Fairfax City Holiday Market. Fridays, Saturdays and Sundays. The Fairfax City Downtown Holiday Market will be open the first two weekends of December on Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Shop at the market of craft vendors as you enjoy Old Town Square in the heart of Historic Downtown Fairfax covered in holiday lights. The festival will include live holiday music, hot drinks, heated tents and gourmet

SATURDAY/DEC. 3

Holiday Boat Parade of Lights. Old Town's waterfront will shine for the 22nd Annual Alexandria Holiday Boat Parade of Lights sponsored by Amazon on Saturday, December 3, 2022, at 5:30 p.m. when more than 50 brightly lit boats cruise along one mile of the Potomac River shoreline. Boat parade dockside festivities will entertain parade-goers from 2 to 8 p.m. The boat parade is part of a weekend of festivities including the 51st annual Alexandria Scottish Christmas Walk Parade. Head to Waterfront Park at the foot of King Street, near the official parade start line at the Alexandria City Marina, for festivities from 2 to 8 p.m. including a pop-up beer garden from Alexandria's award-winning Port City Brewing Company, hot chocolate from Dolci Gelati, gourmet popcorn from America's Favorite Gourmet Popcorn and holiday music from 97.1 WASH-FM.

SATURDAY/DEC. 3

Christmastide at Gunston Hall. 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. At Gunston Hall, 10709 Gunston Road, Lorton. Discover Christmases of the past through activities from the 1920s and the 1780s. See how Christmas has changed over time. Help visitors feed their curiosity by thinking about life for different people—enslaved, indentured, wealthy, and poor—at 18th-century Gunston Hall during the holiday season. This family-oriented event includes crafts, games, and live music. Visit the website: <https://gunstonhall.org/events/christmastide-at-gunston-hall/>

SATURDAY/DEC. 3

Cookies with Santa. 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Join Reston Association when Santa makes his first stop in Reston. Join the holiday countdown with a cookie jar full of fun and see Santa Claus before he embarks on his annual journey around the world. With a craft, cookies & cocoa and activities to jumpstart your holiday season and a letter to and from Santa will sure be a highlight. Don't forget your camera! Registration and fee is only for the child, but parents must stay at the event. Contact Ashleigh@reston.org or 703-435-6577.

We Need Your Help Again
 We are sincerely grateful and thankful to you for helping in 2021 to save one of America's oldest newspapers, the Alexandria Gazette Packet, publishing continuously since 1784

 And affiliated newspapers

Thank you to the hundreds of supporters who helped to keep all your Connection Newspapers alive throughout Alexandria, Fairfax County, Arlington County and Potomac, Md. along with affiliated websites and digital media. Now we need help again in 2022.

Each local newspaper's mission aspires to provide greater community service, and we do know that our communities are better off if we continue to publish. Last year's financial support from readers and supporters like you bridged the shortfall before Federal PPP funding arrived, and both made our survival possible. We now await a decision for a grant from Rebuild Virginia in early February that we hope will help us in 2022 and beyond. But we need help to survive the first quarter, always a brutal time for cash flow in weekly newspapers. Thank you.

Please, help save these historical papers. All gifts will be used to fund our printed newspapers and websites and to meet obligations to our loyal and patient employees, writers, contractors and suppliers.

The ongoing pandemic continues to crush many newspapers across the country, and our newspapers continue to be at risk. The Northern Virginia area's best read and most trusted source for community news includes the Alexandria Gazette Packet, Mount Vernon Gazette and all Connection Newspapers in the metropolitan region.

The pandemic has hit small businesses hard, which in turn has reduced advertising revenue that keeps these local newspapers alive to provide hyper local news to residents. It feels like no small miracle to be looking forward into 2022.

The pandemic has been a bear, financially and otherwise. Revenue plummeted at the beginning in 2020. Some beloved advertisers have stayed the course supporting us throughout, and many more have done what they can. In the fall of 2021 we saw the return of some advertising for events and Grand Openings, but now omicron clouds the horizon in so many ways. Revenue still remains short of expenses despite our greatly curtailed costs.

Connection Newspapers has been offering these local newspapers to residents for over 200 years. Countless residents have grown up with these papers covering significant moments in the lives of family and children, news, community events, school activities, and even pictures of your dogs and cats. Internet news and large national newspapers cannot provide the local connection or historical connection that local papers like Connection Newspapers and the Alexandria Gazette Packet provide. If your child, dog, mother, father, neighborhood, school has been featured, you understand the value of local community newspapers.

Weight For It, Wait ...

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

For the first time in almost my entire six-decades plus of eating, I heard something from a doctor (my oncologist) that I had never heard before: "Kenny, you need to gain some weight."

The first reaction I had was to recall (in my mind) Robert Di Niro's famous "You talking' to me?" bit from the movie "Taxi Driver." But since I was the only cancer patient sitting in the examining room and the oncologist was speaking directly to me from approximately three feet away, it was me. I just couldn't believe, process even, these never-before-heard words.

These words were directed at me for good reason. I'm not even fitting into my older brother's hand-me down jeans anymore, almost all of which were too tight. Now, these jeans are all too big. In addition, my belt hangs around my waist as it no longer has enough holes to make for a tight fit anymore. And when I had to wear a suit last week to attend a funeral, it was very nearly tent city. To say I was swimming conjures water. Let me assure you, there was no water where I was swimming. I was on dry land and standing helplessly in front of a mirror reflecting on my appearance. Ultimately, I did find something to wear. However, the problem was; I was the one wearing it, not the Kenny from last year.

This juxtaposition from my normal overweight to this very uncharacteristic underweight was not exactly my intention. It's more a combination of teeth issues and the dry-mouth side effect of my thyroid cancer medication. Though I'm not exactly a shell of my former self, I am nonetheless, svelte, you might say? And why might I be svelte? Because I've never heard the word used to describe me before so I'm not sure it applies. But to quote Popeye, that famous sailor: "I y'am what I y'am." I just hope that my future weight gain doesn't involve eating spinach out of a can. Early suggestions from the peanut gallery suggest otherwise: to include drinking multiple cans of boost per day, eating Ben & Jerry's ice cream at will, without caring which one is will, and eating more than a bagel and cream cheese for breakfast/lunch every day.

This need to eat – for my health, is the complete and total reversal of my lifelong relationship with food. Generally speaking, I am not a "healthy" eater. I'm more a carbohydrate kind of person who prefers cake, cookies, and ice cream. Vegetables, fresh fruit, fish and the like were never much on my dietary radar. If they ever were, I'd try and jam the signal so I wouldn't be embarrassed by my refusal to even try anything different. Eating has always been the bane of my existence. I'm a meat and potatoes chocoholic who doesn't eat well in front of others. A dinner invitation to eat a meal at somebody's home is fraught with anxiety for me. Invariably, there will be food I won't eat. As such, I'll try to sit next to my wife at the far end of the table away from the hosts so I can sneak food I don't eat onto her plate. Since she's a good eater, possibly what I discard onto her plate won't be left in limbo.

This self-assessment comes from a former adolescent who spent countless hours in the Husky Department in Filenes, Jordon Marsh, Kennedy's, and Raleigh's in downtown Boston trying to find "school clothes." As a result, I've stood over so many piles of clothes in dressing rooms which didn't fit and/or had to try on and then walk a kind of shame onto the floor where my mother was anxiously waiting to see if what I had tried on, even fit and if it did, would it meet with her approval. Twice a year, I endured this shopping hell; fall and winter, spring and summer. I remain partially traumatized to this day. Not to mention all the "fat"-type nicknames my brother had for me: "Fatso," "Blimp," "Endicott Chubb," and "Corpulent," to name a few. But since he was my biggest booster, it never really bothered me. Still, I was never ever told I needed to eat. Far from it. I ate plenty, just the wrong stuff. Yet, in 2022, that's what I'm being told. Eat anything I want; whatever it takes to gain weight.

You might as well try to turn an ocean liner around after it's headed out to sea. It hardly turns on a dime, and as far as my eating habits/tendencies, et cetera, neither do I.
