Turning Point Suffragist Memorial To Be Built

$2 million project to be dedicated on Aug. 26, 2020 at Occoquan Regional Park.

BY STEVE HIBBARD
THE CONNECTION

A $2 million National Turning Point Suffragist Memorial is slated to be built in time for dedication on Aug. 26, 2020 at Occoquan Regional Park near the Occoquan River, said Patricia Depew Wirth, who is the Executive Director of the Turning Point Suffragist Memorial Association. The memorial planned near the Jean R. Packard Events Center is intended to honor the 5 million women who fought for women's suffrage.

On Saturday, Sept. 15, 2018, Patricia Depew Wirth told 40 members and guests of AAUW Springfield-Annandale branch at Kings Park Library in Burke that the memorial will contain various elements that all have a basis in suffragist history. There will be replicas of the White House gates and a wall to honor the women who were jailed in Occoquan Prison with plaques for each. It will also contain 19 information stations that will tell 72 years of the history of the Suffrage Movement, from 1848 to 1920. The memorial will include a bridge to "bridge the two centuries" that it took to get the women's right to vote. Rotunda pillars will represent Democracy. The memorial will also contain a meditation garden and interactive kiosks.

So far, Turning Point has received roughly $1 million in-kind and cash donations; Fairfax County donated $200,000 towards it, but it is still short on needed funding to complete the project. Some of The Turning Point's strategic partners include: AAUW, League of Women Voters, and NOVA Parks, which is donating the land and the perpetual maintenance of the facility. Donate at www.suffragistmemorial.org votes all of her time to building the memorial, gave a presentation of the movers and shakers in the Women's Suffrage Movement, starting with an audio of the Declaration of Sentiments — the document that changed course of women's lives in Seneca Falls, N.Y., in 1848. It was signed by 68 women and 32 men at the convention.

In addition to the Memorial, they are developing a Constitution Trail starting at the National Archives, going to Mount Vernon, Gunston Hall, Montpelier and to the Turning Point Suffragist Memorial.

She talked about the contributions of icons Elizabeth Cady Stanton and Lucretia Mott, who met in 1840 in London, England, to attend an international abolitionist convention.

"Many early suffragists were abolitionists. In that period of time, if you were married, you belonged to your husband. ... Women were limited in their ability to get higher education and get into the professions. They did not feel equal. That's why this movement got going," she said.

Wirth mentioned the contributions of Susan B. Anthony, of New York state, who dedicated her entire life to suffragists. In 1851, she marched into a polling place and attempted to vote but she was thrown on the sidewalk, manhandled and arrested for the crime of voting. "She had a trial, was found guilty of voting but never went to jail. She was a wonderful woman to be reckoned with," she said.

Mary Church Terrell, the founding member of NAACP in 1909, was the first African American woman to go to college, Wirth said. Terrell went to Oberlin, was a teacher, principal, and member of the Delta Sigma Theta sorority.

Another woman, Carrie Chapman Catt, was involved in National American Woman Suffrage Association and founder of the League of Women Voters in 1920. She focused on getting the vote state by state, by establishing offices in every state. She came out with "The Winning Plan" strategy that involved getting an Amendment to the Constitution and turned all those state offices into the League of Women Voters.

Wirth mentioned Alice Paul, the co-founder of the National Woman's Party, a Quaker from New Jersey, who authored the Equal Rights Amendment in 1923. "She became aware of the Suffragette movement in England overseen by Pankhurst family," she said. Paul marched with them, went to jail, went on hunger strikes and met Lucy Burns.

Alice Paul, who co-founded the National Women's Party with Lucy Burns, was a brilliant strategist who felt we needed an amendment to the constitution.

"She felt without it, women in the South would never get the vote. She knew what she was talking about," Wirth said.

In 1913, Alice Paul planned the March down Pennsylvania Avenue in Washington, D.C., where between 5,000 and 9,000 people marched in a parade for women's rights.

Next Step for Equality

After the 19th Amendment affirming women's right to vote was ratified in 1920, suffragist leader Alice Paul introduced the ERA in 1923 as the next step in bringing "equal justice under law" to all citizens. The proposed Equal Rights Amendment (ERA) states that the rights guaranteed by the Constitution apply equally to all persons regardless of their sex.

In 1972, the ERA was finally passed by Congress and sent to the states for ratification. The original seven-year time limit was extended by Congress to June 30, 1982, but at that deadline, the ERA had been ratified by only 35 states, three states short of the 38 required to put it into the Constitution.

Now, Virginia could be the last state needed to ratify the Equal Rights Amendment, which would pass on the floor of the House and the Senate in the session beginning Jan. 9, 2019, if opponents don't prevent the vote by tying it up in committee.

The Equal Rights Amendment Verbatim:
Section 1. Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state on account of sex.

Section 2. The Congress shall have the power to enforce, by appropriate legislation, the provisions of this article.

Section 3. This amendment shall take effect two years after the date of ratification.

The ERA has been introduced into every Congress since the deadline, and beginning in 1994, ERA advocates have been pursuing two different routes to ratification:

❖ the traditional process described in Article V of the Constitution (passage by a two-thirds majority in both the Senate and the House of Representatives, followed by ratification by three-quarters of the states), and

❖ the "three-state strategy" (ratification in three more of the 15 state legislatures that did not ratify the ERA in 1972-82, based on legal analysis that when three more states vote yes, this process could withstand legal challenge and accomplish ratification of the ERA). Virginia could be the third and final state needed to pursue this strategy were the Equal Rights Amendment to pass in the 2019 General Assembly session.

Navigating the Tween Years

Child development experts offer suggestions for a difficult period of development.

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL

One of the most unsettling times in a parent-child relationship can be the period of adolescence when children are growing into adulthood. During this period say mental health professionals, teens may exhibit defiance and disrespect while parent might experience hurt and question the quality of their parenting abilities.

This period of time in the lives of both parents and adolescents can be fraught with confusion, pain and disappointment. Understanding the reasons behind the sudden shift is one of the keys to navigating this life change. "One of the most important developmental tasks during adolescence is for the child to discover who they are apart from their parents in preparation for eventually living as an adult," said Melissa K. McCeney, Ph.D., professor of psychology at Montgomery College. "They are working to define their own values and goals, and part of that process involves questioning authority."

"It's a natural part of separation from parents," added Linda Gulyn, Ph.D., professor of psychology at Marymount University. "In fact most behaviors described as rude or disrespectful are the teen's way of expressing her desire to be her own person; not an extension of the parent."

Understanding what a child of this age might be feeling and experiencing can make parents more empathetic prepare them to help guide their children through this developmental period. "Adolescents also tend to be very idealistic and absolute in their thinking, which may lead them to become critical of parents who can't possibly live up to unrealistic standards," said McCeney. "Brain development during adolescence can make teens less sensitive to how other people are feeling and more sensitive to their own feelings. Consequently, they may behave in self-centered and inconsiderate ways without even realizing it."

During this period, some parents may question their parenting skills or style. "These things will happen regardless of parenting style because they're a normal part of the developmental process," said McCeney "Parenting style could affect how difficult this transitional period is, though. Children whose parents are overly permissive or demand immediate compliance with no discussion under threat of punishment are more likely to become teens who are very rude and disrespectful. Parents who have consistently had high expectations for their children within the context of a warm and nurturing relationship have already laid the groundwork for more constructive conflict resolution."

Gulyn suggests that parents exhibit authority, but avoid extremes. "Always set limits and boundaries, but do it in a way that you maintain a warm relationship with your child," she said. "Research shows that authoritarian, that is strict and punitive, and permissive, having no rules or boundaries, result in the most disrespectful and difficult rebellious behaviors."

When adolescents rebel, the way a parent responds can set the tone for the eventual outcome. "In my opinion, the parent needs to diffuse that moment with empathy or at least an expression of understanding how it must be for the teen," said Gulyn. "[For example,] 'I know it's frustrating trying to keep all those homework assignments straight ...'"

"I also believe the teen needs feedback that his rudeness hurts," continued Gulyn. "[For example,] 'Wow, that really made me feel bad when you talked to me that way.' You are the parent. You need to help your teen develop empathy and understand the consequences of their behaviors."

Encourage children to think about the effect their behavior might have on others, suggests Jerome Short, Ph.D, associate professor of psychology at Marymount University. "Parents should ask their children, 'How would you feel if someone did that to you?' or 'How do you think that person feels after you did that?'," suggests Short. "These questions increase a focus on empathy and compassion. Parents should make it clear that they value kindness and respect and want their children to value those principles too."

Reinforcement is more effective than punishment, advises McCeney, but she underscores the reality that actions have consequences, and sometimes they're unpleasant. "When punishment seems appropriate, try to stick with natural consequences as much as you can," she said. "For example, a teen who is being hateful at the dinner table might need to eat alone. If your child is insulting to you while you drive him to a party, perhaps you should turn around and go back home instead."

McCeney advises against consequences without warning. "If you go the punishment route, though, it's important to make sure your teen knows in advance exactly what the consequence will be and how they need to change their behavior in order to avoid it," she said. "For example, instead of making an unexpected screeching U-turn, say, 'What you just said to me was really rude, and I don't see why I should do you a favor if you're not going to be nice. If you speak disrespectfully to me again, we'll turn around and go home.' Then follow through as necessary. If you know your kid is likely to act up in a particular situation, lay out the rules ahead of time," continued McCeney. "If they tend to be rude to you to show off to their friends, let them know that if it happens at tomorrow's movie night at your house, they won't be able to have company over next weekend. Then they can make their own informed choices."

Addressing Rude Teen And Tween Behavior

- ❖ Model appropriate behavior. If your child yells at you and you respond by raising your own voice, they will seethe at your hypocrisy. Don't allow them to tempt you to stoop to their level.
- ❖ Choose your battles. If they actually do their chores, it won't hurt "not to notice" that they rolled their eyes and grumbled under their breath while they did them.
- ❖ Enforce appropriate boundaries. If your child is being rude and disrespectful, refuse to engage no matter how hard they push. Say something like, "I'll be happy to discuss this with you when you can speak to me respectfully," and then calmly walk away.
- ❖ Say yes when you can. Grant more independence as your child demonstrates that they can be trusted with it. Help them to understand that handling conflict respectfully is a sign of maturity and that you'll respond to it as such.
- ❖ Show them that you still care. Continue to be affectionate toward them and connect with them however you can despite the fact that they're not always behaving in the most lovable ways at this time. Often, teens feel lonely and vulnerable under their prickly exterior. Be generous with hugs, and remember that this is only a season. It will pass.

How To Vote

Every year is election year in Virginia; early voting begins Sept. 21.

So many local elections, and critical policy that follows, have been decided by so few votes, no one can reasonably say that their one single vote does not matter.

Just one example: Control of the entire Virginia General Assembly came down to a single delegate race which was so close, it was declared a tie after a recount. It was awarded to the Republican by literally pulling a name out of hat.

Vote. Vote early if you qualify. Vote Nov. 6 if you haven't already voted by then. Make a plan.

First, be sure you are registered. Oct. 15 is the deadline to register, and to check your registration. Many voters across the country have discovered that they have been unexpectedly dropped from the voter rolls, so be sure to check at elections.virginia.gov

Absentee Voting in Person Begins Sept. 21

Voting early if you qualify is a good choice. There are 20 valid reasons to vote absentee in Virginia, including working and commuting to and from home for 11 or more hours between 6 a.m. and 7 p.m. on Election Day. Check the Virginia Department of Elections list to see if you are eligible: <https://www.elections.virginia.gov/casting-a-ballot/absentee-voting/index.html>

There are two ways to vote absentee, in-person and by mail. To do either, you should first check your voter registration status to make sure it is up-to-date.

If you vote absentee in-person you will fill out the application when you arrive at the in-person absentee location.

Early Voting Locations, Dates and Hours

Scheduled to begin Friday, Sept. 21, through Saturday, Nov. 3 at the government center, and Oct. 13-Nov. 3 at the satellite locations.

PUBLIC NOTICE VOLUNTARY REMEDIATION PROGRAM (VRP) ACTIVITY

DEQ VRP Site 00712
Connell's Valet
148 Maple Avenue West
Vienna, Fairfax County, Virginia 22180

VRP Participant:
Vienna Shopping Center Limited Partnership
c/o Rappaport
8405 Greensboro Drive, 8th Floor
McLean, Virginia 22102-5121

The purpose of this notice is pursuant to the public participation requirements of the Virginia Department of Environmental Quality (DEQ) Voluntary Remediation Program (VRP) Regulations 9VAC20-160-120. Vienna Shopping Center Limited Partnership has enrolled "Vienna Shopping Center" (Site) in the VRP as VRP Site 00712. The Site consists of approximately 5.4 acres of land consisting of three strip-mall buildings which include restaurants, commercial businesses, asphalt-paved parking areas and landscaped areas. An active dry cleaner, currently Connell's Valet, has been in operation at the Site since approximately 1956. The dry cleaner operation reportedly utilized tetrachloroethylene (PCE) as a cleaning solvent until December 2002, when the PCE machine was removed from the site. The current dry cleaner equipment does not use PCE. Site investigation activities have documented the presence of PCE, trichloroethylene (TCE) and vinyl chloride, in sub-slab and deep soil gas samples at levels exceeding the VRP Tier II Screening Levels for unrestricted use. The extent of the release has been characterized and a Human Health Risk Assessment (HHRA) has been conducted to quantify potential risks to on-site workers absent remedial action. While the HHRA did not determine that risks to on-site workers were above VRP target levels, the participant has developed a Remedial Action Work Plan (RAWP) as a precautionary measure to ensure the health and safety of on-site workers. The RAWP will include engineering and institutional controls (EC/IC). The EC will include the installation of sub-slab depressurization system (SSDs) in the Connell's Valet tenant space and the two adjacent tenant spaces. The ICs will consist of a Declaration of Restrictive Covenants to be recorded in the Fairfax County land records and will include: (1) a prohibition against residential use of the Site, and (2) a requirement that a vapor mitigation system will be included in any new construction of occupied spaces in the affected area. The participant intends to request a Certification of Satisfactory Completion of Remediation for VRP Site 00712 after the close of the public notice period.

Historic Fight

Wirth talked about Inez Milholland Boissevain, a suffragist and well-to-do lawyer, who died from pernicious anemia while she was giving a talk out West on women's voting. "We look at her as the martyr of the Suffragist movement," she said. Her memorial service was in the U.S. Capitol on Christmas Day 1916.

BEGINNING IN JANUARY 1917, women started picketing Woodrow Wilson's White House. By June 1917, Wilson gave word to start arresting the protestors for obstructing the sidewalk.

Lucy Burns, Co-Founder, National woman's Party, was one of the prisoners at Occoquan Workhouse in Lorton, where the conditions were brutal. Women on hunger strikes were force fed through their noses and mouths. "This is what women were willing to do so that we could vote," she said.

The word leaked out to the national press of their horrible treatment, so in November 1917, the women were transported from Occoquan to D.C. and were released from jail. In January 1918, the D.C. Court of Appeals ruled that their arrests were illegal so they were all freed.

Still, women were not included in the Constitution until the 19th Amendment.

It was President Wilson who went to Congress to say we need a National Amendment for the women's right to vote. The House of Representatives voted yea immediately but the Senate waited another 18 months to decide. Thus, began the fight for ratification in 36 states. Ratification came down to one final state: Tennessee. The vote in the Tennessee legislature was 48-48. So, as they were doing the vote count, they got to Rep. Harry Burn, age 26, who had received a note from his mother encouraging him to do the right thing and vote for suffrage. Burn's vote broke the tie in favor of ratifying the amendment. He cast the final vote, giving women the right to vote in 1920.

The ratification of the 19th Amendment led to the largest single one-day increase of potential voters in the history of the United States. It took 72 years to pass and ratify the 19th Amendment, but the Equal Rights Amendment has yet to be adopted to this day.

A Tail Not of Woe

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

You know what's impossible – or next to impossible? Trying to write a funny non-cancer column while on hold with the Oncology Department waiting for calculations to be made by their pharmacist which will determine if my creatinine levels (kidney function) are low enough to allow me to get my infusion today.

No big deal, really. It's only a matter of life and hopefully my avoiding death.

And to complicate this waiting/holding "interminableness," one of our five cats, "Twinkle," is walking back and forth across my desk, rubbing my writing hand with her head – while I'm trying to write no less, as she steps repeatedly on my writing pad.

Oh. One more thing, she keeps knocking down the wireless land-line phone that I've placed on my desk – which I have on speaker, close enough to hear but far enough, I thought, to keep her at bay. It never ceases to amaze me how cats seem to know where you don't want them go and invariably that's almost always where they seem to end up.

Now back to my original situation: Waiting for the pharmacist to calculate my results.

After nearly 30 minutes on hold, with "Twinkle" having been occupied elsewhere during the last 10 minutes or so. (After I implored her to "Give me some space, please?" she jumped off the desk.) Finally, I have received word that I'm approved for my infusion. And now that I'm no longer on telephone-hold, I doubt I'll be seeing any more of her.

Oh. I was wrong. Here she is again.

This time however, she's brought along "Biscuit," one of the two oldest "buff-colored" brothers we rescued in September '06. But I'm more tolerant of their interference now as I've been given the infusion OKAY. (Not a thrill really, but, as mentioned in previous columns – and confirmed by my oncologist in a reply-email to me, this third dose of chemotherapy in the last seven weeks might have a bearing on the results of my upcoming Sept. 26 CT scan. That sound you heard was me exhaling.)

Another peculiar feline behavior: they seem to know when their behavior is not as bothersome/interfering as it might otherwise be so they refrain a bit. (A bit.)

So now I have nothing to wait for except Godot (who never shows). My results will show up though, on or about Sept. 28, more than likely via email from my oncologist. Important to consider that the 28th is a Friday and given that lines of communication don't flow as often on the weekends, we'd really rather know before the weekend so that we can get on with our lives.

And, as I'm sure you can appreciate, this is no laughing matter and receiving results – good or bad – in a timely fashion does enable us to get on with our lives.

For the moment, however, it's still about waiting and hoping, but no planning – yet. Discussing scenarios before the actual facts are known has never been my oncologist's way. When we know definitively, then we'll act definitively. We've had some preliminary discussions about alternatives going forward, but until further details are known, it's all premature.

For the moment then, my existence is about managing expectations, trying to remain positive and letting go.

I mean, when the scan is finished, the results will be what they will be. I don't imagine there's much I can do about it now. When those results are known, then we'll go to plan "B," or revert to current plan "A."

My life is not likely to change significantly either way in the short term so all I can do is maintain my status quo. There's no panic.

Anxiety? Of course. Anticipation? Yes, in a weird way. I would like to know what treatment/potential side effects and all are in store for me living forward but it's still "early days." Maybe the cats do know something. We've heard it rumored that cats have a sixth sense about sickness and death.

Oh, oh. Here's comes "Biscuit," he's been hanging around me an awful lot lately, very uncharacteristic. Should I be concerned or just appreciative of the attention?

Making Freshman Feel at Home at Madison High

On Sept. 13th, Nathan and Gail Hibler were the stars in James Madison High School's Career Center. On behalf of the Members of The Warhawk Foundation Board, they were to present a check of $10,000 to fund the 2018-2019 Mentor Program at James Madison High School.

The mentor program allows any incoming freshmen to be mentored by an upperclassman. Upperclassmen students offer friendship, support, and guidance for their younger classmates as they begin their journey in High School. The program also offers leadership skills for the upperclassmen and teaches them how to develop positive relationships. Gail Hibler, who has been part of the JMHS family for 13 years, saw a shift as she worked in the attendance office.

"I started to recognize that not every student had the same support as others and it's something that you would not imagine in Vienna. There are a lot of grandparents raising students, single parents, families that have come from war-torn areas, which we forget in this environment. You don't see many [minorities], but there are quite a lot in this building, they're just for the most part invisible," said Gail Hibler. "My husband and I, he was a foreign diplomat, so for 15 years we lived overseas, so it's a cause that's close to our hearts and we want to try and ensure that everyone is treated equally and everyone has equal opportunities. We started the Warhawk Scholarship Fund last year and so far, we gave eight scholarships in 2017 and we gave 10 in 2018. If we can highlight to these young people that not everyone is as fortunate as them and just to open their eyes a little bit, I think once they start working with the underclassmen they'll see that," said Hibler.

The Warhawk Foundation is a federally approved 501(c)(3) charity that focuses on the educational development of all JMHS students and alumni. Since 2017, it has awarded more than $100,000 in post-secondary education scholarships and grants. The

Where and When

Theater audiences hungry for a compelling, dark comic-tragedy having its DC area premiere need look no further than 1st Stage in Tysons. With a stylish, well-performed production of British playwright Alan Ayckbourn's "Hero's Welcome," 1st Stage continues to present superior, new-ish theatrical creation not previously seen in the area.

Ayckbourn's "Hero's Welcome" is a prickly tale of simmering discord. Who and what can be trusted are key themes. There is plenty of smug condescension from those who think themselves superior with snippets of comic undertones.

Under Alex Levy's finely-honed direction and his inspired diverse casting, what could have been a tale of nasty, privileged white British citizens becomes enveloping as it careers about.

"Hero's Welcome" starts with the return of local war hero Murray played by Nick DePinto as a man with plenty of secrets to unravel about his life. Seems he left town nearly two decade before under a very dark cloud. Murray returns home with his young foreign-born wife. She is called Baba for short. She is with limited English language skills providing the opportunity for others to think her not-bright; something they do at their own peril. Baba is portrayed by a charmingly endearing Angeleaza Anderson. Murray and Baba have plans to resuscitate a now seedy hotel called the Bird of Prey.

War hero Murray is the petrol who lights disruptive fires under the assured public façade of his home town's upper crust. One coiled-up couple is portrayed by Anna Bowles as Kara, a verbally abused wife living in a decorated cell of a prison, as she calls her home. Her abuser husband Brad is played by Clayton Pelham Jr. as tormentor-in-chief full of hostility and contempt.

Another couple is composed of Lisa Hodsoll, persuasively playing Alice, an agonized, glum town Mayor with secrets of her own and James J. Johnson as her timid husband Derek with model trains as his diversion from reality.

Each character is visually distinct in attire designed by Danielle Preston. Kathryn Kaweki's set is a handsome; with detailed, distinct areas depicting various life-styles.

Ayckbourn penned a play not for those with little appetite for verbal or emotional assaults about marriage and wartime. "Hero's Welcome" also has some overlong scenes that add little but time to the proceedings. But, under director Levy's fine touch and the cast's acting talents, the play has a reflective air that leaves its mark with a fiery conclusion.
