GFCA Concerned Over Reduced Emergency Response

Requests community involvement and decision takeback.

BY MERCIA HOBSON
THE CONNECTION

The Great Falls Citizens Association wrote to Fairfax County Board of Supervisors Chairman Jeffrey C. McKay (D) and Dranesville District Supervisor John W. Foust (D) on Feb. 12 to express their disappointment and concerns about the outcome of a meeting of the Board's Public Safety Committee that permanently cuts emergency response service to Great Falls, as well as the community's lack of input in the decision. Bill Canis, president of the GFCA, signed the letter, which he copied to the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors and County Fire Chief John Butler.

Canis said that while the Fire and Rescue Department must address urgent workforce shortages, the GFCA is concerned that permanent changes to its paramedic service delivery are not as urgent, should not be paired with temporary Covid-related decisions, and would result in a reduction in service levels to the Great Falls community. Canis added that community engagement could have resulted in a better conclusion since the Board may not have adequately examined Great Falls' specific characteristics.

One problem is that the Potomac River prevents access to Great Falls from the north. Homes are difficult to reach due to the hilly, winding, two-lane roads. In addition, they rely on a limited number of backup fire stations, which are only accessible from the south and complicated access to water. GFCA requests a response time and risk assessment for paramedic emergencies for the community that now relies on a backup station's response.

According to Canis, Fairfax County Fire & Rescue Station #12 Great Falls Volunteer Fire Department is staffed by Fairfax County fire and rescue personnel and over 40 volunteers — five firefighters, thirty-two EMTs, and five to six paramedics. He maintains that the volunteers were excluded from the staff evaluation process and are now being requested to serve outside of the Great Falls region.

"With the elimination of one of the two paramedic positions from the Great Falls Station and removal of life-saving medications and equipment from Great Falls ambulances, the BoS has placed the Great Falls community at a greater life-threatening risk," Canis wrote. According to the Board of supervisors' plan, a paramedic who doesn't have Advanced Life Support equipment or medicine will be sent.

Canis wrote in the letter if the paramedic verifies the requirement for Advanced Life Support, a request for another Advanced Life Support paramedic will be issued to a backup station. To get to the northern area of Great Falls, that unit must travel from their community's station over Rt 7 into Great Falls and probably past Station 12.

Assistant Fire Chief Thomas Arnold

"We estimate this new procedure ... will take 20-25 minutes compared to 6 minutes if the services were available in Great Falls," Canis wrote.

Canis disputed Fire and Rescue Department's emergency response data, claiming that Station 12's data showed a greater number of Advanced Life Support calls.

GFCA requested that the BoS ensure that in the future, the impacted communities are involved in discussions and decisions. Their questions should be answered before other significant BoS decisions are made and "consider the Great Falls specific concerns raised... [about response time, risk, volunteers, cost, and service capabilities] to see if the eliminated paramedic positions and ambulance capabilities can be restored."

According to Fairfax County Assistant Fire Chief Thomas Arnold, the Fire and Rescue Department does not view any challenges or impact for Great Falls Community or any other of the 12 stations that have converted units. "In CY2021 for the Great Falls station, there were only 70 ALS transports, and over the last 12 months, the total is 53, this is in the bottom 10 percent of ALS transports by station." He added that the Fire and Rescue Department still has an Advanced Life Support provider on the engine assigned to this station who can provide ALS services. "We have always relied on other stations to assist if the first due station is on an incident or unavailable. We will do the same in this situation," Arnold said.

On Feb. 11, the day before GFCA sent their letter to Supervisor Foust, he commented on the pending matter.

"Chief Butler and his team are very conscientious and provide an excellent level of service to all county residents, including Great Falls residents," Foust said. "They would not adopt a service model that puts peoples' lives at risk. They have explained the difficulty in recruiting and retaining paramedics and how their plan makes adjustments that will maximize the utilization of the paramedics. I believe that plan will be implemented without adversely impacting the service that is provided."

Fairfax County Fire & Rescue Transitions From All Advanced Life Support System

BY MERCIA HOBSON
THE CONNECTION

Over the next several months, the Fairfax County Fire & Rescue Department is making some changes in staffing to accommodate staff shortages beyond concerns about Covid. Migrating from an all Advanced Life Support system back to a two-tiered Emergency Medical System system will allow countywide coverage that addresses the current hiring situation.

Reintegration of the dual-tier EMS system.

On Feb. 8, Assistant Fire Chief Thomas Arnold said that the county's Fire & Rescue Department does not view any challenges or negative impact on the 12 stations that have converted units. The initial change will be followed by a performance data acquisition and analysis review period.

The twelve fire stations are Annandale 8, Bailey's Crossroads 10, Great Falls 12, Chantilly 15, Clifton 16, Gunston 20, Reston 25, West Springfield 27, Fox Mill 31, Fairfax Center 40, Crosspointe 41, and Scott's Run 44. According to Arnold, the Fire & Rescue Department would operate 43 transport units, 12 Basic Life Support, and 31 Advanced Life Support.

While Great Falls Citizens Association expressed concern about the plan, Supervisor John Foust said, "Chief Butler and his team are very conscientious and provide an excellent level of service to all county residents, including Great Falls residents,” Foust said. “They would not adopt a service model that puts peoples’ lives at risk. They have explained the difficulty in recruiting and retaining paramedics and how their plan makes adjustments that will maximize the utilization of the paramedics. I believe that plan will be implemented without adversely impacting the service that is provided.”

The degree of training and certification dictates duties, with Advanced Life Support, paramedic being the highest. Advanced Life Support providers may provide cardiac life support, CPR, endotracheal intubation for airway management, intravenous catheters for medication and fluid administration, and more as pre-hospital emergency medical treatment.

Arnold wrote the factors that came into play to determine which stations were the percentage of Advanced Life Support/Basic Life Support dispatches, call volume, and proximity to hospitals. He cited that some averaged less than two hours of utilization per 24-hour shift due to the saturation of Advanced Life Support equipped transport units. Using a variety of data points and an equity lens avoided disproportionately impacting certain county areas more than others.

The Fire & Rescue Department’s former all Advanced Life Support system prioritized having an Advanced Life Support provider, a trained paramedic, on all transport units. However, he added, “This move requires the abundant availability of Advanced Life Support providers and comes with associated personnel, equipment, and training costs.” When the Fire & Rescue Department implemented the current staffing model in 2015, it was determined that the county needed to hire 48 new paramedics each year to meet the target goal of Advanced Life Support providers and account for attrition. But the Fire & Rescue Department has averaged only 20 new Advanced Life Support providers per year over the last eight years, accounting for 43 percent of the target goal.

The loss of Advanced Life Support providers and not being able to replace them left the Fire & Rescue Department to depend on staff overtime and the use of “dual-hatters,” Advanced Life Support providers who served in two roles at the same time — as an Advanced Life Support provider and an apparatus driver, or as an Advanced Life Support provider and a unit officer. Conflict may arise when both tasks are vital and time is of the essence.

Although the Fire & Rescue Department relied on using dual hatters for over ten years, which helped bridge staffing challenges, it proved less than ideal due to the issues presented, according to Arnold. When dual hatters have other primary responsibilities, their skills degrade when assigned to stations with lower call volumes. “Over time, this may adversely impact patient care,” Arnold said.

Arnold added that the overall impact of the change on staffing needs would be a decrease in Advanced Life Support providers per day and an increase in Basic Life Support providers per day. The transition would be permanent and not part of the staffing adjustments made in early January due to the rise in COVID cases among staff.

As for procedures, EMTs can perform, Arnold wrote, “The potential skills at which our EMTs can perform has increased over the last several years as the Virginia Office of Emergency Medical Services (VAOEMS) adds skills to the EMT scope of practice.” These include administering oral glucose, Epi Rite, baby aspirin for chest pain, iGel airway insertion, tourniquet use, and hemostatic gauze for wound packing. “Working with our Operational Medical Director, the Fire & Rescue Department has added skills to the EMT. This increased skill set will allow EMTs to perform skills that previously could only be completed by an ALS provider,” he said. Skills that will be implemented soon, according to Arnold, are administering oral ondansetron for nausea/vomiting, acetaminophen/ ibuprofen for pain, and other procedures.

Proposed unit reductions formally came to light on Jan. 11, during the Board of Supervisors Public Safety Committee Meeting. According to Fire Chief Butler, it was a question of balancing reduced staffing and health and safety department staff with service to the community.

“We’re working through some challenging times as you’ve seen and heard me talk about,” Butler said, referring to, among other things, vacancies, COVID cases, and attrition.

“We estimated we would have around 90 vacancies today (as of Jan. 1, 2022), but we’re currently at 105 with the two recruit schools in session. ... Then omicron happened, and that took up a lot of the gains we had achieved from the new graduating classes and wiped those gains out ... causing our vacancies to spike,” Butler said.

There is a concern for the health and safety of the Fire & Rescue Department providers and frontline responders.

“Some have been working 60 consecutive hours at a time. This poses a risk to them at work and commuting to and from their homes to their families, the fatigue factor,” Butler said. “So, we’re here to provide the highest quality service to our community and balance staffing.” The Fire & Rescue Department has a reported 1,260 career staff.

Black History Month: Filling in the Gaps

African American parents are giving their children accurate and comprehensive lessons on Black history.

BY MARILYN CAMPBELL
THE CONNECTION

When Tracy Grant's fifth-grade son Hunter came home from school one day during Black History Month several years ago, she recalls his recounting of a lesson that he'd just learned. He said that his social studies teacher told the class that most slaves were treated well because their owners saw them as an expensive investment. Grant was speechless.

"I was baffled by that level of ignorance. Did that teacher not know that slaves could have their finger chopped off for knowing how to write or that some small slave children were fed slop in the same trough that were used to feed pigs on the plantation?" asked Grant, a registered nurse and Springfield mother of two. "That was when I decided that if I wanted my children to learn about Black history, I would have to teach them myself."

In the age of racial tension and restrictions around the teaching of African American history, black parents are serving as history tutors to ensure that their children receive a comprehensive and unbridled education on the atrocities, both past and present, faced by members of the African diaspora. A few local parents share their ideas.

"I don't focus on blaming or bad mouthing anyone, but I make sure my children know about the racist things that happened in the past," Anderson said. "They have to know our country's past actions so that they can understand what is going on today and why. Minimizing the realities of slavery does a disservice to not only Black students, but to society as a whole. How can we even begin to deal with racial problems in this country if children grow up with inaccurate views of the tragedies of our past?"

From slavery and lynching to the Jim Crow era and the Civil Rights Movement, Grant uses trips to historical sites to give her children a lesson in Black history. "When I take my children and their friends to Mount Vernon, I don't go on the guided tour," she said. "I give them my own tour and explain our history. No matter how the media portrays us today, our children need to understand that we come from hard-working ancestors."

As an African American parent, Gloria Anderson, a Chevy Chase, Maryland mother of three, believes that it is her job to offer her children in-depth lessons rather than broad overviews. "Most people think of Martin Luther King and Rosa Parks when they think of Black history, but there are so many more people of color who have made great contributions to this country," she said. "Everyone should visit the African American History Museum. Even though we've made strides, stereotypes and feelings of victimization have caused members of our race to have a sense of hopelessness."

"I have to make sure that my children know about Black heroes like Dr. Charles Drew, continued Anderson, referring to an African American surgeon who was known

The original U.S. Army Band at Fort Hunt in 1922.

It All Started at Fort Hunt The U.S. Army Band centennial was Jan. 25, 2022.

BY GLENDA C. BOOTH
THE CONNECTION

Fort Hunt Park's visitors today hear crows cawing, chickadees chirping, airplanes descending to National Airport and vehicles buzzing up and down the George Washington Memorial Parkway. One hundred years ago, they might have heard the melodious sounds of trumpets, saxophones and flutes rippling across the rural landscape from what was then the U.S. Army's Fort Hunt.

January 25, 2022, marked the centennial of the U.S. Army Band's founding at Fort Hunt.

In 1922, the Coast Artillery Corps was stationed at the fort to help protect Washington, D.C., the nation's capital, from naval assault ships coming up the Potomac River, though one observer at the time wisecracked that this unit was not capable of attacking a dinghy.

The Army had started a music school in 1910-1911 at the Washington Barracks, today's Fort McNair, but when they organized a formal band of around 100 men, they moved to Fort Hunt because some buildings, now long gone, were available. Most of the band members were single and lived in barracks. In just nine months, September 1922, the band moved from Fort Hunt to the Washington Barracks.

There's another local connection: Fort Belvoir's Army Institute of Heraldry created the Army Band's uniform, one authorized exclusively for this band.

The original band had both professionals and novices. The first leader, Warrant Officer Francis Leigh, graded the musicians.

"Some could barely play an instrument," snickers Adam Lessard, today's head of the band's collections and archives.

The band's first public performance was at an April 27, 1922 dedication of a statue of General Ulysses S. Grant at the U.S. Capitol. To travel from Fort Hunt to performance sites members had to be "creative," Lessard says, navigating over muddy roads, using street cars and taking water taxis across the Potomac River. (The south section of the George Washington Memorial Parkway to Mount Vernon Estate was completed 1932.)

They had their first radio broadcast in 1923 and in the 1930s averaged four a week. In 1927, they performed at a ceremony honoring Charles Lindberg's historic Spirit of St. Louis flight from New York to Paris, France.

In 1942, Fort Myer in Arlington became their home installation and is still their home today, near Arlington National Cemetery where they often play for funerals and ceremonies. Fort Myer today is called Joint Base Myer-Henderson Hall.

Starting as a mostly concert band of around 86 musicians, today the band has 256 professional musicians who stage 6,000 performances or missions a year. There's a concert band, ceremonial band, strings, chorus, herald trumpets, blues band and a band that plays rock, pop, country, rhythm and blues and inspirational music.

Pershing's Own

The band is called "Pershing's Own" because General John "Black Jack" J. Pershing believed the U.S. Army should have a band like the polished ones he had seen in Europe in World War I. He ordered the band's formation and believed it could boost the troops' spirits.

MAKING HISTORY

Today's Pershing's Own is a group of highly-trained, professional musicians who perform at some of the nation's most high-profile events, for U.S. Presidents, the U.S. Congress and foreign dignitaries.

They are the official band for full honor ceremonies at Arlington Cemetery's Tomb of the Unknown Soldier. They provide buglers for wreath layings and do the fanfare for arrivals of foreign heads of state. They perform patriotic programs, for example, at the U.S. Capitol with the National Symphony Orchestra.

Mount Vernon resident Sergeant First Class Paul Tucker, a saxophonist, loves the camaraderie, shared sense of mission and playing with world-class musicians, he says. "Performing in the Army Band at important ceremonies and concerts in our nation's capital has been an incredible honor, whether it is the Presidential inaugural parade or a Medal of Honor recipient ceremony or an outdoor summer concert. It is personally very rewarding to both make music and also represent the U.S. Army.”

The band welcomed John Glenn back from his historic space flight in 1962 and played for the Apollo 11 astronauts’ return from the moon in 1969. Pershing’s Own performed at the 1987 summit of U.S. President Ronald Reagan and the Soviet Union’s General Secretary Mikhail Gorbachev.

After the Sept. 11, 2001, terrorist attacks, band members helped with recovery efforts at the Pentagon and a month later, participated in a memorial service at New York City’s Ground Zero. They performed for the 50th anniversary of NATO (North Atlantic Treaty Organization) in 2005.

In 2021, they played for the post-inauguration wreath-laying ceremony for President Joseph Biden at Tomb of the Unknown Soldier. Their brass quintet, one of the band’s ensembles, played for people arriving for the late General Colin Powell’s funeral this past November.

Diplomacy

The musicians have also practiced diplomacy. In World War II, the band had a two-year deployment to North Africa and Europe. It came under a German V-2 rocket bomb attack in Antwerp, Belgium, in 1944. Rockets aside, “Playing concerts in countries like Algiers and Morocco, they were representatives of the American liberating force,” Lessard says.

In 2002, some band members did a six-day USO tour of Kuwait, Afghanistan and Uzbekistan to support Operation Enduring Freedom.

The band had a memorable exchange with China’s Military Band of the People’s Liberation Army in 2011 and 2012, performing together at the Kennedy Center, at the United Nation in New York and in China, playing both American and Chinese pieces. “We are more similar than we are dissimilar,” commented then Major General Michael Linnington.

When dignitaries visit the U.S., the band plays the national anthem of the visitor’s home country.

Hollin Hall resident and percussionist Larry Ferguson found his two USO tours to Iraq and Afghanistan to be very rewarding. For him, the band has been a capstone of his musical pursuits that started 36 years ago. At age 10, he began playing drums and he’s been a percussionist playing instruments like the drum, cymbals, xylophone, triangle and tambourine for 20 years. “The Army and the Army band have been an amazing career. I’ve been fortunate enough to pursue my passion while giving something back to the nation through concerts and high-profile ceremonies,” he says.

Emily Ross, who handles band operations, played the clarinet with the band for 17 years. “It’s a great way to serve your country and perform the music that you love,” she believes. Band members surely agree.

Coyotes Spotted in All Parts of Fairfax County

Seldom seen, coyotes have been living next to people for a long time.

BY MIKE SALMON
THE GAZETTE

A coyote spotted in Lee District Park caused some alarm amongst nearby residents that coyotes possibly pose a threat to pets that are left unattended.

“Coyotes differ from most other wildlife species in urban areas in that they are often perceived to be a danger or a nuisance simply by being seen,” says Fairfax County information on the website. “Most complaints regarding coyotes are that they occur near people, even when no incidents or damages have occurred. Simply seeing a coyote should not be cause for alarm.”

A picture of the animal at Lee District Park was posted on the Next-door social media site, and there were several responses.

Renee Grebe, of Loft Ridge Small Side, praised the presence of coyotes. “We’ve got them all over here - what a joy to have! Thank you, coyotes, for helping keep our rodent population in check,” she said.

In nearby Huntley Meadows Park, coyotes have been heard after dark, said one of the Friends of Huntley Meadows Park.

Marlene Koenig of Manchester Lakes said on social media, “I have seen [coyotes] in the Kingstowne area since the late 1990s. There is a pack of perhaps six that live in Huntley Meadows. You can hear the howling at times.”

According to the county, coyotes are opportunistic foragers with diverse diets that commonly prey on small animals such as mice, rats, voles and rabbits but will also readily eat fruits, plants and carrion.

But coyotes may “mistake” small, unattended pets including cats and small dogs as prey.

“They will however see any small pets as food, particularly outdoor cats, when they find them wandering off in the woods,” according to Alonso Abugattas in the Capital Naturalist blog. “This is just one more good reason among so many to not let cats out.”

“Coyotes are remarkably shy and avoid people any way they can,” Abugattas said. “Most are rarely seen, and certainly are no danger to people.”

Coyotes are territorial and may view larger dogs as potential competitors, particularly from January to June while mating and birthing pups, although actual confrontations are rare.

In May 2018 Animal Protection Police Officers and the Fairfax County Wildlife Management Specialist reported that a small dog was attacked and killed in the forested area of the Parklawn community of Alexandria.

PHOTO CONTRIBUTED

Coyotes have been seen in every part of Fairfax County.

This coyote goes to the Lake d’Evereux neighborhood frequently. The neighborhood is right next to Huntley Meadows Park.

“The best way to safeguard pets in areas where coyotes are active is to keep them indoors and do not leave them outside without supervision,” said Dr. Katherine Edwards, Fairfax County Wildlife Management Specialist.

According to the Capital Naturalist blog by Abugattas, <https://capitalnaturalist.blogspot.com/> or on Facebook:

“Our Eastern Coyote (Canis latrans) ... was first noticed around 1930 or so spreading East near the Great Lakes, as Western Coyotes wandered over and took over the areas vacated by most gray wolves. They mixed with Algonquian Wolves and continued to travel, mixing along the way with dogs as well. What resulted was a mix of about 60% Western Coyote, 30% Algonquian Wolf, and the remainder dog, though these averages can vary. They are now found in every county in the mid-Atlantic.

“The Eastern Coyote is bigger than those in the West, about the size of a border collie or even German Shepherd, often between 45 to 55lbs, though occasionally bigger. The males are usually larger than the females. They are not only larger, but often tend to be more quiet than their western cousins, not howling as much, and often in much smaller groups. Their color can be variable as well, though they’re often some shade of tan, with erect ears, bushy downward-pointing tail with a dark tip. Most have white chins as well.”

NEXTDOOR

Coyotes are in every part of the area. These were near the Potomac River on the Maryland side.

Fairfax County lists a series of tips for coexisting with coyotes:

- ❖ Never feed or attempt to “tame” a coyote.
- ❖ Place garbage and compost in an animal-proof container, such as a metal trash can with latches on the lid or secure with bungee cords.
- ❖ Do not feed pets outside or store pet food outside.
- ❖ Keep small pets inside and do not leave unattended when outside.
- ❖ Provide secure shelters for poultry, rabbits, and other vulnerable animals.
- ❖ Coyotes are most active at night and early morning hours; however, they may be active during the day in search of food or denning sites.
- ❖ If you see a coyote crossing your property, and you don’t want it there, let use hazing techniques to frighten coyotes from the property or exclusion measures to restrict their access. Yell and wave your arms at the coyote. Use noisemakers such as whistles, air horns, bells, “shaker” cans full of marbles or pennies, or pots and pans banged together.

The Caregivers' Support Group, started in 2002, is for caregivers of adult family members. Most of the care receivers have dementia, but that condition is not a requirement. Some are cared for at home, some in local assisted living facilities, and some are out of state. Meetings are gently facilitated and encourage sharing of feelings, problems, helpful information, and bright spots. These sessions are held the 1st and 3rd Tuesday of every month from 10 a.m.-11:30 a.m. via Zoom. For more information, contact Jack Tarr, 703-821-6838, jtarr5@verizon.net; or Lynn Rafferty, 703-508-1365, radmom8992@gmail.com.

for his lifesaving blood plasma research.

Many Post-Civil War periods in African American history, such as the forced sterilization of African American women, are omitted from mainstream teachings, says Anderson. "Reading historical fiction gives children a sense of the psychological damage that African Americans have endured throughout history," she said. "I make sure that all of my children read books like 'Like Roll of Thunder Hear My Cry' by Mildred Taylor. It paints a real picture of what life was like for sharecroppers. There are some children who grow up thinking that sharecropping helped Black people get on their feet and create a better life for themselves after slavery ended. In reality, Whites used lynching, beatings and burnings to intimidate sharecroppers so they stayed chained to the land without the possibility of improving their lives."

Presenting Black history in a way that young children can understand, preschool teacher Vonetia Hartley, Alexandria mother of three adult children and four grandchildren, uses the achievements of prominent African Americans figures to help her students and grandchildren realize that there are no limits to what they can achieve. "I want them to understand the importance of knowing who they are and how unique they are," she said. "I want them to know that there are so many options in their future. Whether they want to be president, governor, doctor, police officer, airplane pilot or inventor, they can become it."

Extending lessons on African American history beyond 28 days in February is what Grant encourages. "It should be woven into our everyday lives so that it's not seen as something special to think about in February," Grant said. "Our ancestors made contributions that affect us every day."

Obituary

Obituary

Tabitha Ann Roark Dassler

Ann's life was completed on February 7, 2022. She was with us for 85 years.

A daughter of John and Georgia Roark of Altavista, Virginia, Ann graduated from Randolph Macon Woman's College. She moved to Charlottesville, Virginia where she met Fred Dassler of Richmond, just prior to his graduation from the School of Engineering at UVA. In 1962, they married eight months after meeting each other. They moved to Maryland, Arlington, Virginia, then to Great Falls, Virginia where they settled for 36 years before retiring to Onancock, Virginia.

Her family grew from late 1963 through 1971, with births of four sons: Alan Frederick, Christopher Lee, Jonathan Craig, and Carl Matthew. As a dedicated wife and mother, she instilled in her sons the essence of her character, as a Spirit Filled Christian to follow Christian ethics, practices, a daily discipline of Bible reading, and to honor and give thanks to our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. She spent countless hours in prayer for her family, all our family friends, our leaders, and those who toil as missionaries.

Her cheerful and optimistic charisma is remembered by all who experienced her open and forthright forgiving nature. She leaves behind a large host of friendships and prayer partners, and viewed herself as one of God's prayer warriors.

She is survived by her husband Fred; their four sons and wives, with each couple having a son and daughter comprising Ann's eight grandchildren. She leaves her extended family members in Altavista, Lynchburg, Virginia Beach, Richmond, and Waynesboro, Virginia.

A memorial service will be held at St. George's Episcopal Church in Pungoteague, VA, on Saturday, February 19, 2022, at 11:00 a.m. A reception will follow the service at church, then graveside interment at the Fairview Lawn Cemetery in Onancock, VA.

Memorial gifts can be offered to: The Bible Broadcasting Network Pro, P.O. Box 7300, Charlotte, North Carolina 28241, Elim Fellowship, 1703 Dalton Road, Lima, NY 14485 to support the missionary work of Charlene Harris, or to St. George's Episcopal Church, C/O Peter Mariner, P.O. Box 170, Pungoteague, VA 23422.

Memory tributes may be shared with the family at www.williamsfuneralhomes.com. Arrangements by the Williams-Onancock Funeral Home.

Date With Destiny – Or Not

By KENNETH B. LOURIE

Despite having cancer and having been given a "terminal" diagnosis/"13 month to two years" prognosis in late February 2009, I rarely, believe or not, consider my own mortality. Well, occasionally in these columns, but day-to-day, hardly ever. Oddly enough, something occurred the other day which meant very little to me when I first heard about it until I read more about it today on the ESPN website. 'It' being that former Major League baseball player Jeremy Giambi had died. Mr. Giambi was 47, but initially no cause of death or any other particulars were provided. Today's story, an Associated Press release filled in some of the gaps. His cause of death was suicide and listed his date of birth (finally the point of this column) as September 30, 1974.

Why should you care? Probably not for the same reason as I do. Jeremy Giambi and I share the same birthday: Sept. 30, though not the same birth year. Nevertheless, seeing a person you have heard of – which I have, or whom billions of others haven't, die, and whose birthday is identical to yours is – sobering, and I don't even drink. In an odd and complicated way, seeing/hearing/reading about someone dying with whom you share a birthday is unsettling somehow. To invoke a "Star Wars" reference, I feel something akin to a weakening of the force. And in this context, that feeling being whatever intangible/physical/spiritual 'force' keeps us alive. I don't want to see anyone dying, especially anyone who has the same as birthday as I do. It's as if any other person dying who has a September 30 birthday affects my mortality somehow, and that I'm at greater risk because of it, like we have some sort of connection. It's like when another cancer patient succumbs to our shared disease. I don't exactly feel their pain, but I feel the loss, as if I've lost a key member of Team Lourie. And as a cancer patient still undergoing treatment, I don't need any negativity seeping in.

In fact, I can't see how thinking about death in any context is helpful. Early on in my cancer life, I was told by multiple medical professionals how important – and helpful, maintaining a positive attitude would be – and has proved to be. Though there's no real empirical evidence, anecdotal evidence suggests however, that there is a link between attitude and survival. As a longtime cancer patient who has remained positive about this incredible negative, I believe this to be way more than an abstract theory.

For me, and all of you, life goes on until it doesn't, duh. Still, I don't want or need to be reminded of my own mortality, in any context. Moreover, I realize I had already jumped to the head of the mortality class when I was diagnosed 13 years ago. Perhaps I'm overstating the significance of Mr. Giambi's death to me? Perhaps, his having been a Major Leaguer who played his last season for the Boston Red Sox, my hometown team, and I'm a sports' guy from Boston, intensifies the effect on me? Whatever it is, I don't ever want to see my birthday associated with death.
